NOTABLE TRIUMPHS

[illegible] Sarles secured several notable triumphs as a racing driver, [illegible] work having been performed on Los Angeles tracks, including the winning of the Thanksgiving Day race on the speedway [illegible] in 1920, when Gaston Chevrolet, Eddie O'Donnell, drivers, and Earl Jelk, O'Donnell's mechanician, were killed.

THANKSGIVING VICTORY

On Jan. 19, 1919, Sarles won the 100-mile race on the Ascot Speedway, Los Angeles, going the entire distance without a stop. On February 23 of the same year he won the 100-mile race on the one-mile dirt track at Bakersfield, Cal., also driving a nonstop race. March 15 following he started in the Santa Monica (Cal.) road race, but drove into a sand bank on a turn, breaking an axle. Both he and his mechanician were unhurt. Eight days later he won the 150-mile race on the Ascot Speedway and the following Labor Day took second place in the Uniontown, Pa., race of that date.

He took fourth place in the opening race on the Los Angeles Speedway, Feb. 23, 1920, and the same position in the fifty-mile sprint championship on the same track one month later. His Thanksgiving-Day victory of that year on the Los Angeles track was also a nonstop one and he missed beating the world's record by two seconds.

LUCK CHANGED IN 1922

The year 1921 was a prosperous one for Sarles, he finished in the money in almost every event in which he participated. He took third place in the sprint races on the Los Angeles Speedway, February 27, and eleven days later he finished second in a series of sprint races on the same track.

On Decoration Day he distinguished himself at Indianapolis by taking second money in the ninth renewal of the 500-mile international sweepstakes, finishing close to Tommy Milton, winner of the classic and national champion for the year.

At the close of the Indianapolis event, Sarles and Milton were running neck and neck for the A.A.A. title. Meeting at Tacoma, Wash., Milton beat Sarles after a seesaw

MYSTERY WOMAN LOCATED

Rabbi Pastor's Wife Admits Going to Rectory During Night of Murder Looking for Missing Husband

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—One mystery in connection with the murder of the Rev. Edward F. Hall and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, of New Brunswick, N. J., was cleared up late today [illegible] a week in giving fresh grounds for speculation.

[illegible] Frances Stevens Hall, [illegible] widow of the slain parson, [illegible] to the authorities that [illegible] the "mystery woman" seen [illegible] the palatial Hall residence [illegible] a.m. Friday. [illegible] Hall, who recently inherited approximately $1,000,000 from [illegible], was questioned for almost [illegible] by the authorities [illegible] Middlesex county, led by the [illegible] Assistant Beekman, [illegible] to the prosecutor, Mrs. [illegible] has little information of value in solving the double slaying, except to relieve the Coroner's detectives of the necessity of hunting any "mysterious woman" seen about the Hall home early Friday morning. Mrs. Hall unhesitatingly identified herself with the explanation that she had gone to the church rectory in the hope of finding her husband, who had left her the night before with the remark that he was going over to some services. She said her brother, William Stevens, accompanied her, but they got no trace of her husband, and she returned home.

Stevens, the brother, declined to answer questions put to him by Detective Totten, but his session with the prosecutor will come later.

Asked by Totten if he went out late Thursday night or early Friday morning with his sister, he replied:

No Decision on Subsidy Procedure

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—With Congress about to adjourn, with the ship subsidy legislation, which President Harding has so earnestly advocated, left untouched, there is much speculation here as to what the President proposes to do in the matter.

Three months ago the President wrote to Congress declaring it would be necessary for him to call a special session if adjournment was taken without action on the merchant marine legislation.

Several weeks ago, after Congress had worked itself into a legislative jam over the tariff, bonus and other measures and the administration was up to its ears in the industrial crisis, the President agreed to change his mind and consent to postponement of action on ship subsidies until the December session.

Ten days ago the President again changed his mind and intimated that he would call a special session for consideration of merchant marine legislation immediately after the November election. Republican leaders did not take enthusiastically to that suggestion and some of them have been trying to persuade the President not to call the special session, promising to get busy early in December. Just what is going to happen no one knows, but the advocates of ship subsidy are hoping that the President will not heed the advice of party leaders and will call the special session.

WARY OF BILL

While it is true that many Republicans are still wary of the proposed subsidy bill for the upbuilding of an American merchant marine, its advocates are doing their best to convince them that they need not be afraid of it for any reason, particularly any political reason with their constituencies in mind.

The Middle West is generally regarded as the center of opposition to the proposed merchant marine bill. Agriculture is proclaimed as vigorously opposed to it.

To disprove this, the National Merchant Marine Association has been making a first-hand investigation of conditions in the Middle West.

"First-hand investigation of conditions in the leading agricultural States," says the association, "shows a growing sentiment in favor of an adequate American merchant marine among the farmers of the interior. Claims of opponents of the shipping bill that the great bulk of agricultural opinion

Nation Will Sell Last Timber

Bidder Must Have Trifling Matter of Three Million Dollars in Jeans

But It's Great Chance for Somebody to Work Up Lumber Business

BY GRAFTON WILCOX

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The last great tract of virgin pine in the public domain of the United States is now offered for sale by the government.

The great acreage to be disposed of is a veritable timber kingdom on the Pacific frontier for some financial king who can deliver $3,000,000 in cash or credit.

To the man who can afford to grasp this golden opportunity there is a task of converting lumber that never would be done. The pine thereon opens an activity that may be handed down from fathers to sons, with no need for succeeding generations to follow the receding forest into distant regions.

The United States Forest Service is undertaking to sell this great tract of land way up in the highlands of the Oregon Blue Mountains, where the air is clear and snappy, almost the last of the vast, unsettled spaces where the world is much as it was before man intruded. It is aided in this effort by the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association. Together they are advertising the prospect, boosting the game for Uncle Sam as "an alluring opportunity for some one to found a business of noble proportions and with it establish a family industrial succession to the remotest generations."

The recent announcement of the Forest Service that this last of its forest race would be opened to development, has an added phase of unusual interest because it means the passing of the last frontier in the United States, barring Alaska. The forest stands in the midst of a stretch of country 10,000 square miles in extent.

RAILROAD NEEDED

To cut and manufacture the timber that is now offered for sale it will be necessary to build eighty miles of standard-guage railway line and many miles of branch lines in order to bring out the logs and give the lumber access to the outside world. This railway

BRITISH TROOPS RUSHED TO BAR TURK ADVANCE

Russia Reported About to Attack Rumania; Australia Answers Call for Troops

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Sept. 17.—War clouds hung lower in the Near East today as the Turkish situation steadily grows more menacing. Great Britain, confronted with the greatest menace since 1914, has set the machinery of her vast empire in motion in preparation for "any eventuality." She is determined to prevent the Turk from invading Europe and is not relying on any assistance from France nor Italy, but will make the grim stand alone.

The general situation is given more serious aspect by reports that Russia will attack Rumania to retake Bessarabia and thus aid Turkish plans. Considerable attention is given today to Gen. Townshend's assertion that the Allies must give up Constantinople or face a widespread "holy war."

SPEED REINFORCEMENTS

The vanguard of reinforcements to the Near East is en route. Today the First North Staffordshire Regiment of 1000 men has been ordered eastward from Gibraltar. Although their destination is being withheld officially it is known that they will proceed at once to Constantinople to reinforce the British troops already landed on the Gallipoli.

The British light cruiser Curacao, with Rear-Admiral Nicholson aboard, after taking on supplies at Gibraltar, speeded out today to Malta. The destroyers Romola and Rigorous also were ordered to Malta.

Premier Hughes has wired Lloyd George that Australia is ready to dispatch troops to Gallipoli immediately if necessary to assist the British army now there. This news was dispatched immediately upon receipt of Lloyd George's request for assistance from the dominions.

As seen here the urgent appeal of the home government indicates that Great Britain is not relying on any help from France or Italy. It also indicates:

That Kemal's threat to cross the straits and invade Europe is taken seriously. The British government may possess reliable information that the Turkish Nationalists plan a determined effort:

A fear that the crisis may be of long duration inasmuch as troops from the dominions could not reach the Dardanelles for a month at least.

That the cost of the Dardanelles

SMYRNA VAST SEPULCHER

Homes and Bodies of Dead Are Prey to Flames, Making Most Awful Massacre in Modern History

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SMYRNA, Sept. 17.—Smyrna, which the Turks have called the eye of Asia, is a vast sepulchre of ashes. Only the shattered walls of 25,000 homes and the charred bodies of countless victims remain to tell a story of death and destruction unexampled in modern history.

The ruins are still smouldering like a volcano which has spent its fury. No effort has been made by the Turks to remove the dead and dying. The streets are full of the bodies of those who sought to escape, for the most part women and children.

Every building in the Armenian quarter has burned, with the dead lying about. The bay, which covers an area of fifty acres, still carried on its surface the remnants of those who were massacred or sought to escape the ruthlessness of the foe.

On the water front crouch thousands of survivors who fear death in another form at the hands of the soldiery and there are no boats to take them off.

One ship captain declined to take any of the wretched sufferers aboard, but, in contrast to his in-

Richardson Rebuffs Old State Gang

BY KYLE D. PALMER

"Times" Staff Correspondent

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—There will be no compromise with the machine politicians in the Republican party by the Richardson-for-Governor forces in the party convention at Sacramento Tuesday.

The machine men are anxious to save something from the wreck of August 29 and are urging "compromise" on this and that, both as to planks in the platform to be adopted by the convention and as to the membership and officers of the State Central Committee.

Mr. Richardson has had but one reply to all such overtures—"no compromise"—and he is prepared to conduct a campaign for Governor independent of the committee if the machine leaders override his wishes.

He has the assurance of nearly 300 California newspaper editors in all parts of the State and that they will back him in any move he may deem necessary and proper. He holds the Republican nomination because he guaranteed to "kick the machine out of politics," and he seems to be in a mood to start the kicking process at the earliest opportunity.

NOT DICTATORIAL

Mr. Richardson in all conferences with Republican leaders has indicated that he will not assume any dictatorial attitude in the convention, but will simply present to the convention for ratification the platform which won him the nomination. Should the machine workers muster strength sufficient to block this program the whole story of intrigue and manipulation will

Crews Don Masks Ready for Dash Below as Last Strokes Batter Barrier

BY EDWARD DOHERTY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

JACKSON (Cal.) Sept. 18.—The forty-seven miners buried in the Argonaut mine three weeks ago last night will come out, dead or alive, with the dawn. The mine rescue crews of experts have gathered for the dash into the shaft.

The last shift, "the graveyard shift," has gone down into the Kennedy. Their task is to drill through eight feet of rock upwards and then to enlarge the hole so men may go through it.

Fresh air is seeping into the Argonaut from the Kennedy shaft through the shattered rock. The drills have not yet gone through.

Raymond Valdez, a young man of Plymouth, a neighboring mining town, has volunteerd to hold the post of danger—incidentally he is the exact counterpart of Rodolph Valentino, the movie star. Incidentally, also, this leading actor in the silent drama of the Argonaut never heard of the hero of the screen.

Another in this "graveyard shift" is Charles Fitzgerald, brother of one of the forty-seven. He has no hopes of seeing his brother alive.

Only the officials and a few of the mining men still wait at the mouth of the shaft.

The air is chill, but the women do not move. They look like mourners huddled about a grave.

A report was in circulation that the crew working on the 3400 level had been having trouble with blasting powder and that V. S. Garbarini had gone down to investigate.

GRUESOME PREPARATIONS

The men of the United States Bureau of Mines are ready for the word to go, oxygen tanks prepared, duties mapped out.

They are to find the forty-seven men or the forty-seven bodies and bring them out.

The Emergency Hospital is ready, but expects to treat none of the forty-seven.

Nine feet more of rock—less perhaps as the words are written. The end is coming at last.

Every day for three weeks the families of the unfortunate miners have waited for the hour. Every day for three weeks they have said: "Perhaps tomorrow or the next day or the day after that at the latest."

Even today they dared not hope too much.

JACKSON COUNTS HOURS THAT HIDE GRIM TRUTH

Throngs Crowd Ill-Fated Town to Hear First Word From Tomb of Trapped Miners

BY BURTON L. SMITH,

"Times" Staff Representative

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

JACKSON, Sept. 17.—Never more forcibly than in Jackson tonight has the truth of an old adage been proven: "Hope springs eternal in the human breast." Advice of experts, opinions of experienced miners and the best deductions of a hundred men who have been watching the progress of the rescue crews closely, led to the belief that the walls between the Kennedy mine and the Argonaut property would be battered down before noon today.

Relatives, friends, townspeople and visitors were sure that the fate of the forty-seven men caught by fire and gas in the low levels of the Argonaut mine, would be known some time this morning, but fate interposed an objection, and the best that is hoped for now is early Monday morning.

The first real survey of the shift at the 2600-foot level of the Kennedy mine, where the rescue parties are working, was made this morning when the 7 o'clock shift went down to work. Before this time the estimates of distances were made from old prints in the offices of the two companies. According to this information it looked certain that the wall of rock between the entombed miners and their rescuers would be battered down in twelve hours, or two shifts.

W. E. Downs, underground engineer, accompanied the early shift to their work this morning, made a survey and returned with the disheartening information that there was still thirty feet of rock standing guard over the imprisoned men. This meant that with the best of luck and a continuation of the almost superhuman speed maintained by the men at work, it will take three shifts to reach them. In other words, the men who went to work at 7 o'clock tonight and who are due to finish at one o'clock in the morning will be the victorious group who first break down the walls of the underground tomb.

WORK IS HARDER

Fred E. Lowell, representing the State Accident Commission and in charge of the rescue work, points to the fact that although the last three shifts have maintained a speed of ten feet into the rock for every six hours, there is always ground to believe that some unexpected thing will arise to hinder the work. Each foot further the men go into the drift means that the rock and debris have to be move just that much farther away, and despite the fact that the shift coming from work at 1 p.m. today showed a gain of eleven feet. Mr. Lowell is inclined to the belief that the last two shifts will not show so much progress. If this official is right the honor of breaking through the wall will fall to the crew going to work early in the morning, and the rescue party will be sent into the Argonaut some time after midnight.

All this disappointment has not caused the folk of Jackson to give up hope. It has been on too long a strain to be vitally affected by a change of a few hours now. In fact, it is certain that there are more people here tonight who think that at least several of the men will be found alive than there was a week ago. Analysis of the air in the shaft and stories of other remarkable rescues have held the center of attention for several days, and as the time approaches and the tension grows more firm, brighter hopes seem to fill the hearts of the waiting throng.

PASTOR GIVES HOPE

At the First Methodist Episcopal Church this morning the Rev. Edwin F. Brown devoted practically all of his sermon time to delivery of a talk designed to aid his hearers in a belief that the men who are being so eagerly sought are still alive. Rev. Brown said that if the men are found to be living it might seem to some as a miracle.

"But," he continued, "the day of miracles has not passed with the death of the Savior. He was not the first man to perform a miracle and he will not be the last, as his divine spirit still dominates the earth. I know that Jesus Christ, who ascended to the right hand of

STORY OF LAST DRIVE

New Disappointment Encountered by Frenzied Diggers at Argonaut Mine; Kept Up by Whisky and Grit

BY EDWARD DOHERTY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WAITING AT THE MOUTH OF THE KENNEDY SHAFT, JACKSON (Cal.) Sept. 17.—A sizzling Sunday afternoon—a drooping day that was to have been the rescue day of the forty-seven miners caught in the depths of the Argonaut.

A disappointing day.

Yesterday all Jackson was told that the hard-rock men would break into the Argonaut at 10:30 Sunday morning; not later. At 10:30 o'clock there was still thirty feet more of stone between the hard-rock men and the lost miners.

The officials had miscalculated. The action of the ground—the constant friction between hard rock and soft earth—had led to the mistake.

The men might break through at midnight. It might be some time tomorrow.

AGAIN DISAPPOINTED

Jackson, grown used to disappointment, took the new disappointment well.

The look of hope and expectation and eagerness on the faces of the women of the miners early in the morning gave way to a look of resignation.

"One more day—perhaps."

For three weeks the women have told themselves that. For three weeks it has been repeated to them. Three weeks, and their men down in the rabbit-warren of the Argonaut, waiting, starving, dying.

Three weeks, and hard-rock men and muckers do all that men may do to effect a rescue.

It is late afternoon. One of the shifts has just come up. They are battered and dirty and worn, some of them with not enough energy left to put out the light in their lamps.

"TIMES" COLLECTS FUND FOR VICTIMS OF MINE DISASTER

The Times will receive, acknowledge by publication and forward funds for the relief of the victims of the Jackson mine disaster—the widows and orphans of the entombed miners if they are dead and for the miners and their families if the buried men are found alive.

Contributions should be addressed to the City Editor, The Times, Los Angeles, Cal. They will be forwarded at once to the Amador County Chamber of Commerce, which has charge of the relief work. The names of the donors will be printed in The Times.

Forty-two of the forty-seven miners trapped on the lower levels of the Argonaut mine are married and have children. If the miners are dead, as is feared, the families will be left without support. If the trapped men still live, when the working crews burst through, they will be in no condition to work and only the best of care and attention, with expert nursing, can bring them back to health.

Grief-stricken women and little children whose husbands and fathers may never again serve them as bread-winners will receive this money. All are invited to give as much as they can.

BRITAIN ALONE IN ULTIMATUM

France and Italy Plainly Against Giving Aid

Both Powers Considering Their Moslem Lands

Paris Advises London to Listen to Townshend

BY SAMUEL DASHIELL

[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—It is indicated today from the most authoritative sources that neither France nor Italy will support Great Britain's Near East policy to the extent of embarking on a holy war against the Turks or against what is considered tantamount to a united Islam. Thus the British note, which was distributed yesterday throughout Europe calling on the Entente and Balkan powers to join England in keeping Europe free of the Turk was received with mild astonishment in Paris.

The French consider their agreement on maintaining the liberty of the Dardanelles has been misrepresented by England and interpreted as an expression of their willingness to engage in a joint military expedition to repulse the Turks should they attempt to cross into Thrace. It is understood the Italians regard the situation in the same manner and while doing everything possible to encourage a conference at Venice, the Rome government is definitely against sending Italian troops to join the British colonials at Gallipoli.

ACCEPT TOWNSHEND VIEWS

Furthermore, the French are commenting widely on the reprinted interview, which Gen. Townshend gave your correspondent, in which he declared England must give up her pretentions to Constantinople and retire before the prospect of a Mohammedan uprising. As Gen. Townshend's solution is naturally supported by both France and Italy considerable interest is aroused by the opposite thesis of Lloyd George.

The strong terms of the British note leave no doubt in French minds that England is merely inviting the Entente powers to issue a declaration of war, especially as it is pointed out that England has ordered her navy to "oppose by every means any infraction of the neutral zones."

WAR REPULSIVE

Commenting on these diverging theories, most of the French press today simply asks: "Is Europe about to have another crusade?" Both France and Italy will proceed cautiously in any movement which might involve them in a quarrel with the Mohammedans since France at present possesses Moslem colonies almost as extensive as England's, with Italy sharing similar colonial interests in Tripoli in addition to its commercial interests with the Western Mediterranean and Black Sea peoples.

The common point of agreement, however, is that the Dardanelles and Bosphorus must offer a free passage under neutral control. Fears on that point were allayed today by a report from Angora that the Turkish Nationalists will assent to the project of neutralization and refrain from a vainglorious attempt to control the straits. As the matter rests, it appears a "crusade" will be unnecessary should England agree to Gen. Townshend's recommendations.

COMMEND GENERAL

Commenting on the interview, Le Gaulois says:

"It seems that Gen. Townshend, who has just returned from Constantinople and whose political perspicacity equals his military science, has a better sense of the realities than his government when he says it must consider all aspects of the Moslem question as well as the claims of the Turks themselves.

"It would be infinitely more sensible and more practical to let Gen. Townshend and M. Gouraud regulate the question of the Orient directly with Mustafa Kemal than to continue the eternal cycle of futile peace conferences."

Mrs. Harding to Regain Health in White House

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Mrs. Harding, now safely on the road to complete recovery from her recent serious illness, probably will spend the entire recuperative period at the White House, it was said today.

Authoritative information is that the White House physicians have decided there would be less danger of a setback if the patient was kept here for some time to come.

President Harding also was said to have definitely given up his plans for a vacation this year. Early in the year preparations were made for the President and Mrs. Harding to make an extended tour through the West and then to Alaska.

Six Persons Hurt as Two Cars Collide

Six persons were injured, none of them seriously, when two autos crashed on Washington Boulevard, near the Inglewood crossing, yesterday. E. G. Brock, a taxi driver, is under arrest as a result of the collision and is held pending further investigation.

The car driven by Brock and the one driven by A. K. Condee, 1885 West Twenty-first street, were those that figured in the accident. The injured, besides Condee, were Charles Pendenville, 2016 South Fourth; M. C. MacClarke; John A. Salling, 187 Forty-third Place; Bob Semon, Seward Hotel, Venice and Miss Fritzie Hutchinson, Gower street and Hollywood Boulevard. All the injured were treated at St. Catherine's Hospital.

English Town Considering Opening Up Separate Drinking Places

RICHARDSON TO FIGHT

be given to the people and the Richardson campaign will be conducted by the newspaper men's committee that broke the hold of the machine and nominated the machine's opponent.

The Richardson supporters want George F. Radcliffe, newspaper editor, elected chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

WANT BOYNTON

The embittered element of the State machine is insisting upon the election of former State Senator Albert E. Boynton as chairman of the central committee. Mr. Boynton took an unusually active part in the pre-primary campaign against Richardson and is, moreover, an official member of the repudiated machine. His selection as State committee chairman would be generally accepted as a machine victory and as a rebuke to those who voted for Richardson.

The gubernatorial nominee has informed machine representatives that he will not accept Boynton on any terms. Thus the issue hinges on the election of Radcliffe or Boynton and the result will determine the course of action to be followed by the Richardson campaign managers.

The Richardson people would be glad to know what Mr. McCabe, ostensibly representing a Republican nominee for the Senate could have to say to a Democratic nominee for Governor and vice versa.

There is strong reason for believing that the Johnson machine politicians are attempting to embarrass Richardson by promoting the candidacy of Attorney Albert Rosenshine of San Francisco, for speaker of the next Assembly, opposing Richardson's choice, Assemblyman Frank F. Merriam, for Speaker.

It is asserted that Rosenshine is conducting his speakership campaign from the Johnson headquarters with the active backing of McCabe. This situation is causing much resentment among Richardson followers and their indignation is increased by covert boasts that the machine expects to outgeneral Richardson for control of the next Legislature.

Meanwhile the Richardson adherents are prepared to start his campaign immediately after the party convention, either with the full co-operation of the State committee or wholly independent of the committee.

Gov. Stephens has indicated his desire to be invited to address the convention Tuesday afternoon.

Both Mr. Richardson and Mr. Johnson will attend the convention sessions. The party platform has been completed, subject to the approval of the resolution committee. The platform in its present form is acceptable to Mr. Richardson.

SARLES KILLED IN AUTO RACE

race, winning by a margin of forty-two seconds.

Sarles and Milton resumed their battle at the Los Angeles Speedway July 17, evened the race for points by winning all three sprint races. Later victories for Milton however, added enough points to his total to assure him of the title.

The 1922 season held less luck for Sarles than that of 1921. Engine trouble and other causes forced him out of several contests and he did not find himself until the Easter Sunday 150-mile event at the San Francisco Speedway, in which he won third money.

Roscoe Sarles was married in Chicago June 24, 1919, to Miss Dorothy Jones, formerly of Long Beach. Their marriage followed a romance which had its inception in a local automobile salesroom where Mr. Sarles was employed while not racing.

Mr. and Mrs. Sarles had been living for the past few months at 312 South Hoover street. Mrs. Sarles and her mother, Mrs. J. Wesley Jones, were at the Sarles residence when telegrams came informing them of the driver's death. Both women suffered a nervous collapse and required the attention of a physician last night.

Daughter Gets Three Million Dollar Estate

Mrs. Franklin Baldwin of South Pasadena, who, a few months ago, was Miss Florence M. Gates, will soon receive the $3,000,000 estate of her father, the late Carroll W. Gates, upon payment of an inheritance tax of $118,916.52 as apportioned by State Comptroller Ray L. Riley.

Mrs. Baldwin is now staying with her husband at the old family home, 141 Fremont avenue, but will soon remove to Pasadena, where a new home is being prepared. Mr. Baldwin is an attorney, practicing in Los Angeles. Their marriage is said to be the result of a Stanford University romance and was solemnized in the Memorial Chapel at the university.

Mrs. Baldwin is the sole heir of her father, although provision has been made for his mother, Mrs. A. M. Gates, during her lifetime. Carroll W. Gates was owner of the original townsite of Huntington Beach, owner of the Gates Hotel at Sixth and Figueroa, and partner in the cattle company of Vail & Gates, besides being director in a score of companies of importance.

MANY VISITORS

The town of Jackson entertained its largest crowd of visitors today. Since last night automobiles have been arriving filled with hundreds who came to learn at first hand the fate of the now famous forty-seven. Machines from as far south as Los Angeles and from the northern extremity of the State have been among the arrivals. Several cars have come from Nevada and Utah, while the nearby cities of Sacramento and Stockton have contributed large numbers to the invading throng. All the visitors are to remain some distance from the mine and await the first information brought out from the mining property. The roadway leading to the Kennedy shaft is guarded by a deputy sheriff and only those holding permits can invade the holdings. Newspaper men and newspaper women have been running in a continuous procession from the mine to telegraph and telephone all information, and news photographers have to remain in relays at the mine.

Aside from the ringing of church bells this morning there has been nothing to remind one that it is Sunday. The great crowds in the street have moved from place to place, but nowhere is a holiday spirit displayed. Friend and stranger catches the feeling in the air and becomes awed by the story of the great disaster.

SUBSIDY BILL AGAIN DELAYED

was against the measure are not borne out by facts."

This is shown, the association maintains, by a report published in the Mississippi Valley Magazine, on a tour of a number of leading granger States made recently by Ralph H. Faxon, secretary of the Mississippi Valley Association, who says the farmers' attitude toward an American merchant marine has been misrepresented by opponents of the pending legislation. Mr. Faxon spent a month in Iowa, Kansas, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Nebraska. Those States, together with Missouri, he points out, comprise the greatest agricultural production section of the world.

"It is entirely a mistake," says Mr. Faxon, "to insist that all the agricultural sentiment is hostile to the shipping bill. It may not fully understand the situation and the fine points of the measure, and it is true that many vicious and absolutely incorrect statements have been made by opponents and by those forces se hostile as to care nothing about expression and means to the end that defeat might come to the bill. But the great rank and file of the agricultural class in the upper valleys is at least more than fifty-fifty, the majority being in favor of a merchant marine because of appreciation of what it would do."

Banks Combine Resources in Valley Merger

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, Sept. 17.—At the close of business Saturday the First National Bank of Brawley, the First National Bank of Calipatria and the Imperial Valley Bank of Brawley, including the Westmoreland branch, were merged into the one institution under the name of Imperial Valley Bank, with the head office at Brawley and branches at Calipatria and Westmoreland.

Directors and stockholders of the three banks determined upon the consolidation more than two months ago, but the details and legal steps necessary have just been worked out and the plan finally consummated. In order to merge the two national banks with the State bank, it was necessary to convert the First National Bank of Brawley and the First National Bank of Calipatria into State institutions and then take the necessary steps by the three State banks to form one institution.

The new Imperial Valley Bank will have a capital of $300,000 and deposits of approximately $1,100,000. The directors are optimistic in the belief that the new bank will be a great factor in the future progress and development of the north end of the valley.

KANSAS CITY TRACK ROUGH, WIRED HERE

AUTOMOBILE MANUFACTURER ADVISED OF BAD COURSE PRIOR TO RACE

Harry A. Miller, the Los Angeles man who made the car that Sarles was driving, said last night that several of the drivers had informed him by telegrams that the Kansas City track was in very poor condition. In addition to being new and unsettled the track was exceedingly rough. In some places the drivers declared that it was necessary for them to cut off their power completely.

Sarles, according to Mr. Miller's statement, had never driven so fast a car before. The Durant car which he was driving had formerly been handled by Tommy Milton.

Sarles informed Mr. Miller by telegram yesterday that he would return to Los Angeles next Thursday to take over a new racing car which Mr. Miller was making for him.

During the time that Sarles was racing he had been employed by the Wright Motor Company, local agents for the Roamer automobile.

KEMAL PLAYS SUBTLE HAND

"Free Straits" Demand Seen as Clever Evasion of Allied Bar to Constantinople

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 16.—(Delayed) An Anatolian agency predicts that the Angora answer to the Dardanelles Straits question admits the principle of freedom, subject to arrangement of the details by all interested powers.

The Kemalist treaties of the last three years with the Ukraine, Moscow, Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaijan, all contain clauses that control of the several straits be administered by a mixed commission of all of the riparian powers. This is a clever evasion of the Allied attempt to maintain a neutral zone in order to prevent a Kemalist infiltration of Thrace, subsequent to the inevitable capture of Constantinople.

The Anatolian occupation was completed today when the Turk regular forces entered villages along the demarkation line east of Dardanelles. The Angora government announced that Abdul Kerim, of the principal Kurdish tribe, named Medpaf, and all the Kurds had offered allegiance.

It is believed that Mustapha Kemal Pasha has not decided whether to pursue his original plan to attack Kurdistan and Mesopotamia or seize the opportunity to respond to Bolshevik pressure and take Constantinople. In the latter case it would be impossible for a direct military attack from Asia, but would be easy for a local uprising after infiltration of Nationalists, with flaming Thrace and a sudden movement against Scutari. The report that Nationalists have occupied Mosul is not believed.

BRITISH CABINET CALLED

LONDON, Sept. 17.—It was authoritatively announced tonight that as the result of a conference with Premier Lloyd George at Chequers today, a Cabinet meeting to consider further the Near East crisis has been called for noon tomorrow in Downing street. Foreign Minister Ninohitch of Serbia will arrive in London tomorrow to confer with Lloyd George and press the Serbian views against re-establishment of the Turks in Europe.

There is no activity in the War Office or the Admiralty, where it is stated that all movements are in the hands of Gen. Harrington and Amiral Brook. The only reinforcements sent so far are the Gordon Highlanders from Malta and the North Staffordshires from Gibraltar.

At the Foreign Office the view is expressed that while the situation may become serious, it is not likely that Mustapha Kemal Pasha will be so foolish as to attack united Europe, and hope is expressed that he will adopt a reasonable attitude as soon as the situation is explained to him.

In the meantime, there is nothing but gratitude toward Russia for its timely — from the Allies' point of view—gesture of friendship toward the Turks. This brought home immediately to all the Allies the real danger which might result from a dissolution of the alliance and made possible united action for the maintenance anent the arrangements in the Near East, at least, until they can be changed by discussion and agreement.

NEAR EAST RELIEF FORMED

Local Chairmen Everywhere in Southland Actively Engaged in Getting Contributions

That the desperate plight of Smyrna and Moudania refugees, made destitute by the sudden Turkish victory, will not go unheeded in the Southwest is evidenced by the impressive list of chairmen appointed today to raise emergency relief funds in more than 100 cities by the Southern California Committee of Near East Relief.

These chairmen, a list of which is given herewith, have been asked to appeal to their communities for quick response to this emergency appeal. Mass meetings are being planned in Los Angeles and other counties for the coming week.

The Smyrna relief appeal is for cash, designated as Smyrna Emergency Relief Fund, every dollar of which will be administered by the Near East Relief for the benefit of the Smyrna and Moudania sufferers, according to the regional headquarters of Near East Relief, 517 Wright & Callender Building, Los Angeles.

The list of Southern California chairmen follows:

difference, Capt. Walters of the American steamer Winona rescued 1400 and took them to Piraeus. American sailors of the destroyer Litchfield snatched 450 orphaned boys from the fire and carried them safely to Constantinople. The jack tars slept on the iron decks or under torpedo tubes, while the youngsters occupied their bunks. In all the acts of gallantry by the Americans at Smyrna there was none more inspiring han his.

While the orphans were being loaded on the Litchfield H. C. Jacquith, director of Near East relief, who came here recently from Constantinople, diverted the attention of the Turkish guards, giving them cigarettes and talking to them in their native tongue.

These guards are under strictest orders not to permit the escape of any Greek or Armenian refugees and on several occasions have shot to death fugitives attempting to reach outlying vessels by swimming.

Out of 300,000 Christian crowding the city prior to the descent of the Turks, only 60,000 have been evacuated. Kemalist officials have informed the American relief workers that the return of the Christians to the interior meant certain death.

Defendant's Wife to Aid State's Case

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SOUTH BEND (Ind.) Sept. 17. Harry Poulin's wife, May R. Poulin, has been subpoenaed by the State as its star witness in the prosecution of her husband on the charges of Mrs. John P. Tiernan, that Poulin, and not her husband, Prof. Tiernan of Notre Dame, is the father of her child.

The subpoena comes as the first bombshell of surprise to the defense, and according to the prosecution there are more shells in store.

"The defense has intimated that it is going into this in the most thorough manner," said Prosecuting Attorney Jellison. "We cordially will gratify it in that regard. That is why we are summoning Mrs. Poulin. Certainly she should know something of this matter."

PROPOSES TO LEGALIZE OPIUM TO GET MONEY

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MANILA, Sept. 17.—Legalizing opium importation with a heavy duty as a means of replenishing the government's depleted finances is proposed in a legislative bill filed today. The sponsor of the measure says scientists have failed to prove the pictured ill effects of opium, and that all restrictive measures for centuries back have been failures.

KEMALISTS ADVANCING ON STRAITS

Moslem War Chief Virtual Dictator Unless Checked by Allied Forces

BY JOHN CLAYTON

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 17.—With the British rushing every available troop unit to the Dardanelles and Constantinople, the military situation here is critical. Allied authorities here have decided that Mustapha Kemal Pasha was not bluffing when he said that military forces of occupation must go. Hopes of a conference that would solve the situation have vanished.

Kemal is in the position of a dictator unless the Allies are willing to fight. Early this morning a transport from Malta debarked troops at Chanak for the defense of the straits. Another transport is arriving this afternoon.

Meanwhile, Kemal is moving the bulk of his army which is still in excellent shape, despite the rapid advance toward Smyrna and on the northward is threatening the neutral zones of both the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus.

Kemal is able to throw close to 70,000 troops into any battle that may develop. But his chief card is the instigation of riots and revolution in Thrace and Constantinople.

Already, disguised Turkish regular army officers have made their appearance in Stamboul and are organizing bands of irregulars similar to those effective units that harassed the Greek retreat, and who will be ready to loot and slay when the word is given.

With the present number of troops garrisoning the city, all of whom are required at the Ismidt front, it will be impossible to maintain order in the city, if ever a mob or an organized band of irregulars break loose. Riots and mob disturbances when they celebrated the Turkish capture of Smyrna, gave Pera a foretaste of what will come if the same mob is bent on making real trouble led by regular officers.

The terrors of Smyrna will be as nothing compared to what is in store for the foreign quarters of Constantinople unless the Allies throw sufficient troops into the city to handle the situation.

RIVERSIDE WOMAN DIES IN ACCIDENT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 17.—Mae Ross of Riverside, was instantly killed last night at Pacific Beach, this city, when an automobile in which she was riding with Henry W. Stewart, Arizona mining man, overturned at high speed while rounding a curve. Miss Ross's head was crushed and she was dead when the car was lifted from her body. Stewart was seriously injured and is still unconscious in a hospital here.

PRIMEVAL NO MORE

will justify a number of irrigation and reclamation projects which will eventually support a considerable population. The big industry of the region, however, in addition to cattle and sheep, will be the lumbering of the timber of the Malheur forest. And the lumberman who is awarded this contract by the Forest Service will, by the same token, become the outstanding figure of this entire region.

There are 7,000,000,000 feet of timber in the Malheur, and the Forest Service has so planned the lumbering operations that when the last of the now standing saw timber has been cut the unit now to be opened will be ready for a second cutting and so on in rotation to the end of time.

The Forest Service cannot enter into a binding contract with the lumberman who takes the first unit that he will get the other units in succession, but that is the intention; and it stands to reason that the man who goes in now, builds the railways, puts up the mill and establishes a manufacturing community, will naturally be the successful bidder for the later units. Anyway, he will have $90,000,000 feet of logs to start with, and it will take a fair-sized mill not less than twenty years to convert that amount of logs into lumber. As 87 per cent of the forest is of the highly prized western yellow pine, which commands premium prices, it is calculated that a twenty-year run will amortize the entire original investment, which would be in the neighborhood of $3,000,000, and make a good return on it even if operations cease at the end of that time.

TIMBER IS REMOTE

The actually timbered tract comprises an area of about 67,400 acres lying on the headwaters of the Silvies River, in a broad basin known as Bear Valley. It is almost entirely between 4500 and 6000 feet above sea level. It is fifty miles north of the inland town of Burns, which in turn is about thirty miles from Crane, the nearest railway point on a branch of the Oregon Short Line of the Union Pacific. It is expected that the railway company will itself build the thirty miles from Crane to Burns when it is certain that extensive lumbering operations are to begin in the Malheur country, as the most suitable location for the mill is at Burns. The contractor, however, will have to build his own line for fifty miles from Burns north of Seneca, as will be the case also with a number of short branches from five to ten miles in length.

It is no poor man's opportunity, for he will have to invest between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 before he takes out a cent. He will have to build the railroad from Burns to Seneca at an estimated cost of $980,000; logging branch from Seneca to the timber—eleven miles—$100,000, and spurs that will cost $45,000. The steel and equipment of the railway lines, the logging camps, loaders, horses, tractors and miscellaneous equipment, will cost considerably over $400,000. Then he will have to build a lumber mill with a double-shift capacity of 60,000,000 feet of lumber a year, a large planing mill and a box factory; dry kilns, dwellings for his employees, etc., which will require $500,000 or $600,000 more. It will cost him altogether about $10 a thousand to run his logs into lumber, ship and sell them; that is, if he cuts only the pine, which is all that will be required of him. Should the contractor elect to cut the Douglas fir, western larch, white fir and Lodgepole line, this cost would be perceptibly lower. On the other hand, as he will pay the government for his logs only as he cuts them, he will not have much capital tied up in timber. And the forest service enumerates seven other factors which make the proposition attractive, as follows:

GOVERNMENT'S PLAN

The purchaser of this unit will establish his operation in an undeveloped stand of pine timber greater than any to be found anywhere in the Northwest. Under government management the policy of sustained production assures the industry the opportunity to get practically a continuous supply of raw material.

The experience of the lumbering industry has shown that western yellow pine is a very desirable species from an operating viewpoint. It is an excellent wood to manufacture, and the finished products rank high in competition with other soft woods in the general market.

The pine timber in this sale is of very good quality and of desirable size to handle.

The first hazard in this type of timber is unusually low. The danger of loss of timber, with the consequent endangering of the investment in plant, common in other types, is negligible.

The region opened up by the railroad offers rich opportunities for development of agriculture and other industries furnishing freight traffic.

Of course, the successful bidder gets only the timber and not the land, which is to be reserved for the growing of future forests. No bids will be considered for less than $2.75 per thousand feet for western yellow pine or 50 cents per thousand for other species. The originally accepted price will apply until April 1, 1928, when, and at three-year intervals thereafter, the Forest Service may readjust the price. The purchaser is allowed until April 1, 1925, to begin actual logging operations, and cutting of the government timber must begin not later than October 1 of that year.

Finds Burglar Busily Engaged Robbing House

When Mrs. M. Vote went from the front rooms of her home, 6095 Salem Place, yesterday about 4 p.m. she observed a well-dressed young man robbing a dressing table in her bedroom. She immediately called the police. By the time that Officer Troster of the Hollywood police station arrived the prowler fled. The loot which he took with him consisted of a Russian sable fur valued at $2200 and a diamond ring valued at $600.

Mrs. Vote obtained a good description of the youth, whose appearance correspond with that of a prowler who is thought to have committed several other robberies in Hollywood. He is described as having "patent leather hair" and wearing several diamond rings. He is said to be about 20 years old, five feet five inches in height and to weigh about 130 pounds.

BRITAIN SPEEDS WAR MACHINERY

campaign which will be admittedly heavy, is already threatening to arouse a protest from overtaxed Englishmen and may be divided among the British dominions if they participate and that while France and Italy have agreed to co-operate with England in spirit, it is already apparent that they prefer to allow the British to bear the bulk of the expense. Neither France nor Italy seem disposed to take extensive measures.

Another angle of the Turk menace has developed suddenly. Great Britain is fearful for Mesopotamian domain. Fearing that the Turks will make a sudden dash eastward, the government is understood to have requested France to prevent the movement of Kemalist troop trains across French Syria to Mesopotamia.

The British force in the mandated region, the government fears would be inadequate to withstand a heavy Turk attack, Kemal already controls the Bagdad railroad as far as the French sphere. Unless the French hold the Turkish leader in check in the French zone, there is nothing to prevent his pushing into the heart of the British sphere and attempting to arouse the Moslem population to a "holy war."

The London Times takes a pessimistic view of the whole situation.

HORRORS AT SMYRNA

"The whole of Southeastern Europe is a chaos of gloomy uncertainties," the paper said. "We may find the Balkans ablaze and may find ourselves ablaze, though it will be criminal to actually war with Turkey, which is in the strongest position relatively, if not actually, since she first entered Europe.

"The only check up on Turkey has been a united Europe, and Europe is not united on this or any other question.

"Fortunately the Allies agree on one issue—the freedom of the Dardanelles and this is Britain's most vital issue."

Cables and admiralty advices today told of additional horrors at Smyrna, a devastated, smouldering, plague-stricken city, the suburbs of which still are burning.

FACE GREAT ODDS

According to Frigid Bay, the Turkish nationalist representative, Kemal has 450,000 troops under arms. The Allied forces now at Constantinople, according to the French foreign office, are: British 10,000; French 7000 and Italians 2000. Thus is hostilities were opened and the French and Italians were to help Great Britain as they probably would, the Allied forces would have to meet an overwhelming superiority of manpower before reinforcements could arrive in sufficient numbers to turn the tide of battle.

This unequal division of manpower, however, is somewhat offset by strategic position of the Allies, who control the straits from the sea. Portions of the Allies' fleets are concentrated in the vicinity to prevent any attempt by Kemal to cross the straits. And unless Kemal can elude the Allied warships and ferry his troops and guns across to the European side he will be unable to get the foothold necessary for a drive on Constantinople.

FLEET KEEPS VIGIL

Two British dreadnaughts, several torpedo boats, one French warship and transports are immediately available around the straits. At Smyrna, within cruising distance there are two French cruisers, two torpedo boats; five British torpedo boats and a number of smaller craft. Then there is the French Syrian division a little further away which consist of one cruiser and four light torpedo boats.

UNPATRIOTIC PERSONS BEING THROWN OUT

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Various governments in Europe, especially those whose territory was augmented by the war, are following the lead of the French in Alsace and ordering wholesale expulsions of unpatriotic citizens.

The latest reports come from Hungarian circles in Paris, where it is said the Budapest government has threatened Belgrade with reprisals should the continued expulsion of Hungarian citizens not cease. It is stated a number of the persons expelled were Jugo-Slovaks known for their pro-Hungarian sentiments.

SKY BLUE MONDAY letters

Sky-Blue Monday
September 18, 1922

Good Morning, Mr. Wheat:—

How are they coming?

Are you turning 'em away?

Good old Joe Jefferson used to tell this story about a young actor in his company who had returned from the funeral of his father:

"I did everything I could," tearfully said the apparently broken-hearted young man. "We had everything just as father would have liked to have it."

"That's good," said the kind-hearted Jefferson. "Many there?"

"Many there?" said the actor, his eyes now brightly glistening. "Why, say, man, we turned 'em away."

Suppose now, by means of a good, systematic direct mail campaign, well gotten up and nicely illustrated—we brought in a lot of good business for you?

Would you have to turn 'em away? No, sir! You'd soon find a way to take care of every order and would reach out for more.

And now why not admit that as a matter of fact, by not advertising, are you not in a measure actually turning business away?

Business goes where it is invited—stays where it is well treated.

Let us help you with an attractive series of invitations.

Remember we print the best of everything.

COWBOYS TALK OVER BYGONES

Members of T-Anchor Ranch Conduct Reunion

Range Riders of Early Texas Enjoy Old Sports

Permanent Organization of Pioneers Planned

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CANYON (Tex.) Sept. 17.—More than twenty-five members of the old T-Anchor ranch outfit who rode the range in this far western part of Texas as early as 1878 held a reunion near here the other day. In some respects it was the most notable gathering of old-time cowboys ever known in the Southwest.

Besides the veterans of the range there were present a few invited guests. The setting for the meeting had been carefully thought out in advance and was as exact a duplicate of the daily routine of the T-Anchor organization of forty years ago as modern conditions would permit.

An old chuck wagon, water keg, feed box and everything else that went with it stood on the banks of the creek. The finishing touch to the wagon was the cow hide stretched under the wagon and filled with cow chips for the fire. A few feet away Gus Lee, the 72-year-old negro cook of the T-Anchor bunch, squatted about his chip fire, where mealy beans and sour dough open-fire biscuits, "son-of-a-gun," and other tidbits of the range simmered and slowly turned to just the right tenderness and appetizing flavor. John Turner of Umbarger, who also used to cook for the T-anchor, was assistant chef for the day.

On one side of the main fire was a small pit over which sizzled a barbecued calf. On the other side of the main fire another hot spot in the prairie, buried beneath the surface, indicated that Gus had the "dessert" slowly coming along to the right temperature.

OLD DAYS RECALLED

The meetings of the old cowboys were characteristic of the type. They would shake hands, look at each other intently, comment briefly and dryly on gray or bald heads—and then say very little for a while. Soon they would pair off or three or four gather in a group and conversation would start. In a few minutes conversation would warm up, a laugh would start as long forgotten incidents crept out, and then the yarns and jokes came thick and fast.

When everything was just right Gus yelled: "Chuck!—and don't crowd you mavericks." Every one took a paper plate, tin cup and knives and forks, filed by the pots and pans and then seated themselves on the grass for a typical cowboy dinner. Gus topped off the barbecue with his dessert, the head of the animal which had been simmering in the coals under ground.

Judge L. Gough, who promoted the reunion, presided as toastmaster of an informal gathering after dinner.

Gus Lee, veteran cook, then convulsed the audience with an old-time negro sermon. Gus brought down the house and then proudly returned to his pots and pans.

A motion was adopted that a permanent organization of old cowboys of the Panhandle be formed and annual meetings held. Vas Stickley of Canadian was elected the first president; A. H. Elliston of Hereford, vice-president, and Miss Laura Hamner of Claude, secretary. These officers will select the date and place of the 1923 meeting.

Miss Hamner then took charge and called out each old-timer by name, introduced him to the audience, asked him what his name was before he came to Texas, what his nickname was in the old days, etc. Many interesting bits of history cropped out during this quizzing match. For instance it developed that Jeff Thompson of Hereford had killed a mother buffalo and roped her two calves which afterwards formed the foundation for the famous Goodnight herd of buffaloes. Mr. Thompson had on exhibition the Winchester he used to kill the old buffalo, a single shot model of '72. It also developed that Uncle Walk Bradley used to be known as "Pistol," but when asked to explain Uncle Walk merely grinned broadly and gave out no information.

Former T-Anchor cowboys present were L. C. Fernwick, Clovis, N. M.; Sid Boykins, Clovis; Heb Smith, Lubbock; Rufe O'Keefe, Plainview; Tom Berry, Canadian; Vas Stickley, Canadian; John May, Higgins; John Isaacs, Canadian; Jim Wright, Tuttle, Okla.; Bert Ansley, Canadian; R. W. Baird, Hereford; R. E. and W. C. Baird, Canyon; Jeff D. Thompson, Hereford; Dave Thomas, Canyon; J. W. Dradly, Hereford; John Turner, Umbarger; L. Gough, Hereford; I. C. Jenkins and C. L. Gordon-Cummings, Canyon; Gus Lee, Roswell, N. M.; A. H. Webster and W. W. Wetsel, Amarillo.

Britisher Will Quit Because of War Policy

BY FLOYD GIBBONS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Sept. 17. — Sir John Bradbury, British reparation delegate, has left for London with the intention of handing Premier Lloyd George his resignation.

In case of a German default on Monday the British government will give France a more free hand in dealing with Germany in return for France's support of the Dardanelles. Sir John bitterly opposes this drastic change in the reparation policy.

Even if Belgium and Germany reach an agreement on Monday over the five monthly cash payments totaling 270,000,000 marks due Belgium this year, France will have British permission to take independent action of a milder character at the first sign of German default. A German default under this year's reparation schedule is only a question of two or three months at the utmost.

Germany was supposed to give Belgium a definite reply Friday but European statesmen do not work during week-ends, and therefore the time was extended to Monday.

Pacific-Southwest Review

By JAMES O. MOORE,

Vice-President Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank.

Jas. O. Moore

In order to advise the 31,000 banks of the United States and Canada of the change of name of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank to that of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings Bank, which change became effective at the close of business last Saturday, September 16, 1922, a letter was recently sent to each, enclosing a booklet descriptive of the Bank and the territory from which it takes its name. The booklet describes the institution formed by the recent merger, as follows:

"The urge of developments in the Pacific-Southwest has resulted in the necessity for the creation of a unified financial system working for the most orderly and rapid development of the entire district. As a result there has been brought about the merger of banks in more than a score of California cities from Fresno south, with total resources approximating $200,000,000.

The change of name of this bank to the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank was made in order that its title should properly describe the territory served.

"In creating this merger no effort was made to achieve 'bigness.' The plan has been to unify some of the best banks of the Pacific-Southwest occupying key positions in the various districts, in order that more complete financial assistance may be given the marketing of the various seasonal crops, and to provide the necessary financial machinery for the upbuilding of this territory upon balanced lines.

"In the area in which this merged institution will carry on its activities directly, the products—agricultural, mining and manufacturing—are harvested and marketed in such seasons that it will make substantially a continuous use of credits and flatten the curve of peak demands to the minimum. This gives a more economic use and co-ordinates the funds within the area to the advantage of all concerned.

"It was believed necessary to bring banking institutions together in such a way that the merged institutions would have the co-operative assistance of officers, directors and stockholders who have cared for the needs of their respective communities and have knowledge of their requirements. The mere installation of branches, or the absolute outright purchase of already existing banks would not accomplish the fundamental purpose. It is for this reason that the present method of co-operation has been worked out, a method by which none of the local control or knowledge is lost through the entering of any particular bank into this system. The old stockholders retain a proportionate interest in the new institution and, accordingly, each new locality has a proportionate interest in the whole operation.

"Not only this, but such a unified banking service is capable of providing agricultural producers, commercial concerns and industrial concerns with a picture of the trend of conditions throughout the entire district—a matter of material assistance in the determination of policies for future operations.

"Not only do these banks operate in the agricultural sections of the Pacific-Southwest in close touch with industrial producers but, located as they are, at the crossways of the commerce of this vast territory, with branches in both Long Beach and San Pedro, they are in a position to watch the water shipments of products entering and leaving this territory—a real service to all commercial enterprises.

"With the area producing, or capable of producing, practically every type of agricultural raw material, mineral or power known to man, it is the ideal point for industrial production. It already has huge consuming markets and these will increase with increasing exploitation of natural resources. It is the most favorably located section of the country for the fabrication of the goods for local consumption, for consumption in the eastern portion of the United States and for consumption in the Orient.

"The Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank operates as a single unit within this great area, in conjunction with The First National Bank of Los Angeles and the First Securities Company, and co-operating with leading banks in contiguous territory, works for the development of each component part of this great empire."

GOSSIP IN WASHINGTON

Daily Comings and Goings of Great and Near Great in National Capital

BY THE OBSERVER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Don't tell anyone, but it's true, Congress will be away from Washington by the middle of next week. It sounds absurd, yet it appears to be based on an honest-to-goodness estimate of the true situation by one who ought to know. That one is Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, majority whip of the Senate and the "old faithful" of the Republican organization on Capitol Hill.

It is Senator Curtis's job to keep Republicans here to be ready to vote on administration measures. It is his task to see that they are "paired" when necessity compels them to be absent. One of the most difficult tasks he has had met since the Harding administration came into power was to get enough Senators here to override the President's veto of the soldier bonus bill.

The President has no more faithful supporter in Congress than Senator Curtis, yet it is the Senator's duty to arrange "pairs" which will insure the defeat of the bonus bill, even though he personally will be found among those voting to override the President. Such is the way of politics.

Edward Bell, chief of the State department's division of current information, has been selected to fill the new post of counselor in the American Legation at Peking, created as the result of the growing importance of the diplomatic relations of the United States and China. Mr. Bell, who has been in Washington nearly a year, first as Far Eastern adviser to the American delegation to the Armament Conference and later attached to the State Department, will leave for Peking in about a month.

Representative Tincher of Kansas, co-author with Senator Capper of the grain futures bill, indulged in a vituperative denunciation of "price manipulators" at the Chicago grain exchange on the eve of House adoption of the conference report on the measure. Representative Chindblom, in whose Chicago district the grain exchange is located, drew laughter when he interrupted to announce he would offer no objection to Mr. Tincher's attack on his Chicago constitutents in view of the fact they were directed at certain Kansas voters. The House roared its appreciation when Mr. Tincher retorted:

"The only political rivalry in my district right now is a contest on who can shout loudest his attacks on the grain-price manipulators."

Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma is becoming one of the "mysteries" of the Senate, whether he thinks so or not. The Oklahoman is absent from Washington a great deal of late, yet he manages somehow to be here when important votes are to be taken. When the bonus bill passed the Senate, Mr. Owen was around the chamber, but did not vote. His "pair," Senator Edge of New Jersey, announced Mr. Owen was opposed to the bill. Yet the Senators without knowing the outcome of votes before they are taken could not tonight say with positiveness whether Mr. Owen could or could not be counted among those expected to vote to sustain a Presidential veto.

Senator Holm O. Bursum of New Mexico makes no pretensions to social distinction, yet he is one of the most-sought-after guests for the parties which Senators hold. At those parties Republicans and Democrats meet on common ground as "after-dark" friends, forgetting partisan squabbles of the day and hour. They provide more genuine enjoyment than a vaudeville show.

Mr. Bursum, a commanding political figure in the Southwest, refuses to "act up" to the conventionalities of the East. One of his closest personal friends in the Senate is Gen. T. Coleman Du Pont of Delaware, the richest man in that so-called "Millionaires' Club," yet Mr. Bursum never hesitates to remove his coat at a Du Pont dinner party when he is convinced the weather justifies his action.

RAILROAD AGENT SHOT TO DEATH

Strikers or Sympathizers Are Suspected

Victim Had Halted Many Wreck Plots

Demands of Returning Men May Make Trouble

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. — Three men, presumably railroad strikers or their sympathizers, today murdered A. Lange, a special agent of the Belt Railway. Two of the men were armed with shotguns and Lange was shot down without warning or any show whatever for his life.

He had been especially active in discovering and preventing plots to wreck trains and destroy rail property, through switches that had been tampered with, the wrecking of signal lights and other depredations and had been warned several days ago that he had incurred the murderous enmity of the strikers.

After the shooting the murderers ran away and have not yet been apprehended.

This was the outstanding act of violence during the day, although there were some sluggings, a few homes of workmen were stoned and the children of men at work were driven from the street by 'educational crews" of the strikers. Matters were unusually quiet at points outside of Chicago.

EXPECT SMALL RIOTS

Small riots that may readily grow to serious proportions are expected in various shops tomorrow when thousands of strikers will return to work. They are supposed to return under the terms of the Baltimore settlement, which has been signed by their officers, but it became evident Saturday that the men will not be bound by the terms which specifically provide that the men who remained loyal during the strike or the men taken on since are not to be disturbed.

It is also clear that the strikers intend to return as a victorious army, although it is plain the roads have won the costly strike. The men will insist upon the reinstatement of their former foremen, time and a half for overtime and for Sunday work and other concessions not specified in the agreement. They demand that their foremen be reimbursed for all time lost during the strike and if this demand is enforced, it is said, they will insist that all strikers' pay be made retroactive, dating back to the time of the walkout.

WOULD PROTECT MEN

The roads desire to protect the men who stood by them and the public, and kept trains moving, but it will be a difficult task if the unions succeed in having the Daugherty injunction dismissed or modified. If it is made permanent and the roads are able to name their own foremen, the oppression of workmen by the union radicals can be handled.

President Jewell of the striking shopcrafts started East today after he had announced Saturday that he would delay the trip indefinitely, owing to various contingencies that have arisen. It is thought he will endeavor to line up certain eastern roads for the Baltimore plan.

It is the general opinion that the final solution of the trouble will be the formation of shop unions as individual concerns on each railway system, patterned after the Pennsylvania plan and the scheme now in successful operation at the stockyards here. These shop unions are being rapidly formed on all western and southern roads.

HUNTSMAN KILLS MAN AS QUARRY

Shot Intended for Deer Reaches Deadly Mark in Human Victim

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 17.—Alfred B. Herring, aged 32 years, of Torrance, was shot to death today in Lytle Creek Canyon, thirty miles from here, when Richard Atkins of Pomona mistook him for a deer, while hunting.

Herring was shot above the right eye and as he rolled down an embankment on which he had been walking, Atkins rushed forward, thinking he had shot a deer. As Herring reached him, Atkins caught him in his arms, that being the first intimation that he had shot a man.

Atkins previously had shot two deer. He was not a member of the party in which Mr. Herring and William Brinckley, his brother-in-law, were hunting.

Mr. Herring died an hour and a half after being shot but did not regain consciousness. It required five hours to carry his body eight miles to the nearest settlement. Atkins, bordering on nervous collapse, accompanied the body, which now is in San Bernardino, where an inquest will be conducted in the morning.

ALLIANCE OF COAL MINERS DISCUSSED

BRITISH WORKERS' PROPOSAL AGREEABLE TO MEN ON THIS SIDE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) Sept. 17.—Plans are under way for the international alliance of coal miners of Great Britain and United States to aid each other in time of strike.

This was learned today when William Greene, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, announced at conference for the purpose of bringing about such a plan of co-operation had been suggested by the Miners' Federation of Great Britain and had been favorably received by the international officers of the American union.

Such an alliance, Mr. Greene explained would prevent the exportation of British mine coal to America to aid in breaking strikes here, and would also serve to prohibit the exportation of coal to Great Britain by American mines when the miners of that country were on strike. He said a joint conference of representatives of the miners' unions of both countries would probably be arranged in either London or America.

Members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor which yesterday concluded its sessions here, tonight expressed their approval of the international alliance and said it would probably hasten the end of coal strikes in either country, if carried out. They took the position that British-mined coal imported during the recent miners' strike had served to prolong the strike by augmenting the nonunion stock.

Mr. Greene, who also is the vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, said that the British Miners' Union had sent a contribution of $220,000 to the United Mine Workers of America to be used in financing the costs growing out of the recent nation-wide strike.

EPISCOPALIANS TO SPEED CONVENTION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND, Sept. 17.—Efforts to speed up the work of the Episcopal general convention during the coming week were being planned today. With Friday, a large to close next Friday, a large amount of unfinished business was said still to be on the calendar. Sessions beginning tomorrow will open half an hour earlier than heretofore.

Outdoor religious services were held in the Plaza blocks today by visiting Bishops and large crowds attended. Pulpits of the various Episcopal churches were occupied by visiting churchmen. A mass meeting tonight under auspices of the Department of Missions brought the day's activities to a close.

SHIPPING BOARD TO RECOVER FIVE SHIPS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Failure of the United States-Mexican Oil Corporation of New York to meet payments due on five tank steamers purchased from the government and upon which the Shipping Board holds preferred mortgages today prompted officials to begin legal proceedings for the recovery of the vessels.

According to S. H. B. Freund, newly appointed general counsel for the board, the purchase price of the five vessels amounted to $5,625,000, and the oil corporation is in default in the amount of $3,500,000. Thevessels libeled by the board are the Dilmae at Philadelphia, Darden at New Orleans and the Dartford, Pearldon and Gladysbe at Weehawken, N. J.

WAR HERO ON TRIAL FOR LIFE

Pennsylvania Physician is Accused of Shooting to Death His "Soul Mate"

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HUNTINGDON (Pa.) Sept. 17.—Sensational testimony is promised at the trial, starting here tomorrow, of Dr. Herbert J. Bryson, Argonne hero, charged with the murder of pretty 26-year-old Mrs. Helen Kirby Haines, who, for love of the physician, deserted her husband, a War Department chauffeur in Washington, to live as Mrs. Bryson on a little farm near the Pennsylvania village of Casville.

Mrs. Haines was shot to death April 8 last, and in her last words accused Dr. Bryson of the crime. He is 43 years old, and a member of a prominent Washington family. He was a major in the Forty-second (Rainbow) Division, American Expeditionary Forces, and according to the prosecuting authorities, confessed to shooting Mrs. Haines in the abdomen with his Army automatic following an early morning quarrel in their home.

In defense he will claim, it is said, that his mind was deranged from shell shock suffered in France. He was a respected bachelor physician in Washington before the war. In action in France, his hair turned from black to silver-gray in five weeks, and his attorneys will introduce testimony of experts to show that he is a "war neurotic."

Returning to Washington after the war, Dr. Bryson met Mrs. Haines in the War Risk Insurance Bureau, where she was a clerk. After three weeks' acquaintance she disappeared with Dr. Bryson. Following the shooting Dr. Bryson sought to save her life, hired a hearse from a local undertaker and with the dying woman inside the hearse, drove madly over mountain roads to Huntingdon for surgical aid. Mrs. Haines died late the following afternoon.

WIDENER SAYS ART NOT SOLD

Asserts "Descent from the Cross" is in His Elkins Park Home, Philadelphia

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17. — Joseph E. Widener, replied last night to the statement from Berlin said to have been made by Bachstitz, an art dealer, denying that the painting, "The Descent from the Cross" had been sold.

Mr. Widener said he has the famous Rembrandt in his Elkins Park home.

"I don't think it is necessary for me to comment on the Bachstitz statement or the possible reasons for making it at this time."

Mr. Widener went on: "Needless embarrassment might be caused. But you can say that I absolutely confirm the story of the purchase as o.k. and I think that ough to be sufficient."

Mr. Widener said that he himself brought the picture from Europe and placed it in the art gallery at Lynnewood Hall.

The reason for the Bachstitz denial that the great painting had been sold is left in the dark.

DOCTOR'S WIFE DEAD OF CRASH INJURIES

AUTO CROWDED FROM ROAD; WOMAN'S SON ALSO BADLY HURT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MONTEREY, Sept. 17. — Dr. Sarah Hatton McCauley, a widely known woman physician of Monterey and wife of Dr. Martin McCauley, died early today from injuries suffered last night when her automobile was crowded off the road on Carmel Hill while returning from a social gathering at the school she attended when a girl.

Her sons were with her and one of them suffered fractures of both arms.

Mrs. McCauley was generally known as "Dr. Sarah," and during the war she took charge of her husband's practice while he was overseas. The McCauleys recently remodeled the Pachoco residence, one of the historic buildings of early Monterey, into a sanatorium.

GERMANS TO REDUCE RED TAPE, EXPENSES

[Copyright, 1922, Public Ledger.]

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—What the revolution failed to do and two "economy ministers" never accomplished, namely, the elimination of red tape from government offices, will now be realized by the "board for simplification," just appointed by the Magistrates of Berlin.

After much hard thinking and repeated complaints on the part of the angry public, the town fathers finally discovered that "if documents are to be sent from one room to another it is unnecessary to send them through the entire building, and if two employees will do it is unnecessary to employ a small army."

It is hoped the government will follow suit and decrease its host of employees, who are a burden on the budget.

OIL FIRMS COMBINE INTO LARGE COMPANY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OKLAHOMA CITY (Okla.) Sept. 17.—Organization of the North American Oil Company, a $35,000,000 corporation, into which is merged the North American Oil and Refining Company, the Noco Petroleum Company and eight other companies, was announced here last night by C. F. Colhord, president of the new concern.

Capital stock of the company is 2,000,000 shares of par value. Book value of the new stock is given as $17.05 a share.

ANDERSON, FEUD VICTIM, FREED

ARIZONA JURY BELIEVES DEFENDANT ACTED IN SELF-DEFENSE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Sept. 17.—"Not guilty" was the verdict of the jury in the case against J. W. Anderson, charged with assault with intent to commit murder this afternoon, a night and day after submission. The prosecuting witness was W. W. Chrain, who, with his son, was attacked on the street south of the Courthouse while driving away from the Sheriff's office and who was wounded in the leg in the shadow of the jail.

Anderson testified he shot in self-defense, that he had left Texas to get away from Chrain, who had shot at him three times at Abilene and that he was assured that Chrain had followed him to Arizona to kill him. Chrain denied all evil intention and told he had come to Arizona to get a farm.

His pacific intentions were challenged by showing that in his car at the time of the shooting he had a veritable arsenal of weapons and by the fact that weapons were found in possession of both Chrain and son in the courtroom at the time of the trial of Anderson. The testimony showed that a vendetta had been transferred from Texas to Phoenix. Anderson's nephew, named Johnson, participated in the attack on the Chrains, but disappeared with his family immediately thereafter and has not been found.

No arrest has been made in connection with the Dernier death, which now appears definitely established as resulting from violence and not from accidental drowning. There now is belief that a woman was concerned in the events that led up to strangling of the victim. Dernier appears to have been held down from behind by a strong man, who choked him to death and then, loading the body in Dernier's auto, dumped it into the Arizona canal thereafter leaving the machine near the bank, with all clothing within, to indicate drowning.

The actual killing might have been miles distant. There has been cremation of the remains and the ashes will be taken by a cousin, Miss Edna F. Dernier, of Los Angeles, to Spokane, the home of Dernier's mother and sister.

COUPLE RECONCILED, JAILED RIVAL FREED

NABBED ON HUSBAND'S CHARGE, MAN RELEASED AS QUARREL ENDS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. — Clearing skies in the family troubles of Frank Kaper, wealthy Utah banker, and his wife, Johanna, appeared in the offing today with the announcement that the estranged couple had agreed to return home together and forgive and forget.

Kaper caused the arrest on Saturday on statutory charges of his wife and Carl Zimmer, when he found them in an apartment.

Attorney Eugene McCarey, representing Kaper, said the charges will be dropped in view of the reconciliation. Kaper's story was that Zimmer, despite receiving from Kaper a $1000 "bonus" and an automobile on promise of ceasing attentions to Mrs. Kaper, had lured her to Chicago. Zimmer, in his cell at the detective bureau, retorted that Kaper had neglected his wife in favor of a Mrs. Marie Tinmerman, and that Mrs. Kaper loves him instead of her husband.

CHANGE MADE IN [illegible] ON EIGHT-HOUR [illegible]

SEAMEN AND RAILWAY [illegible] REQUIRED TO PUT [illegible] TIME AT WORK

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—A vital change in the French eight-hour law, demanding that seamen and railroad men work eight effective hours instead of merely eight hours on duty, became effective today by ministerial decree.

A partial strike of French seamen, tug-boat men, and railroad men for twenty-three hours [illegible] which missed the legal point, [illegible] tion of a strike by only a small minority, only a protest against the tremendously important decree. Many railway men are grumbling but not likely to strike.

At Marseilles, Bordeaux, Le Havre the strike was on, but many smaller ports the movement continued working. Ships of [illegible] not affected. This change in the law may pave a way to similar changes demanding eight hours of labor in other trades.

The new decree provides a maximum of twelve hours [illegible] with a maximum of eight hours work.

MONTANA SUPREME COURT JUDGE [illegible]

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HELENA (Mont.) Sept. [illegible] Chief Justice Theodore Brantly of the Montana Supreme Court died last night after a lingering illness.

Theodore Brantly was born in Wilson county, Tenn., February 22, 1851.

He ascended the Supreme bench in 1898. His widow, two sons and a daughter survive.

DYE INTERESTS CONTINUE FIGHT

Manufacturers Undaunted by Blow at Embargo

Vote to Extend Coal-Tar Ban May Win

Flaw in Administering Duties Stressed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Although defeated thus far at every turn, the dye and chemical manufacturers have not yet abandoned hope of obtaining Congressional action for a continuation of the present embargo and licensing system applying on imports of coal-tar products. Backed by a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury [illegible] declaring that the American dye duties in the Fordney tariff bill cannot be enforced without elaborate administrative preparations, the manufacturers are hopeful of obtaining favorable action on the Smith-Tilson resolution introduced yesterday extending the embargo for three months.

The House Ways and Means committee will consider the resolution tomorrow and is expected to report it favorably. The House is to take action on Tuesday and the Senate immediately afterward, if the latter branch is willing to agree to it.

Supporters of the resolution are stressing the inability of customs officials to set up machinery for immediate enforcement of provisions requiring duties on dyes and coal-tar chemicals to be based on the wholesale price of similar competitive American products, the real significance of the move seems to be that the fight for the continuation of the embargo will be renewed at the December session.

DELAY EXPECTED

The proposed three months' extension would carry the embargo to about Christmas time. Between now and December 4, when Congress convenes, in discussion and debate on the expiration of the embargo, a new attempt will be made to enact legislation extending it for another year, with authority to the President to continue it for a longer period.

The leading opponents of the dye embargo in the Senate and House have been sounded out on the question of the adoption of the three months' extension resolution. Senator King, Utah, Democrat, who has fought the embargo, informed the sponsors of the resolution that he might offer no opposition if the advocates of an embargo would concede their defeat and agree not to renew their demands for legislation at the regular session. Such a promise, it is understood, was not forthcoming.

Senator King said today that he believed the customs officials could administer the dye duties without any more difficulty than invariably is attendant upon the passage of legislation of this character. He declared that employees of the War Trade Board section of the Treasury Department, which administers the present Dye and Chemical Control Act, are seeking to perpetuate themselves in office.

DIFFICULTY CONCEDED

It is generally conceded that there are great administrative difficulties involved in the dye and chemical duties.

The duties applying to the two paragraphs containing intermediates and finished coal-tar products are on the American valuation basis, while ad valorem duties in the remainder of the bill are on the foreign basis. It is provided that duties on the coal-tar products shall be based upon the American selling price of any similar competitive article manufactured or produced in the United States. It is further provided that "any coal-tar products provided for in this act shall be considered similar to or competitive with any imported coal-tar product, which accomplishes results substantially equal to those accomplished by the domestic product when used in substantially the same manner."

RECLAMATION COSTS FLAYED

Engineer Bitterly Attacks Maintenance Figures

Cites Them in Opposition to Ford Proposal

Avers Deceit in Presenting Power Dam Facts

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—One of the most scathing attacks on the high cost of maintenance of projects of the United States reclamation service is contained in a statement made by J. H. Lovering, a Los Angeles engineer, filed with the Senate Committee of Agriculture in opposition to the acceptance of the offer of Henry Ford to take over the Muscle Shoals power project.

Mr. Lovering attacks the record of the reclamation service in the cost of maintenance of their projects and challenges of their the facts and figures which have been presented in the hearings. All of this is a hard blow for the political schemes of Congressman Swing and Senator Johnson, who are trying to get legislation through Congress to spend $70,000,000 on the Colorado in attempting to build in all-American canal across Imperial Valley on reclamation service plans.

Mr. Lovering in discussing the history and sorrows of the Laguna dam says in his statement filed with the Senate committee and now in print:

"Laguna dam was built and is operated by the reclamation service. It is a concrete masonry spillway structure, located across the Colorado River above Yuma, Ariz. The maximum height is nineteen feet; length of crest 4720 feet. Its minimum width is more than 200 feet, one-fifth as high and twice as wide as the Wilson dam.

"The construction contract was let on July 6, 1905, for $797,650, but owing to defects and schanges in the plans the contract price was raised to $1,129,135. Then came accidents and other delays incident to 'government engineering.' When the structure was finished in March 1909, it had cost $1,920,515.54 or almost 75 per cent more than the contract price, not an unusual result of government construction.

"It has been repaired and strengthened from time to time by the service and on June 30, 1920, they reported the permanent investment of the dam and headworks at $3,102,145.

"The farmers of the Yuma project were promised the government reclamation for $35 per acre. Their farms are now encumbered with a lien of $75 per acre and it is gradually necessary. Of this amount $30 per acre is a fair price for the reclamation work and the $45 should be charged to 'experience' with 'government experts.' Will the Muscle Shoals project be an exception to the rule?

"This dam has been referred to by Mr. Waldo on page 320 of the Senate committee hearings and he seems to have 'fixed up' this statement for the purpose of deceiving those members of Congress who have not examined into the actual conditions."

DIRIGIBLE COMPLETES LONG TRIP

Great Airship Narrowly Misses Disaster on Ozark Mountain Peak

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Sept. 17. Completing the longest leg of its transcontinental flight and successfully combatting the roughest weather encountered since leaving Langley Field on the 14th inst., the United States Army dirigible C-2 landed at Brooks' Field here at 1:45 p.m. this afternoon, having covered 850 miles from St. Louis in sixteen hours and twenty minutes.

An error of altitude on the map used for the flight in respect to one of the peaks of the Ozark Mountains came near causing disaster last night, according to Maj. H. A. Strauss, commander of the C-2. The peak was higher than indicated and the C-2, speeding through darkness, was almost upon it before it was sighted. A sharp upward tilt of the dirigible cleared the peak.

As the six officers and men who comprise the C-2's crew climbed out of its car at Brooks' Filed this afternoon, their faces somewhat drawn and haggard, they expressed a feeling of relief that the longest stretch of their transcontinental journey had been finished without accident.

The C-2 will remain at least twenty-four hours for thorough inspection.

Early this morning the C-2 diverted from its direct course long enough to visit Dallas and Fort Worth. West of San Antonio, it is expected that the line of the Southern Pacific will be taken as a guide.

IRELAND TO DEBATE LEAGUE MEMBERSHIP

EXPECTED PARLIAMENT WILL DECIDE TO ASK ADMISSION

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DUBLIN, Sept. 17. — Parliament will discuss tomorrow whether Ireland should join the League of Nations and the debate will probably close with a decision to ask for membership. Admission, however, will likely be withheld until Erin really dons its Free State garb.

Michael MacWhite, who has been in Geneva for several months for the provisional government, is here to explain what he has done and what the attitude of the League officials is toward Ireland.

This parliament was selected to write an Irish constitution and must complete this work by December 6. It is also empowered to deal with urgent questions of national importance. It has spent five days on various questions and still is not finished, but the discussions have cleared the atmosphere and the members will take up the constitution in a better spirit, probably late this week.

NORTHCLIFFE PAPERS BEING DISPOSED OF

COURTS TUESDAY TO CONFIRM SALE OF SHEETS TO LORD ROTHERMERE

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Lord Riddell's News of the World announces that Tuesday next application will be made to the courts to confirm the sale to Lord Rothermere of Lord Northcliffe's interest in the Daily Mail, Evening News and Weekly Dispatch.

It is also stated that John Walters has received an option from the administrator of Lord Northcliffe's estate to repurchase the Northcliffe interest in the London Times. Mr. Walters is a representative of the family formerly owning the Times and he had an agreement for an option to repurchase the interest with Lord Northcliffe. It is not supposed that he desires to edit the paper himself, but that he wishes to have a vote in its disposal so it will not be diverted from its present standard and policy.

Heal of one of humanity's greatest troubles by daily use of Kellogg's Bran!

Medical authorities generally agree that 9 out of 10 men and women and old age start in the intestinal tract through CONSTIPATION—that every man, woman and child in this nation can permanently relieve themselves permanently relieve themselves by regular use of BRAN—Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled! Kellogg's Bran is nature's own food, the eliminative tract to function properly! Bran sweeps and purifies without irritation or discomfort! So wonderful is its work for health that you can tell by the breath who is run down, who is constipated and poisoned by constipation, give them Kellogg's Bran three times a day and eliminate trouble permanently!

Kellogg's Bran is not a patent medicine—it is nature's food. Ask your grocer what the name Kellogg's Bran signifies and what it means that you will become normal in the eliminative tract, and in other organs, and escape the dangers that are traceable directly to constipation! Your physician will indorse Bran for constipation.

Do not neglect Kellogg's Bran another day. Every member of your family should eat Bran regularly—at least two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases, eat it with each meal. It does great work for children, making them grow big and strong, and safeguards their health.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is deliciously flavored. Eat it as an appetizing cereal or sprinkle it over your favorite cereal. Kellogg's Bran makes the tastiest gems, raisin bread, pancakes—and endless other good things—and it is working for health all the time! Buy Kellogg's Bran at all grocers!

RAIL SHOP PLAN STRIKES SHOALS

Men Seeking to Alter Pact, Roads Declare

Returning Workers Injecting New Demands

Independent Lines Announce Conditions Good

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—With the shopmen's peace plan threatened by outbreaks due apparently to misunderstandings and with the New York Central announcing the failure of its efforts to reach an agreement with the strikers, roads not participating in the Baltimore negotiations reported a rapid return to normal operation of their shops tonight.

Of the larger lines mentioned in connection with the memorandum of agreement adopted by the shopcrafts' general policy committee of ninety here Tuesday, with the object of ending the country-wide strike through separate agreements with individual roads, the Rock Island and the New York Central had definitely announced the failure of efforts to reach a final agreement and conferences of the Southern with union leaders had been no more successful as the strike entered on its twelfth week.

In the case of the New York Central, a statement was issued by the road expressing willingness to fulfill the memorandum of agreement reached at Baltimore, but it was asserted representatives of the shopcrafts' "attempted to inject questions not mentioned in the text and clearly outside the agreement, insisting tha tthese matters be included."

UNIONISTS MAKE DEMANDS

The same misunderstanding resulted in disturbances yesterday when strikers began to return to work here in the shops of the Northwestern and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul. In some cases the men were reported to have demanded that nonunion workers be discharged and in others that their striking foremen be reinstated. Today officials of the Northwestern announced that they expected 12,000 of the strikers to return to work tomorrow morning. More than 15,000 men were expected back on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

At the same time railway executives who have refused to accept the Baltimore plan reiterated that their recruiting full shop forces and that the settlement talk had resulted in large numbers of men returning to work independently of any action taken by the union leaders. Many of the non-settlement roads were said to have forces ranging from 75 to 100 per cent normal. These have formed new organizations to supplant the striking shopcrafts.

ANNOUNCE AGREEMENTS

Among the roads which have announced agreements with their shop men independently of the union are the Santa Fe, Burlington, Illinois Central and the Chicago and Alton.

W. G. Bierd, one of the two receivers of the Alton, issued a statement formally announcing terms under which the striking employees had been invited to return to work. It expressly stipulated that they shall return as "new employees."

Mr. Jewell departed early tonight for New York, where he said he would enter into conference with the New York Central next Tuesday in expectation of reaching a speedy agreement under the terms of the Baltimore plan.

According to the union leaders, the men on the following roads will return to work tomorrow: The Chicago and Northwestern, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Seaboard Air Line and the Green Bay and Western.

Noticias de Washington

WASHINGTON, Sbre. 17.—Está incierto el Presidente Harding acerca de si convocará al Congreso a sesión extraordinaria inmediatamente después de las elecciones de Noviembre para que se ocupe en el proyecto de ley de la administración sobre subsidio a buques, o esperará la sesión ordinaria. Crece en el medio oeste el sentimiento en favor del subsidio, según noticias.

La Comisión de Medios y Arbitrios aprobará, segun se espera, la resolución de conceder un plazo de tres meses en el asunto del embargo de tintes y del plan de los fabricantes de tintes y reactivos, a fin de renovar en Diciembre la lucha para obtener legislación permanente.

Se espera en esta semana la clausura del Congreso. Uno de los actos finales del perido será la tentativa de votar el proyecto de ley del plus del soldado, contra el probable veto del Presidente.

Julius H. Barnes, presidente de la Cámara de Comercio de los Estados Unidos, en carta a las organizaciones miembros de ella propone una campaña para estabilizar la situación del carbon.

Tuvieron todo éxito, según asegura el Ministro de la Guerra Weeks, los primeros campos de instrucción militar de verano, que funcionaron de acuerdo con la ley de reorganización del ejército.

Se acusa al Diputado republicano McKenzie, de Illinois, de que está demorando la resolución del proyecto de ley que concede privilegios de retiro a los oficiales de emergencia de la guerra mundial.

Los Barreteros en Tenaz Carrera

JACKSON, Sbre. 17.—En los momentos en que el pueble nocturno de barreteros, que había pasado la noche perforando con frenesí hacia la tumba humana de la mina Argonaut, salía del trabajo hoy al rayar el alba, sufrió la esperanza una conmoción a manos de W. E. Downs, ingeniero subterráneo de la mina Kennedy, quien anunció el resultado del primer levantamiento exacto que se ha hecho desde que comenzaron las labores de salvamento. Segun el Sr. Downs, que ha empleado los aparatos más exactos, no se hayan los rescatadores tan cerca como se suponía de los mineros enterrados. Declaró que quedaban por remover treinta pies de roca virgen antes de llegar a los infortunados trabajadores, lo que arroja varios pies más de lo que el pueblo nocturno creía que faltaba de perforación. Se alargará, pues, por otro día quizá, el estado de cruel expectación que ha durado cerca de tres semanas.

MYSTERY WOMAN IS DISCOVERED

and that of my family. They are not going to question me."

Miss Agnes Storey, organist at the church, told newspaper men that a servant in the Hall home told her that Mrs. Hall left the house much agitated over her husband's failure to come home at about 2 o'clock Friday morning.

According to Miss Storey, the servant said that Mrs. Hall said before leaving the house:

"He must be dead."

Mrs. Hall is well known in New Brunswick as an expert trapshooter, Detective Totten told reporters.

Still unable to settle upon a motive for the dual killing, the investigating authorities turned their chief attention upon Mrs. Hall's admission and the possibilities it offers. So far the detectives have been able to find no basis for the murder except jealousy.

HUSBAND TRUSTED WIFE

James Mills was again questioned. He reiterated that he had implicit faith in his wife, that he knew she went on frequent errands of mercy with the pastor, and that some gossips had been busy concerning their associations, but he had paid no heed.

Mills, never suspecting his wife was going to keep a tryst with her pastor, went to bed about 9 p.m., leaving his daughter Charlotte and his son Don in the dining room.

It is the intention of the authorities to question the daughter Charlotte and see what light she can throw upon her father's movements on Thursday night, although the prosecutor does not expect to develop anything tangible along this line.

AUTOPSY PERFORMED

An autopsy was performed today on Mrs. Mills's body by County Physician William H. Long of Somerset county. He found death was due to a single bullet wound through the center of the forehead, fired apparently at close range. The bullet passed out back of the right ear and was fired from in front, he said, instead of from the rear, as was at first supposed.

Mr. Hall was shot twice. Blood coagulation indicates he was shot first in the back of the neck, and then above the right ear. One empty shell from a .32 caliber revolver was near the bodies, but no revolver was found. The absence of the weapon, the arrangement of the bodies, and the nature of the bullet wounds convinced the investigators a suicide compact was out of the question.

Mrs. Hall is almost prostrated and declines to see reporters. The church town of New Brunswick is stirred to a high pitch, both by the tragedy and the revelation of the love trysts between the pastor and one of his flock.

GRAND JURY RECONVENES FOR HERRIN

Thirty More Indictments Expected from Officials Investigating Crime

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MARION (Ill.) Sept. 17.—Barring unforeseen developments, the Herrin massacre grand jury which reconvenes Monday morning will complete its work this week with about thirty more indictments. Whether the jury will make recommendation is still in doubt, but no censuring of county by State officials is now expected.

During the week's recess the officials have been working diligently preparing their evidence and their calls for witnesses so that no time would be lost on any day.

Twenty-six of the indicted men have been placed in jail, leaving twelve at liberty. A few are known to have fled from the country before the special grand jury convened. The prisoners have all been warned not to talk about the case even among themselves giving rise to the supposition that the defense attorneys fear a detective has been indicted so as to obtain evidence.

FAVORABLE WINDS CHECK FOREST FIRE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN JOSE, Sept. 17.—Fire which started on the Loma Prieta ridge in the Santa Cruz Mountains several weeks ago, and Friday theatened to sweep down over Wrights and adjacent towns, was yesterday reported as not alarming, due to favorable winds and efforts of a crew of almost a hundred fire fighters.

Another blaze still burns in the Sulphur Springs timber tract of the Hihn Company of Santa Cruz, where another crew of seventy-five men is at work.

STABBED BY NEURITIS!

Many people suffer attacks by this archfiend, commonly called "nerve inflammation." The first warning is usually a sharp, stabbing pain, which may "come and go" or hurt constantly. You may feel it in the shoulder, neck, forearm, small of the back or down thigh and leg to the heel. It is sometimes mistaken for sciatica, rheumatism or neuralgia, which troubles often do end up in neuritis.

No matter where you have nerve pains, or what caused them, you can get quick relief without taking a few bromides, narcotics, or other dope. Just take two Tyzmol Tablets in hot water, and in a few minutes the pain will be gone.

Tyzmol Tablets have a soothing, healing effect upon the diseased nerves, gradually helping to restore them to healthy condition.

Don't suffer any longer. Price $1 at any leading druggist. Tyzmol Company, Mfg., Chemists, 400 Sutter St., San Francisco, Cal.—[Advertisement.

PRIMARY FIGHTS IN WEST OVER

Republican Grip on Senate Remains Unbroken

Democrats Hope to Regain Control of House

Candidates Now Begin Final Election Struggle

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The last of the primaries in the West for the nomination of candidates for United States Senators and Representatives have been held and the election campaign is on. With only one-third of the Senate to be elected, the Republicans, who now have a majority of twenty-two, are assured of continued control of that body in the next Congress, though possibly by a reduced majority, and the principal question the election will answer is whether the Republicans are to retain control of the House also.

The Harding landslide of 1920 gave the Republicans the unusual and wholly abnormal majority of 169 in the House, too unwieldy and unmanageable a majority, say the party leaders, who hold that about fifty makes the tidiest, handiest margin for all practical purposes.

Close to 100 districts, normally Democratic in the last decade, were swept into the Republican column by the Harding avalanche and nearly all of these are expected to revert back in the November election this year.

WANT SMALL MAJORITY

Also they are prepared to lose a considerable number of additional districts which they generally carry by a comparatively small plurality. Republican leaders would be happy to find they had a majority of twenty or thirty votes, or even less if all those elected as Republicans could be depended upon to stay on the reservation on the important roll calls or not go over to the Democrats when most needed.

The Democrats are supremely confident of regaining control of the House this year, all because of the discontent in the country that has been manifested in strikes, in ebullitions of radicalism and disparagement of the Harding administration and of the Republican Congress.

"Yes, I should not be surprised if we were to lose the House," said one eminent Republican leader in assessing the situation. "Things do look a bit squally, but I don't believe we are licked yet. We have bumper crops, worth $1,500,000,000 or more than last year's crops; business has begun to boom and was being checked only by the coal and rail strikes. If the administration can get the crops and coal moving, we should be tasting prosperity in October.

PEOPLE GROUCHY

"Give us a few weeks of prosperity and you will be surprised how many people will forget the grouches on the party in power they always contract during hard times."

If the Democrats carry the House the G.O.P. will be up to the neck in trouble for the next two years, if not longer. The Democratic aim will be to discredit the Republican regime, and to that end the Democrats will thwart the completion of the Harding legislative program and otherwise annoy and embarrass the Executive.

GOMPERS TO STUMP COUNTRY IN FALL

WILL DEMAND IMPEACHMENT OF DAUGHERTY AND JUDGE WILKERSON

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) Sept. 17.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, tonight announced he will stump the country in the fall election campaign on behalf of candidates favorable to organized labor.

President Gompers said he expected to set forth before the American public the reason why Attorney-General Daugherty and Federal Judge Wilkerson of Chicago should be immediately impeached. He said he expected to have the opportunity to appear before the House Judiciary Committee at Washington and give his testimony.

"American labor's nonpartisan program is to be faithfully carried out," said Mr. Gompers. "I expect to stump over a large area this fall on behalf of the men who are acceptable to our program. I believe the time is opportune for union labor to exert itself politically this fall and oust its enemies from the halls of Congress."

HALF OF EARNINGS GO FOR RAIL SALARIES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Compilations completed by the Bureau of Railway Economics show that out of every dollar of gross operating revenue in 1921, the railroads paid out 46.9 cents for salaries and wages as against 55.4 cents in 1920, 51.4 cents in 1919, 49.8 cents in 1918, 40.3 cents in 1917, and 38 cents in 1916.

The analysis made from the bureau shows a steady increase in the labor bill from 1916, when the total compensation was $1,365,776,046 to 1920, when it reached the peak of $3,424,676,109. It dropped to $2,585,329,497 in 1921. In 1917 the wage and salary bill was $1,617,716,392. In the first year of Federal control of the railroads the labor cost increased to $2,420,846,416 and in 1919, the second year of Federal operation to $3,644,109,442.

CAR TOTAL LOSS AS TWO GARAGES BURN

Fire which swept through two private garages in the Wilshire district late yesterday caused a damage amounting to $2500, according to police reports. A garage belonging to S. P. Eerer, 838½ South Normandie avenue, was destroyed. An automobile and a bicycle left inside were total loses. Two automobiles were slightly damaged, when the fire from the Eerer garage ignited a garage belonging to J. A. Prinsen, 837 South Mariposa street.

SEEK DELAY IN HAMMER DEATH CASE

Mrs. Phillips to Appear in Court Today Minus Defense Attorneys

When Clara Phillips, accused of beating Mrs. Alberta Meadows to death with a hammer last July, appears in Department Twelve of the Superior Court for trial this morning she will go without an attorney, according to information available last night.

In the courtroom, however, will be Public Defender Aggeler and Deputy Public Defender Vercoe. They will be there on other cases, it was said last night, but they also will be ready to take charge of Mrs. Phillips's defense if the court so instructs them on the request of Mrs. Phillips. This was admitted last night by Mr. Vercoe, who says Mrs. Phillips has requested them to defend her, but that they will demand a continuance if they are to proceed with the case. This was taken to mean last night that the actual trial of the asserted hammer murderess will be continued this morning.

When asked whether Public Defender Aggeler would defend Mrs. Phillips, her husband, the man who first described the hammer murder to Sheriff Traeger and his deputies, said that he did not know. He later said that he did not care to say whether or not Mrs. Phillips would appear without counsel and whether or not she would ask for a continuance.

Both Mrs. Phillips and her husband have been in conference with the defender several times recently. Deputy Public Defender Vercoe said last night that the last word that he had from Mr. and Mrs. Phillips led him to believe that the Public Defender's office would have charge of the accused murderess' case.

WILDE STORY WOULD MAKE HIM THAT WAY

"A Woman of No Importance" is of none! They've let John Smith, the scenario writer's apprentice, write Oscar Wilde for the screen!

This picture, at Clune's Broadway, retains its original name, at least. It is called "A Woman of No Importance." The apprentice took a shot at those low-down guys who seduce women right off the bat with this sub-title, following the picture of Rachel.—"Is this or is any woman of no importance?" I'll tell you, it makes the gallery sit up and bawl its head off!

There are doubtless a good many reasons why it is a good thing that Oscar Wilde is dead, and one of them is this picture.

Wilde was a clever plot builder, that is, his stories were logical and actable and well put together—yet stripped of his brilliant epigrams, his irony, his delicate satire, his gay limning of character, his stories were just a bit commonplace.

So what the apprentice at once did was to strip said story. He lugs in a few epigrams, to be sure, just as a sort of trade-mark, but the story is all about the ruined girl, and the meeting of the mother with her ruiner years afterward, and how she didn't want her boy to go away with his father said ruiner.

The apprentice also took quite seriously the good natured satire of Wilde on American jingoism as voiced by the young enthusiasm of the American girl!

Also the apprentice was clumsy at tinkering up the holes in Wilde's original play. He made Rachel become a housekeeper, for no reason we could discover, and yet had her, a few years later, the honored guest of the aristocracy! How come?

The play is miscast. There is absolutely no depth or intensity to Fay Compton's Rachel, a part that should have been played by Mary Alden or Rosemary Theby. Also, she may have lived a retired life, this Rachel, but she certainly took Vogue and had a good corsetier and hairdresser.

The man who played the son looked older than his mother! And the man who played Harford must have contracted the epigram disorder late in life, because he seemed just a plain dub most of the time.

I looked in vain for the clever wickedness of Mrs. Allonby, the smug iteration of the bromidic Mrs. Stutfield, the complaisance of the Bishop.

Harold Lloyd relieves the dullness of the bill by playing "The City Slicker."

DRAMATIC SOPRANO PLEASES AUDITORS

A large audience attended the Grauman "discovery concert" yesterday, despite the intense heat and each number was followed by gratifying plaudits.

Several especially interesting artists made their appearance. Among these was Mme. Herman Pollitz, dramatic soprano, whose voice is sweet and clear. Her rendition of the familiar air from "Madame Butterfly," proved her dramatic perception. For encore she gave Sanderson's "Until."

Claime Overton is a finished violinist and his playing is always an addition to a program. His first number was Kreisler's arrangement of Chopin's "Mazurka," his second, "Perpetuum Mobile," by Novacek, both evoking genuine admiration.

Another singer to win applause was Riccaido Monteli, dramatic baritone, a new arrival in Los Angeles. He recently arrived from New Orleans where he was a member of the grand opera company for several seasons. His voice possesses dramatic fire which had full play in his selections, "Siri Tu" from Verdi's "Masked Ball," and Kennedy's "Barber of Turin."

Miss Ann Thompson, pianist, revealed poetic feeling. She offered "Valse Brilliante," by Mana Zucca, and "Juba," by Dett.

The string quartet brought out the beauty in Pierne's "Serenade," and Boccherini's "Minuet." M. Scamperino, trumpet soloist, offered "For All Eternity?" and "My Old Kentucky Home" in imitation of a brass quartet. Alice Doughty, mezzo soprano, and tiny Constance Cello, in a toe dance, pleased, while Henry Murtaph's organ solos were an important feature.

Pen Women to Meet

COX GOES TO GERMAN AID

Former Presidential Aspirant Gives Million Marks to Red Cross

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—The German Red Cross has announced the donation of a million marks by former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, Democratic candidate for President of the United States in the last election. The money is to be principally used in aiding German students.

MARDI GRAS STAGED AT CONEY OVER

Shooting Fray Mars End of Festival at New York Amusement Park

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The nineteenth annual Coney Island Mardi Gras came to a close tonight when King Joseph E. Howard and Queen Ethelyn Clark gave the royal ball at Steeplechase Park. The week's celebration was declared by business and concession men of the island to have been the most successful in the history of the resort, the record breaking crowds that attended nightly enabling them to recoup some of the losses they sustained because of bad weather during the season. Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of the former Governor, awarded the prizes won in the baby parade Saturday afternoon at Luna Park this afternoon.

A shooting, a stabbing, free-for-all fights, numerous cases of intoxication and several accidents occurred before daylight this morning when a crowd of 100,000 persons who remained at the island all Saturday night became disorderly.

Samuel Chestner, 28, a chauffeur of Brooklyn, drove four men to the island at 4 o'clock this morning. When they got out at Surf avenue and West Thirty-first street an argument started and one of the men fired a revolver, the bullet striking Chestner in the chest. He is recovering at the Coney Island Hospital.

Harry French, 24, living in a bungalow on Hahn's Walk, heard the shooting and when he stepped out to investigate one of the men stabbed him in the abdomen and left hand. He is in a serious condition at the Coney Island Hospital. The police were unable to find the men who did the shooting and stabbing.

Safe Crackers Are Frightened Away by Man

An attempt to crack the safe in the offices of Weinstock-Nichols Company, 1211 South Olive street, automobile accessory house, was thwarted last night by the timely entry of C. M. Simmons, sales manager, and Mrs. Simmons, according to police reports. Gaining entrance through a side window, the safe crackers had begun operations on the safe with a sledge and crowbar. While neither Simmons nor his wife heard the bandits, they found the lock broken from the back door and other signs of hasty exit. Simmons had returned to the store unexpectedly to do some night work.

Aged Woman Badly Hurt in Collision

Injuries that may result in her death were received by Mrs. Lucinda Totten, aged 70 years, 3545 Malabar street, when an automobile in which she and her husband were riding crashed into another machine on the Coyote Pass road late yesterday, and, after turning over twice, landed in a ditch.

Mrs. Totten's shoulder was fractured, it was declared by Dr. Saverein, when she was brought to the Receiving Hospital. She also suffered from shock, which, together with her advanced age, made her condition serious.

MARKETING ABROAD

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Goldwyn distributing corporation has just closed contracts for the placing of its pictures in a number of foreign countries including Japan, through the Yanuma company; Cuba, through the Liberty Film company of Cuba; Parto Rico, through the Selection Film company, and the Australasian market through Australasian Films, represented by Millard Johnson. Among the productions which will be sent to the foreign market are "The Old Nest," Dangerous Curve Aheads," "Ace of Hearts," "Poverty of Riches," "A Poor Relation," Doubling For Romeo," "The Man From Lost River," "Grand Larceny," "His Back Against The Wall," "Watch Your Step," "Come On Over," "Yellow Men and Gold," "When Romance Rides," "The Wall Flower" and "The Glorious Fool."

"REAR CAR" RAMBLES ALONG

Still one of the biggest hits in the comedy-drama line ever offered on a local stage, "The Rear Car," started its seventh week yesterday at the Majestic. The Edward E. Rose play, with its tinge of mystery and its amusing situations, has been drawing practically capacity. Nana Bryant, Hope Drown, Dudley Ayres, Cliff Thompson and the rest of the Wilkes players are acting as if they like their parts, and their ready command of the dramatic and comedy situations is duly imparted to the audience. Manager Corper has replaced one member of the company, having signed up a new monkey. Jocko, even at its first performance, proved letter perfect, and has its predecessor beaten a mile for jungle histrionic honors!

"TURK ARMY TOO STRONG TO CHECK"

Von Sanders, Commander of Moslems in 1918, Declares Britain Powerless

BY GEN. LIMAN VON SANDERS, Commander Turkish Army in 1918
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—The Turkish army as developed by Mustapha Kemal is so strong the British could not hold Constantinople against it if they wanted to. Kemal's army is a long way from Constantinople now, it will take four weeks to get there, but it is on its way. The main army was not sed at Smyrna, which was taken with cavalry.

The main army is composed of about 300,000 men, no pick-up bunch of volunteers, although it has the initiative and fighting qualities of good volunteers. It is excellently armed, has plenty of ammunition and can get more.

It is chiefly Turkish, but Arabs, Egyptians and even Indians are in it. Accoutrements were mostly supplied by the Bolshevists. They gave Kemal the modern French and British material sent to Wrangel and abandoned in the Crimea. In addition they have been getting all the material they wanted from France and Italy. They landed at Adalia on the coast of Asia Minor and taken by Kemal's motor trucks to the interior.

As an army fights on its stomach and munitions Kemal has nothing to worry about. The German war depots in Asia Minor left, at the time when commanded the armies there, are still there and available for Kemal. They contained artillery munitions and accoutrements in large quantities. The entente armies were never able to penetrate the country and destroy more than a small portion.

Furthermore all the people of the country back Kemal. I am also convinced the French have made Kemal every promise and his triumphal entry into Constantinople will be peaceful. The British know they could not hold it.

WILL INCREASE PACIFIC FLEET

Greatest Force Under One Flag Coming Here

New Ship Now Fitting Out at Newport News

California to be Displaced by West Virginia

The most powerful fighting force assembled under one flag will be based permanently at Los Angeles Harbor as the United States Pacific Fleet, with the completion of the superdreadnaught West Virginia, now fitting out at Newport News, Va. Assignment of the West Virginia to this Coast upon completion, as fleet flagship, was learned from an authoritative source aboard the flagship California yesterday.

Next January, it was announced, the superdreadnaught Maryland will arrive at the local base to become squadron flagship, relieving the New Mexico, at present carrying the flag of Vice-Admiral W. R. Shoemaker. With the arrival of the Maryland, now flagship of the Atlantic Fleet, there will be four complete battleship divisions in the Pacific Fleet, making it the largest and most powerful force afloat.

The California, it was said, will remain fleet flagship until the arrival of the West Virginia, which will be in about one year, according to present indications, she having been launched Nov. 19, 1921.

LARGE PERSONNEL

With the thirteen great fighting craft assembled under the flag of one Admiral, the battleship force alone of the Pacific Fleet will have a total displacement of 397,600 tons and will be capable of firing in a single broadside 307,200 pounds of steel destruction over a range of from fourteen to twenty miles.

Exclusive of destroyer force, air squadrons, submarine flotillas and auxiliaries, there will be approximately 18,500 men and 1100 officers on the dreadnaughts alone.

The tentative assignment of the dreadnaughts following the arrival of the Maryland next January will be, it was said, as follows:

California, fleet flagship, operates with Division 9.

DIVISION 9
Maryland (squadron flagship.)

DIVISION 8
Idaho.
Mississippi.
New Mexico (flagship.)

DIVISION 7
Arizona (flagship.)
Pennsylvania.
Oklahoma.

DIVISION 6
Nevada.
Texas.
New York (flagship.)

CALIFORNIA FLAGSHIP

Following the addition of the West Virginia to the fleet she will take over the flag of the commander-in-chief, the California going to Division 9 and becoming squadron flagship.

The West Virginia, now being fitted out as fleet flagship, is a sister craft of the California and Maryland, and will be the third United States ship completed mounting sixteen-inch guns as her main battery.

She is 624 feet in length over all, has a beam of ninety-seven feet and displaces 32,600 tons, with a thirty-one-foot draft. Her quadruple screws will be propelled by four General Electric turbines, delivering a total of 28,000 indicated horsepower.

For armament she will have eight sixteen-inch guns as her main battery and as secondary equipment, fourteen five-inch guns, four three-inch antiaircraft rifles, four six-pounders and two twenty-one-inch torpedo tubes.

In her complement will be sixty-five officers and 1424 men, exclusive of the staff of the commander-in-chief.

The keel of the West Virginia was laid April 12, 1920, at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company, where she is being constructed on a cost-plus basis.

PORT NOTES

Coming in from San Francisco on her maiden voyage to load 13,000 cases of Southern California canned fruits, the Pacific steamer Mississippi docked at pier A, Wilmington, yesterday morning. The vessel was twenty-four hours late in arriving from the north, having been delayed by heavy fogs.

Capt. George Simon, master of the Mississippi, a 12,000-ton craft of the French Line, is on his first visit to Los Angeles Harbor. The canned fruits are destined for Zurich, Switzerland, via Antwerp, Belgium. The Mississippi also has cargo for Havre, Bordeaux and Bremen.

One thousand drums and 7000 cases of oil were loaded into the round-the-world freighter Diana Dollar of the Robert Dollar Line at the harbor yesterday. The Diana Dollar came in from Genoa, Italy, via the Panama Canal, and sailed last night for the return via the Suez Canal. The case oil is consigned to Shanghai, China.

Two big British tankers of the Shell oil Company were to sail from the harbor before daylight this morning with about 180,000 barrels of fuel oil for unknown destinations. The vessels are the El Oso and the Radly, both on their first trips here. The ships will proceed to Balboa, Panama, for orders, which will probably direct them to the United Kingdom.

The American tanker Swiftstar of the Swiftcrew Oil Company's fleet, will dock at the Union Oil loading station this morning to begin loading a full cargo of oil for Fore River, Mass. The Swiftstar is the first vessel of the Swiftcrew fleet to call here for a cargo of oil.

Four thousand tons of cargo for Los Angeles consignees are thought to have escaped damage in the fire which ravaged the British freighter Roman Prince, in the Caribbean Sea, several days ago. The Roman Prince, operated by Furness, Withy & Co., is bound from Great Britain for Los Angeles Harbor. Several days ago S.O.S. calls were picked up at Panama, stating that the vessel was afire. Assistance was sent, but the fire had been extinguished in rapid order.

STUDENTS HOOT REGENTS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MANILA, Sept. 17.—Students and the alumni of the University of the Philippines are infuriated over the dismissal of Prof. Austin Craig, head of the history department for alleged prejudicial activities. The students hooted the regents and passed resolutions demanding the resignation of President Benton and all appointive regents on the grounds of incompetency and abuse of authority.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Sept. 17.—Heavy fog hanging over Puget Sound has delayed four city steamships due here today. If conditions moderate they will reach port tomorrow. Three of these vessels, the Japanese steamships Kaga Maru and Empress Maru, and the Norwegian steamship Hannah Nielsen, are reported sailing outside Cape Flattery waiting for the fog to lift. The fourth, the American Hawaiian liner Kentuckian, is anchored at Port Angeles.

With her starboard bow considerably damaged and listing slightly as the result of striking Kelp Reef, near Lime Kiln Point, in Haro Strait, Saturday morning, the auxiliary power schooner Anvil, owned by the Alaska Packers' Association, arrived here this afternoon and berthed at the Union Oil dock preparatory to being towed as soon as the extent of the damage is ascertained. Tenders and patches to the leaking bow of the Anvil were made at Port Angeles and she came to Seattle under her own power.

The British steamship Kilmaho, in the service of the Harrison Direct Line, is discharging a cargo of 1200 tons, including a large consignment of tin plate, from Swansea and ports in the United Kingdom and North European points via Vancouver, B. C. The steamship Lukuoka of the Alaska Steamship Company, which arrived at Port Angeles before noon today with 25,000 cases of canned salmon, from various Alaskan points, Capt. Thomas Johnson, commander, reported heavy fogs from Ketchikan south.

Advices reaching here this morning said the steamers Texan and Edward Luckenbach, both outward bound from Pacific ports for Seattle, are at anchor at Port Townsend awaiting the lifting of the heavy fog blanket over the Strait of Juan de Fuca. The Texan left here yesterday morning bound for Philadelphia direct. She has already been delayed more than thirty hours.

The O. S. K. liner Africa Maru is due Wednesday from all ports of call in the Orient, including her usual stop at Shanghai. Her cargo of silk, valued at nearly $4,000,000, this vessel also has about fifty cabin passengers, according to advices received by W. C. Dawson and Company, agents.

Two ships of the O. S. K. fleet are now in Puget Sound waters loading for the Orient. The freighter Amazon Maru will call from Tacoma tomorrow and the passenger liner Manila Maru from here Thursday.

ASTORIA, Sept. 17.—Steamer Robert Luckenbach, from Philadelphia via San Francisco, arrived here this morning en route to Portland.

Loaded with 950,000 feet of lumber from St. Helens, the steam schooner Multnomah sailed this morning for San Francisco.

The steam schooner Multnomah, loaden with lumber from St. Helens, sailed this morning for Los Angeles.

After taking on 900,000 feet of lumber at Westport, the motorship Rosecrest sailed today for New York.

The passenger steamer Hukluk Maru arrived this afternoon for Coos Bay and went to St. Helens to load lumber.

The steamer Sundelin, from Galveston via Los Angeles, arrived this afternoon and proceeded to Portland.

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 17.—Lumber shipments from the mills on the Columbia River, Willamette River, continue heavy. Last week the total shipments aggregated more than 8,000,000 feet. Several vessels are still loading here or are due to arrive within the coming week. Most of the recent shipments have been sent overseas, but exports also are large.

Two machines for cleaning grout out of wheat are now in operation at the Municipal Terminals here. The machines are being run on a 24-hour basis to keep up with the demand for cargo shipments. A third machine of the same kind has been ordered. Excessive receipts of unmixed wheat have been reported at the docks here this season.

The steamer H. B. Lovejoy, which listed badly for Baker Rock, after she had spilled a deckload of lumber, is steaming for Los Angeles. She is expected to be started for Los Angeles Wednesday.

Capt. Ryder, general manager of the Scandinavian American Line, accompanied by Mr. Hagen, and Halvord Jacobsen of New York, general agent for the service, are due tomorrow morning and will leave at night for San Francisco.

Two of the fleet of Suzuki and Company booked for this port in the near future are the steamer Tayoi (Jap.), a carrier, 6147 tons, and the Poles Maru of 4988 tons, which are due to be in river by the middle of September. The Tayoi is sailing in the "K" Line service, but has a berth ship, and will take wheat, flour, lumber and rice for Japanese ports, and it is said all of her space has been booked. The Poles Maru will load a full cargo of wheat for Japanese delivery.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—It was announced today the steamer Chihuahua of the Mexican States Line would sail for Mexican and Central American ports Saturday, September 23.

The steamer Minnesotan arrived here today from Astoria en route to New York.

The Swedish motorship Pedro Christophersen arrived here today with a cargo of nitrate ore, forty-seven days from Buenos Aires.

The barkentine Thomas L. Wand, bound from the north to Los Angeles, today was reported still aground near Point Suhr, where it struck Saturday afternoon. Reports say that one of the vessel is said to be wedged in the rocks.

EUREKA, Sept. 17.—Sailed: Admiral Goodrich, for Portland, 4 a.m.; Santa Barbara, for San Francisco, 5:30 p.m.

How He Asked Grace

A Sunday-school teacher one morning during the lesson was trying to impress upon the minds of the children that one should always say grace before eating. So turning to Willie, the minister's son, she asked him: "Willie, what is the first thing your father says when you sit down to eat?"

She was very much shocked when Willie replied: "Touch light on the butter! It's 50 cents a pound!"—[Judge.

SEA STORY SAILS INTO THE SHOALS

By William Foster Elliot

There is a line in Browning to the effect that a man may often "desecrate belike the deed in doing." Nothing could better describe what has been done with "On the High Seas," which is now showing at the California. I have never seen a picture which promised better for three-fourths of its length, or one which flopped more hopelessly into unimaginative banality for the other fourth.

Things begin with a bang. A steamer catches fire in mid-Pacific. Dorothy Dalton in the role of a pampered daughter of leisure, is rescued at the last moment by Jack Holt and Mitchell Lewis, who play two stokers.

The three of them put out in a leaky boat. The steamer sinks. And there they are. The atmosphere is finely done, and these sequences contain some of the best miniature shots I have ever seen.

From here on the action moves swiftly and powerfully. When nearly exhausted by thirst, these three sight a sailing ship, and upon boarding her find the crew dead. They bury the corpses and commandeer the ship.

The two stokers fight for the pampered d. of l. in the middle of a storm. Mitchell Lewis, after winning the fight, is killed by a falling spar.

The lady then declares her love for Holt, and finding that this ship is about to follow the steamer to Davy Jones's locker, they decide to die together.

At the last moment they are prevented from so doing by an American battleship, and here the picture ends as far as anything worth looking at goes. The rest is the traditional marmalade.

Back "among her own kind of people" the d. of l. realizes that, of course, the stoker is only a stoker, and proceeds with her already-made plans for a wedding.

But the stoker proceeds to kidnap her at broad noonday on West Adams street by having a Ford truck wrecked in front of the bridal cortege, and bears her away to his Wilshire castle.

Oh, no, he wasn't really a stoker; he was just looking for adventure. Father comes in at the last minute. Handshakes and kisses all around.

I have gone into some detail about all this in order to make plain the enormity of the offense against both art and intelligence. If Irvin V. Willat, who directed the picture, had stopped it with the scene on the dock where the rescued girl's father gives the rescuer a handful of bills, and then irised out on the retreating Rolls-Royce, he would have had a work of art, because, given all the conditions that are present, that is the way it would have ended.

The pitiful subterfuges of the ending we have are all the more pitiful because the acting is so uniformly excellent. It is like taking a story by Joseph Conrad and tacking a George M. Cohan finish on it. When picture producers finally begin to value truth more than conventionalities in which no one of any intelligence believes anyhow, then motion pictures may become an art. But not till then.

VERA GORDON TODAY

Vera Gordon, whose creation of the role of Mommer Kantor in "Humoresque," is still a screen classic, will appear in person at the Orpheum today in a real play, "Lullaby." Miss Gordon has a host of followers here in every walk of life, and her engagement will prove a treat to every one of them. The De Marcos, exceptional dancers, and Max Fisher and his band in a new series of numbers, are the other high lights in the bill.

MIDDLE WEST NEWS IN BRIEF

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ST. PAUL, Sept. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Laing started yesterday on a motor trip to Southern California, where they will spend the winter.

Miss Mariahern, aged 62 years, was scalped when her hair caught in a power shaft of the machine she was operating at Lindeke Warner & Sons. Surgeons replaced the scalp by an unusual surgical operation requiring great skill.

Car shortage will prevent many thousands of heads of cabbage associating with their corn beef affinity this year.

Federal authorities yesterday began a cleanup, of what they term the most gigantic bootleggers' ring discovered in the Middle West since prohibition when they arrested four St. Paul men, one of them a druggist.

The BEACON
SUPERIOR INCINERATOR
The Last Word In Waste Disposal

THE "Superior" is the new and better incinerator, which has been still further improved by replacing the ordinary sheet iron hood with a hood made of our specially prepared, heat resisting, permanently durable cement composition.

The Price is Right

Because the Superior Incinerator is constructed simply, with conical walls, in only two parts, the cost of manufacture is reduced to the minimum. This saving is passed on to the purchaser in the form of low prices. The body of the Superior Incinerator is strongly made of reinforced concrete. May be had in a variety of sizes—with or without grate, hood and screen.

GEORGE ELIOT wrote "As our thought follows close in the slow wake of the dawn, we are impressed with the unusual sameness of the human lot which never alters in the main headings of its history—labor and hunger, seed time and harvest, love and death."

It is entirely fitting that a profession should have developed to care for every detail that perplexes and disturbs the family when the end comes to one of its members.

There is a funeral director in your community who merits your confidence and who has dedicated his life to a sympathetic and efficient service to his fellow beings. He realizes fully the desire of people in time of sorrow to be relieved of all necessary details, and their further desire for a character and quality of service that will leave the family with the assurance that everything humanly possible was done for the departed.

Turkey Brand Corned Beef

This dish proved a very popular one when we served it as a "special" last Monday. So much so, several persons asked if we wouldn't serve it again soon. If you tried it, you know why it was such a favorite. Mild-cured, tender, and savory corned beef, as we serve it, with delicious, thoroughly cooked and wholesome young cabbage, is most toothsome and satisfying.

Fresh Blackberry Pie

A thinly-rolled, flaky pie crust filled to the brim with large, luscious berries. You know there's a big difference in berries. These we received fresh from the ranch. We add just enough sugar to suit the average taste. When the rich and crumbly crust is faintly browned, these pies are ready to serve.

NEW HEAT RECORD IS HUNG UP

Mercury Jumps Suddenly to Hundred and Two and Beats Last Year's Mark

The thermometer came near popping yesterday when the weather took a sudden turn for the worse and ran up to 102 deg. in midafternoon. This is one degree higher than the temperature of September 26 last, which set that year's record. Yesterday's mark was the highest for September since 1913, when 108 was reached.

Col. H. S. Hersey, local meteorologist for the Weather Bureau, says that the hottest day on record was 109 deg. That occurred in July, 1891. Yesterday the humidity was down to 17 per cent.

In Pasadena the thermometer registered 108 deg., according to M. S. Jones, special observer. The previous high mark for the season was 106 deg., which was registered Saturday.

CAR DRIVER EXPIRES IN WIFE'S LAP

Overexertion and Heat Believed Cause of Man's Sudden Death

Heart failure, superinduced by heat prostration, caused George E. Overton, 719 East Thirty-first street, to fall dead at the wheel of his swiftly moving automobile late yesterday, according to Receiving Hospital physicians.

Overton collapsed into the arms of his wife, thus preventing her from grasping the steering wheel before the automobile crashed into a palm tree at West Twentieth street and Hobart Boulevard. Mrs. Overton was not seriously injured. She declared that before he collapsed, her husband had been forced to make an adjustment on the car, which required considerable exertion, the police reported.

Film Luminaries Figure in Young Divorce Case

Director Accuses His Wife of Misconduct

Tom Moore, Jack Pickford Are Mentioned

The bombshell that has been in the making between James Young, well-known motion picture director, and his attorneys since his wife, pretty Clara Whipple Young, of Hollywood, had been granted an interlocutory divorce decree some time ago, is ready for the casting.

It consists of a cross-complaint by Young, charging his wife with misconduct with other men, and asking her divorce be set aside and that he be granted a decree instead. This action, according to Herman L. Roth and Frank G. Tyrell, his attorneys, is to be filed this week.

What will be revealed when the case comes to trial is problematical, but it is known that in the preliminary movies for the preparation of the director's case, the names of such prominent film luminaries as Jack Pickford, Tom Moore, Mrs. Gertrude Neilan, Doris Pawn and Texas Guinan figure in depositions.

DEPOSITIONS TAKEN

These depositions were taken in the case now pending in the Superior Court, brought by Young to set aside a property settlement and demanding that his wife return several thousands of dollars in money and the deed to certain lots which she obtained by fraud, according to the Young complaint. The case is set for hearing on the 28th inst., but before that date Young's further action for the annulment of his wife's decree will be filed, according to Att. Roth.

While Young says that he is bringing the action now because of only recently discovered evidence of which he was ignorant at the time his wife obtained her judgment, her attorneys characterize the action as "an attempt to back out of a mutual agreement."

"Mrs. Young is ready for trial and is able to meet every charge that Young may bring, said Milton Cohen, her attorney, in discussing the case.

Mrs. Young's original action was brought on the ground of cruelty, and on Oct. 13, 1921, Judge Summerfield issued an interlocutory decree. At the same time, Young settled some money and real estate on his wife. At the time the judgment was entered by default, but in the counter action, Young will assert that this was done "through mistake, ignorance, inadvertence, surprise and excusable neglect," according to his attorneys.

DIES WHEN SHE JUMPS FROM AUTO

Makes Good Her Threat When Husband Fails to Halt Car

When her husband thought she was joking as she threatened to jump from their moving automobile unless he stopped, Mrs. George Frazier, wife of the manager of the Jergens soap plant at Burbank, made good her threat and sustained injuries that resulted in her death yesterday, according to her husband's story.

Whether Mrs. Frazier's act was intentional is in doubt. She had been heard to remark that she was "tired of living and might end it all some day." She was a nervous woman and given to fits of despondency, it is said by friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Frazier had been to a roadside fruit stand just outside of Burbank. Returning, Mr. Frazier was driving at about twenty or twenty-five miles an hour, he says, when his wife nervously asked him to stop.

"If you don't stop, I'll jump," she threatened.

Not taking her seriously, Mr. Frazier continued. Then before

SERVICES TODAY FOR MINISTER

Rev. Otto Wilke to be Buried from Church He Founded Thirty Years Ago

Funeral services for Rev. Otto R. H. Wilke, D.D., who, at the age of 75 years, died Saturday at his residence, 119 West Burlington avenue, will be conducted at 2 p.m. today at Fifth and Olive streets from the German Methodist Church, which was founded by Dr. Wilke nearly thirty years ago, and of which he was pastor for more than a quarter of a century. Interment will be at Rosedale Cemetery.

Ceremonies at the church will be in charge of Rev. R. Zurbuchen, who succeeded Dr. Wilke as pastor there following the latter's retirement from active ministerial life a year ago. When Dr. Wilke founded the church its headquarters were in a little chapel on East Fourth street, the present edifice having been built nearly twenty years ago on the large property owned by the church and on part of which stands the Clara Barton Hospital.

Dr. Wilke was born in Germany and came to the United States with his parents when he was only 2 years old. He had lived in California for more than thirty years, his first pastorate having been at San Jose. He was widely known throughout the State, especially in church circles, having been at various times presiding elder of the German Methodist Church Conference of California and district superintendent of the California branch of German Methodist churches.

Several months ago Dr. Wilke and his family moved to their ranch near Baldwin Park, hoping that the country life would restore Dr. Wilke's health. They moved back to the present residence two months ago.

Besides his widow, Dr. Wilke leaves one daughter, Miss Ruth Wilke, a school teacher in the public schools of Los Angeles, and three sons, Dr. Julian Wilke, John H. and Royal Wilke, also of Los Angeles.

VENERABLE SENATOR HAPPY

Greets Hundreds of Old Friends at Celebration of Hundredth Birthday Anniversary

Surrounded by hundreds of friends, ranging in age from 5 months to 97 years, former United States Senator Cornelius Cole yesterday celebrated his hundredth birthday at his beautiful home, 6121 Lexington avenue.

Happy as a boy of 5, and almost as spry, Senator Cole stood at the door with his oldest daughter, Mrs. Emma Cole Brown, receiving the guests as they began to arrive early in the afternoon, shaking hands with "young men" and younger women whose acquaintance he had made in the forty-nines.

"Well, God bless me, if here isn't old Van! Van!" exclaimed the Senator as J. S. Van Doran, aged 87 years, stepped briskly into the room. "And William H. Knight and Dr. Guy Bovard—Lord, they're all comin' to my party! Oh, yes, I'll pose for a picture," he broke off, as a newspaper photographer plucked him by the sleeve. "I'll do most anything today for anybody. Help yourselves to the punch, boys and girls. I'll be back presently."

Senator Cole led the photographer down the hallway and to the pretty little court in the rear of the house, where a dozen other enthusiastic photographers waited to "snap" the Senator.

FAMILY GROUP

Grouped near Senator Cole were his children, George, Seward and Schuyler Cole, Mrs. Howard Scott Waring and Mrs. Brown The only ones missing were Mrs Reginald Jones, who is now in Europe, and Mrs. James G. McLoughlin, now visiting friends in the East. However, several grandchildren were present and three great grandchildren, the latter being Cornelius Cole Brown and John and Marjorie Mather.

"Wouldn't you like to hold this baby in your arms while you're being 'shot.' Grandpa?" came a voice from the audience. "He is 5 months old and his name is Fremont Lincoln Gentz."

"I want to hold anybody in my arms that is named after my two old friends, Fremont and Lincoln," laughed the Senator. "Come here, kiddie. What! Named after those men and can't walk yet! Well, bring him here, mother."

And there stood the distinguished representative of the world's most magical century, holding in his arms the symbol of life's eternal springtime.

"Want some cake, Fremont?" smiled the Senator. "Here, we'll cut it now, just for you," and he approached the big birthday cake, surrounded by great bouquets of flowers sent by admiring friends from various parts of California. But here Mrs. Gentz interfered.

ASKS FOR DANCE

"Why, Senator, he can't eat cake yet! He's too young."

"Then take him in and give him some punch," laughed the host, handing the child back to its mother. "Listen to that Hawaiian music out there under the palms. Come, Mrs. Vandergrift, let's go and have a dance," and he turned with a smile to Mrs. E. S. Vandergrift, aged 97 years.

Sitting near Mrs. Vandergrift was Mrs. Elizabeth Pease, who was 95 years old last Saturday; Joseph Siegle, aged 95 years, and J. W. B. Cole of Long Beach, who is 80 years old and who proudly informed other guests that he and the Senator are probably "kin," since his father was born in New York, Senator Cole's native State.

Among other guests present were F. S. Speegle, the only man present who was a forty-niner, the son of a forty-niner and the grandson of a forty-niner.

"Oh, yes, it's possible," he laughed, when asked for an explanation. "We all came across the plains in the same old desert schooner. I was quite young at the time, of course, but so help me John Brown, I'm tellin' you the truth."

Among the other guests present were Mrs. E. G. Baldwin, Antonio Corsi, M. Mercer, Alfred G. Castles, J. K. Schlatter, N. W. Dexter and M. M. Barnet.

WOMAN WHO TOOK LEAP IDENTIFIED

Doctor Asserts Dead Angeleno Was Stella Pierce, Melancholia Patient

The woman who, Saturday afternoon, in sight of scores of people, leaped to her death from the fourth story of a department store on Broadway, was identified yesterday as Mrs. Stella Webb Pierce, aged 59 years.

The identification was made at the Draper and Engleman undertaking establishment by Dr. George L. Cole, her former physician, according to a report at the Coroner's office. Mrs. Pierce, it was stated, made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Ralph J. Leavitt, at 4078 Ingraham street.

Mrs. Pierce, it was explained at the Leavitt home last week, had been suffering from a severe case of melancholia for the past five years. At various intervals during the last three years she had been a patient in a sanatorium near here, it was said. Mrs. Pierce had been living at the Leavitt home for the past three months and had never evidenced any suicidal tendencies before, Mr. Leavitt said.

Funeral arrangements are being held up pending word from two other daughters in St. Louis, Mrs. E. V. Thompson and Mrs. C. S. Fraser.

BRUSH FIRE THREATENS PROPERTY

Edison Plant and Country Club Are Menaced by Stubborn Blaze

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PASADENA, Sept. 17.—A brush fire, which has been raging all day near Linda Vista last night threatened the Eagle Rock plant of the Southern California Edison Company and a part of the Annandale Country Club property. The fire has been fought by more than 500 men during the course of the day. When the fire first died down this afternoon fire-fighters thought that they had the blaze under control.

Later tonight a strong northeast wind caused the fire to take a new course in the direction of the country club and the power plant. A new crew of fire-fighters was immediately rushed to the scene and began back-firing.

At a late hour last night the fire was within two miles of the plant and a shorter distance from the country club property. Already, it is said, some of the trees near the thirteenth hole on the golf course have been damaged.

The fire is of a spectacular nature and Colorado Boulevard, though two miles distant from the blaze, is lined with cars tonight.

During the afternoon city firemen protected a number of chicken ranches near Linda Vista, and also stood by to save a number of dairy buildings. It was thought that the fire will be extinguished before morning and that the damage will be confined to the brush, which has been burned.

MEXICANS VENT JOY AT FEAST

Los Angeles Colony at Selig Zoo Celebrates Independence Day

If the animals at the Selig Zoo yesterday didn't know that Mexico has been independent for some twelve years more than a century, it wasn't because several thousand olive-skinned senoritas and several thousand more dusky and bemustached gentlemen from below the border didn't do their best to make it plain.

Starting in the morning and continuing well into the evening, Los Angeles' Mexican colony celebrated its independence day with a vigor that defied the day's heat.

The green and white and red of Mexico's flag was everywhere in evidence and few coat lapels didn't flaunt the colors. The language of old Spain was supreme, the spirit of Mexico and her independence was ditto, and even Mister Hidalgo himself might have been satisfied with the demonstration.

What did they do?—well, everything that could be done to make the day enjoyable. Music?—several bands vied with one another. Fun?—games of all kinds, athletics, dancing, animal exhibitions following in endless succession. Food?—well, rather! Exotic dishes that are dear to the heart of the Mexican, served in a grand barbecue at noon. Thousands of persons were served.

Prof. M. J. Rodrigues was master of ceremonies. The main celebration was within the walls of the Selig compound, but the overflow took its enjoyment in Lincoln Park.

MURDERS WIFE, KILLS HIMSELF

Torrance Mechanic Had Gone Insane, Belief

Mother Saves Son at Cost of Own Life

Father Sends Bullets After Fleeing Children

Tragedy stalked through the little town of Torrance last night, when a man murdered his wife, and, after failing in an attempt to shoot his two young step-children, shot himself through the heart.

Harry Treen, a mechanic, aged 55, and his wife aged 44, are those dead.

The man, believed insane from financial and domestic troubles, fired four bullets through the body of his wife. The shooting took place in the Treen home on Two Hundred and Twentieth street, near Harvard, in Torrance. A 14-year-old girl and a 12-year-old boy, children of Mrs. Treen by a former marriage, witnessed the shooting of their mother and barely escaped with their own lives, when their step-father fired at them.

The story of the murder and suicide was sobbed out to Torrance officials and deputy sheriffs by the children shortly after the shooting at 6:30 o'clock last night.

APPEARS SUDDENLY

Treen, who, following an altercation with his wife two weeks ago, had disappeared from his home, suddenly reappeared. The step-daughter fearfully watched him enter. He passed through the house, searching for Mrs. Treen, evidently, who was in the back yard.

"Don't shoot, daddy! Don't shoot!"

The imploring voice of her brother reached the girl in the front room. It also reached the ears of the mother.

She ran to the aid of the little boy just in time to save his life.

FIRES ON CHILDREN

As the boy and girl fled, he drew another automatic and fired five shots after them, which went wild.

Then, bursting from the house, he ran two blocks up the street, and turned an automatic on himself. He died almost instantly as the bullet pierced his heart.

Mrs. Treen was still alive when neighbors reached her side. She was taken to the home of J. F. Lancaster, 1329 Sartori avenue, Torrance, where she died in a few minutes.

Her body was taken to the Cleason undertaking parlors in Gardenia, while the remains of her husband are at the Cape Mortuary in Redondo Beach.

Officers who investigated the case say that two weeks ago, Treen assaulted his wife during a quarrel and broke one of her ribs. It was understood that he had failed financially and worry over his losses is believed to have affected his mind.

ISTHMUS TRADE PICKS UP

Great Advantages to Los Angeles Port Seen in Word of Central American Revival

Conditions are improving in Central America, which presents particularly good trade advantages to the Port of Los Angeles, according to Arturo Pallais, Jr., who returned from Nicaragua last week on the Pacific Mail steamship Colombia. He is the son of the Nicaraguan Consul at this port, Dr. Arturo Pallais, who formerly was Nicaraguan Consul at Calexico.

Mr. Pallais reports that the price of coffee is increasing, fluctuating between $10 and $12, gold, a hundred libras. The drop in the price of coffee and of sugar more than a year ago struck a blow at Central American business from which it is just recovering.

The Pacific ports of Central America send coffee and lumber to this port, most of the sugar going to San Francisco because of the refineries there. Mr. Pallais reports that the Pacific Mail steamships are crowded with passengers and freight, the passenger business between Pacific and Atlantic ports being so great that many are waiting to be carried from one Latin-American port to another.

RAIL PLAN DEFEATED

Mr. Pallais brings back the news that the project to build a railroad to the Atlantic seaboard has been defeated in the Nicaraguan Congress. Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador have no ports in the Atlantic, but have railroads running to Pacific ports. The reverse is the case with Costa Rica and Guatemala. This, it is pointed out, should give Pacific ports in the United States, and particularly Los Angeles, an advantage in developing the fruit, sugar and coffee trade.

Guatemala and Costa Rica have been developed by American fruit interests but exclusively to the advantage of the Atlantic side. The two Nicaragua ports in the Pacific Corinto and San Juan del Sur Salvador, are reported to have agreed to a loan from the United States, and the prospects there are bright.

Peace reigns throughout Central America, Mr. Pallais reports. The indipient revolution recently started

HARTS END VERBAL DUEL

Bill and Wife Cease Exchange of Acrimonious Charges and Denials

Temporary hoisting of the flag of truce over the camps of Bill Hart and Attorney Milton Cohen following their onslaught of verbal missiles Saturday, in which the famous "two-gun" man of the movies was quoted as threatening bodily injury to his wife's attorney, the latter sounding defiance, and the subsiding of war clouds surrounding the Santa Monica home of Mrs. Winifred Westover Hart, were the chief developments yesterday in the sensational separation case between Bill Hart and his estranged bride.

TOO MUCH TALK

Declaring the whole affair relating to the verbal escapade of Saturday to be regretable, Mr. Cohen asserted at his home last night that the case had now reached proportions manifestly unfair to both Mrs. Hart and her husband.

"It is only right since Mrs. Hart is still confined to her bed," Mr. Cohen explained, "that the whole incident remain closed until the time arrives to bring it before the court. Then substantiation of any charges made will become public."

"Enough has been said already," Hart declared at his home yesterday. "The entire case is in the hands of my attorney, Mr. Scarborough, and I am not interested in the least over any developments resulting from Saturday."

Regarding the filing of the divorce complaint by Mrs. Hart soon, rumors of charges of cruelty and physical violence which precipitated the outburst from Hart and the resultant defiance by Mrs. Hart's attorney, Mr. Cohen, declared that it was extremely problematical when the petition would be completed.

DATE UNCERTAIN

"Until Mrs. Hart is able to arise from her bed and attend to her duties properly, without jeopardizing her health, I will give no thought to what it might contain," Mr. Cohen stated. "As to when or where it will be filed or to the minutest idea of its content I haven't the least idea."

Mrs. Hart, at her mother's home in Washington street in Santa Monica, still refused to comment on her husband's affair with her attorney or anything relating to the probable charges which she would bring against her husband who gratuitously settled over $300,000 on her and his son.

OLD FRANCHISE SUIT SETTLED

Court Rules Against City of Bakersfield

Case in Litigation for Six-Year Period

Original Public Utility Grant Still Valid

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 17.—The suit in Superior Court by the city of Bakersfield against the Bakersfield Water Company, instituted six years ago to collect $450 license fees, was settled today in favor of the defendant company.

Judgment handed down by Judge H. A. Pealrs establishes the present validity of one of two franchises granted by the county Board of Supervisors to predecessors of the Bakersfield Water Company in 1887 and 1894, and declares that the city license ordinance covering public utility fees, as it pertains to the water system in East Bakersfield, is null and void. The defendant corporation was awarded costs of the suit. The later franchise has expired.

The court found that the incorporation of Kern, formerly Sumner, as a part of the city of Bakersfield, the territory involved now being known as East Bakersfield, did not remove the effectiveness of the old county franchises granted when the East Bakersfield district was controlled by the county.

COMPANY WINS

In findings of fact and conclusions of law issued April 21, 1922, the court opined that the water company does not owe the city $450 in $50 quarterly license payments, which the municipality asserted were due it from the company for the years 1915 and 1916. Similar decisions were handed down in court previously and rulings by the State Railroad Commission, which at various times investigated the status of the company, also favored the defendant in this suit, which was started December 29, 1916. The papers subsequently filed in the action constitute a bulky folder containing thousands of words of transcript.

The most recent trial of the suit was in Department Two of the Superior Court, without a jury, on January 21, 1921, Walter Osborn, then City Attorney, appearing for the plaintiff and E. L. Foster representing the water company. The basis of the city's claim was an ordinance adopted by the City Council July 23, 1914, requiring public utility companies to pay a license fee to the city of $50 a quarter.

UPHOLD FRANCHISE

The defendant contended that the incorporation of Kern, formerly Sumner, into East Bakersfield did not injure the status of the franchises granted to its predecessors by the county. Under these franchises the water company owners agreed to furnish the city, without charge, all water needed for fire-protection purposes, in return for which the company was given permission to construct works, lay out a system of pipes and furnish water to residents for domestic and irrigation purposes.

There are two old franchises, one granted to Maximilian Nunez on February 11, 1887, for a period of fifty years, when James McKamy was chairman of the Board of Supervisors, and a second granted on May 4, 1894, to James A. Bernard and B. Ardizzi for a period of twenty-five years. This latter franchise expired May 4, 1919. Nunez, Bernard and Ardizzi are dead. The provisions in each franchise were similar. The Bakersfield Water Company succeeded to the rights and privileges of the parties to whom the franchises originally were awarded.

Findings and conclusions similar to those returned this year were handed down by Judge Pealrs October 23, 1918 subsequent to which the suit was reinstituted and tried again.

The judgment of today, it is believed, will definitely close the litigation, which was continued for almost six years.

Coast Gas Men Meet Today in Santa Barbara

Registration for the convention of the Pacific Coast Gas Association will open in Santa Barbara today when more than 200 members of the body assemble from Pacific Coast cities and Pacific island possessions of the United States. Large delegations are expected to go from the three local gas companies. The meeting will last for four days.

The programs of the convention will be started tomorrow, when O. L. Moore, auditor of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, presides at the afternoon session. The morning session will be conducted by Henry Bostwick, president of the association.

Three addresses will make up the afternoon program. They are "The Accounting Department's Relationship to Other Departments of the Utility," by B. G. Williams of the Southern California Gas Company; "Financial Budgets" by C. W. Platt, assistant treasurer of the Portland Gas and Coke Company, and "Appliance Accounting" by H. Glover of the Beacon Light Company of Los Angeles.

Tuesday evening he will address a mass meeting in Escondido on "America's Greatest Asset."

Dr. von KleinSmid will return to Los Angeles Wednesday to participate in the opening of the university Thursday morning. He will appear at the 11 o'clock assembly and address the student body for the first time in the new school year.

POWER ACT ADVOCATES REPULSED

Efforts to Get Municipal League Indorsement Bring Neutral Response

Despite the efforts of municipal ownership advocates to obtain the support and indorsement of the Municipal League for the State Water and Power Act, which appears on the November ballot as Proposition No. 19, a proposed constitutional amendment, the executive committee of the league, in a statement issued yesterday, announced that it "refrains from any recommendation."

The statement contained a synopsis of the proposed amendment, under which State bonds not exceeding $500,000,000 could be issued for water and power development, and then presents arguments for and against the act. The arguments against the act, as set forth in the statement, are as follows:

"That State public ownership on so large a scale, will develop into a State-wide political machine, with corruption and inefficiency.

"That the public can be better served by State regulation than by State ownership; that under private ownership, publicly regulated, power is cheaper in California than anywhere else, and that the Ontario plan has not been a success.

"That this amendment will kill any further development by private water and power companies.

"That there is no guarantee that the bond money will be fairly distributed throughout the different sections of the State and that some communities may not have to make up deficits from the failure of plants in other communities.

"That the powers granted the California Water and Power Board are excessive and dangerous and that the issuance of the proposed $500,000,000 bond issue will handicap the State in making bond issue for other necessary public purposes."

MEXICAN CELEBRATION WINDS UP IN MURDER

UNKNOWN ASSASSIN KNIFES MAN FOR PATRIOTIC SINGING

Because he became too vociferous in his method of celebrating the 112th anniversary of Mexico's Independence Day early yesterday morning, Mariano Marcos was stabbed and killed by another Mexican in the kitchen of his home at Sixth and Mesquite streets.

Police detectives immediately began a search for the Mexican who had wielded the knife. He is believed to be Rosa Bicuna. According to the report of Detectives Nickens, Grusy and Adams, Bicuna stabbed Marcos when the latter refused to stop singing a Mexican song beyond his own doorstep. Marcos was chased into the kitchen of his home, the detectives learned, and there killed in front of his wife and children.

IMPERIAL TAX RATE SLASHED

Assessment Reduction Won by Valley Cities

Great Saving is Expected as Result

Irrigation District Board Announces Cut

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, Sept. 18. — With their assessments slashed by 20 per cent instead of the 30 per cent cut for which they had contended, incorporated cities in Imperial Valley today congratulated themselves on having won that much of their battle in their fight for more equalized taxation for city property waged against the Imperial Valley Irrigation District Board, which has been in session for the past week as board of equalization.

At the close of its session the board has virtually agreed to a tax rate of $2.50 on the 100 valuation, whereas a $4 rate was really expected. This means an enormous saving for the district, which is being accomplished under plans now working out for the absorption of numerous mutual water companies under one irrigation district head.

Last year the tax rate really amounted to better than $4 on the $100 valuation, counting assessments made outside of the regular rate for maintenance of the system.

Taxes were assessed on the general basis of $100 per acre, and this was opposed by one of the directors who claimed it was too much. Others of the board claimed that if this was too high, then city property was being assessed ten times too much. As it is, the cities are saved about $35,000 in taxes in the district.

TWO WOMEN INJURED WHEN MACHINES HIT

AUTOMOBILE COLLISION NEAR VENICE MAKES HOSPITAL ATTENTION NECESSARY

Two women were seriously injured in a collision between two automobiles on Washington Boulevard near Venice early yesterday morning, according to a police report.

They were Miss Lillian Winters, aged 25 years, and Miss Helen Howard, both of 624 Bixel street. Miss Winters suffered a fractured left leg and severe hip injuries, and Miss Howard was said to have received possible internal injuries. Both were given emergency treatment at the Receiving Hospital. Miss Winters was later removed to the Angelus Hospital.

It was reported that other persons in the cars were hurt, but declined medical treatment. Miss Winters was taken to the Receiving Hospital by D. O. Lapsey of 4537 Sixth avenue.

Ambassador to Stage Elaborate Water Program

At Water Carnival Tonight

Janet Ford, strong contender for women's Pacific Coast swimming championship title, who will take part in the program at Ambassador Hotel. Inset picture is Loretta Rush, Ambassador swimmer, who will also participate.

JUDGING from the program scheduled for tonight at the Ambassador plunge, swimming and diving will be the principal features of interest to the spectators. Fifteen numbers have been arranged for the evening by Frank P. Holborrow, swimming instructor at the Ambassador. The exhibition is for the guests of the hotel, members of the swimming club and their friends.

Miss Janet Ford, said to be one of the best girl divers on the Pacific Coast; Sammy Cohen, water clown, and Loretta Rush, phenomenal girl swimmer, compose a trio which will perform water stunts of an unusual and daring nature.

Interest centers around a water polo contest between Bimini and the Ambassador teams, with both confident of victory. Other features of the program are: The 25-yard race for boys, 25-yard race for girls, 25-yard race for men, guests of the hotel, 25-yard race for women guests of the hotel, canoe tilting and an old clothes race.

Then there will be a barrel race, water shoes, and an exhibition by Edna Rush, 12 years old, swimming with her hands and feet tied. Helen Rush, 10 years old, will give a diving exhibition. Loretta Rush will demonstrate the breast stroke, while Instructor Holborrow will show the various swimming strokes.

The big race of the evening will be a 50-yard race in which a number of the best swimmers in Southern California are entered. A number of well-known divers will also demonstrate their skill. The judges will be William Irwin, Stewart Somerville, Louis Barrere, W. Roberts and Mrs. Charles Anthony.

CITY CLUB DIRECTORS HAVE PLAN

Want Councilmen to Create Metropolitan District for Sanitation Purposes

The Los Angeles City Club has outlined to the City Council a plan for the creation of a metropolitan sanitation district to include Los Angeles and all adjacent territory from the mountains to the sea. The club directors have recommended that the plans for the improvements to be built under the $12,000,000 bond issue, which was authorized by the voters at the recent primaries, be so drawn as to fit into a future district disposal system. The directors in their letter said:

"The creation of such a district would seem to present these advantages:

"(1.) It would not tax the bonding power of any of the separate municipalities.

"(2.) It would thus make the financing of large operations comparatively easy and without drag upon other legitimate improvements which have a claim upon our bonding power.

"(3.) It would guard the health of each of our municipalities and make sure that negligence on the part of any could not affect the whole district.

"(4.) It would be another step in co-operation in Southern California, and help lead the way to other large-visioned community enterprises.

"The directors of the Los Angeles City Club respectfully suggest that your honorable body consider the desirability of obtaining the legislation necessary to make possible a metropolitan sanitation district, and second, that the improvements connected with the outfall sewer and sewage treatment program be planned so that they will fit into such a district plan."

Oil Tool Plant at Long Beach to Open Soon

The $100,000 plant of the United States Tool Company on Cherry Boulevard, north of Spring street, Long Beach, will be completed within the next two weeks, according to a report sent out by officials of the company yesterday. Approximately $80,000 worth of machinery has been installed in the new machine shop. It is estimated that more than 100 workers will be employed in turning out oil field machinery which the firm will specialize in making.

The heaviest forge in the vicinity of any oil field in California is reported to have been installed in the new plant.

R. W. Edens is president of the new concern. C. S. Hiles is secretary and treasurer. Other officers of the company are W. T. Woods, John McFarland and W. M. Illingsworth.

The plant has been constructed for the purpose of affording service to oil firms operating in the Signal Hill, Torrance and Santa Fe Springs fields.

Youth Killed Attempting to Jump on Truck

Attempting to climb aboard a moving truck, 11-year-old Tom Rossi was instantly killed yesterday morning within 100 yards of his home on Chestnut street, Lomita. The truck was driven by Jim Serrero, residing at the Rossi ranch.

The boy, seeing the truck approaching, ran out of a neighboring yard and attempted to climb aboard the car, which was going about eight or nine miles an hour. Missing his step, he fell and his head struck against the rear wheel. He was killed instantly, his neck being broken.

The driver of the truck was unaware of the boy's attempt to board the truck until after the accident. No blame was placed on the driver, Jim Serrero, by Constable S. Voris of Lomita township. The body of the boy was taken to Myer's funeral parlors in Lomita.

President of Occidental to Open College

Dr. Ramsen D. Bird, president of Occidental College, will conduct the first convocation services of the school year at the local college today. It is expected that enrollment will be completed at the institution today. During the last week a great part of the registration has been completed. It is possible that the limit of 150 persons for the freshman class will be raised. The entire student body is limited to 500 persons.

Dr. Bird has been in the East during the latter part of the summer. He has been in conference with the officials of the General Educational Board of the Rockefeller Foundation in New York recently. He also attended, while in the East, a number of functions given by fraternities of which he is a member.

VICTIM OF GASOLINE EXPLOSION IMPROVING

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, Sept. 17.—The condition of Olive Gordon, truck driver for the Richmond Oil Company, who was seriously burned yesterday afternoon in an explosion at the Sunset service station, corner of Seventh and Olive streets, was said to be slightly improved today. Gordon is at the Long Beach Sanitarium, suffering from burns about the face, head and body.

Gordon and Hugh Green, proprietor of a vulcanizing shop adjoining the service station, were the only two victims of the explosion, which originated from a can of gasoline. Several persons near the scene of the accident escaped injury. Fire authorities here are investigating the cause of the explosion, which wrecked the service station.

SPIRIT OF PLAY in Nursery Decoration

The spirit of a child responds swiftly and powerfully to the stimulus of color. To quicken your children's imagination, as well as to provide for them an environment of cheerfulness, you will find some such decorating scheme for the nursery as the following exceedingly effective:

Woodwork enameled a Chinese blue, with the walls covered by wallpaper decorated with illustrations of animal life, or of well-known children's stories. The tones of the paper should be vividly bright. Floors of a gray or light brown will fit into this scheme nicely.

Mathews Specialties for This Scheme

HYPOCRISY IN RELIGION FLAYED BY MINISTERS

Return to Old Christian Virtues of Simplicity, Faith and Good Conduct Urged

In the social life of today there is sometimes heard the cry: "Give us back to the old days when men were strong and true, women modest in attire and deportment and children dutiful." In the modern business world an occasional voice is heard decrying some of the methods of present commercial systems and calling for a return to the ways of former generations in which character was held higher than business ability and a man's honesty outweighed his wealth.

In the field of religion, also, a certain reactionary spirit is said itself manifest, and many prominent leaders of the churches, as well as lay members, are pleading for a return of Christian virtues, all simplicity, and an abandonment of many of the useless, and even hypocritical forms of worship.

However much may be said in favor of religion in all its phases, ministers of the Gospel maintain that the social, business, industrial, educational and religious life of today would be greatly uplifted and ennobled if people would strive to live more naturally and simply, and bring toward life in general a more profound spirit of reverence. This theme was emphasized by scores of many sermons delivered from pulpits in Los Angeles yesterday and excerpts from some of the discourses are printed below.

SHOWS FALLACY OF "LOOKING BACKWARD"

Rev. Edgar Fay Daugherty, pastor of the First Christian Church, preached yesterday from the text "He thatGathereth not with me, Scattereth." He said in part:

No deadlier fallacy was ever used of the devil to soothe the pain of troubling consciences, than the fallacy of noncommittalism on moral issues. The only divine partisanship is a partisanship for the right and whoso lacks it in conduct, disintegrates rather than makes more coherent, humanity's ranks.

"Jesus came into the world to gather into one family the scattered children of God, and the family is to include all races, colors, tongues. The divine ideal for humanity is that humanity is to be one family, that each man should serve his fellow men, and in service find his purest delight.

This ideal has been the inspiration of all the voluminous talk and organization looking toward the fascinating end of all, the solidarity of the race, an end which means that humanity is not an aggregation of units forever competitive, but that humanity is one and co-operation for the common good in any circumstances is life's noblest chance for anybody and everybody.

Edward Bellamy in "Looking Backward" expected to attain this end without regard for the cross of Christ, and he never could do it, nor can any other Utopian dreamer; construction for human welfare lies wholly in looking forward toward the enthronement of the will of Christ amid men.

Patriotism, we are told, is the basis of national solidarity and the king of human virtues, yet in comparison with the plans of God the plans of any nation or of al the nations are fragmentary, for of the nations He is the ruler and oept the builders of the nation honor God, they labor in vain who build it whether in British Imperialism or American idealism.'

TELLS TOUGH ONE ON BOB INGERSOL

In the course of his sermon on "The Thief on the Cross," preached at the South Park Christian Church last night, Dr. Bruce Brown told the following story of the visit of the late Bob Ingersol to the famous Bishop Brooks:

"One time when Ingersol was in Boston he went to Trinity Church to see Phillips Brooks. He found the waiting-room filled with preachers who were waiting for an audience with Brooks. Mr. Ingersol said to the secretary: 'I think that I will not wait for I see that there are so many ahead of me.' The secretary asked him to wait for a moment until he should find out if it were possible to see the bishop. He soon returned and escorted Mr. Ingersol into the study. He said: 'You will have to admit, Dr. Brooks, that I am better off than the preachers, for they have to wait while I am ushered in.' 'I thought that all over when your card was received,' said the bishop, 'and I knew that if I did not see you that you might go away and you might die and then I would never see you again. But it did not matter about the preachers. If I did not see them now and they should die we could take all eternity to talk the matter over. So I thought I had better see you for it might be the last chance.'"

BELIEVES WORLD IS IN REMAKING

Dr. C. Ellwood Nash, pastor of the First Universalist Church, preached yesterday on "The Irrepressible Conflict." He said in part:

"In a serious, solicitous mind, without an adequate philosophy or faith, the world conditions of today may well produce the effect of consternation. It would not be easy to recall any former period of such general and various upheaval. Not governments and politics alone, but industry, commerce, customs, manners, education, religion, are all boiling and scumming with unrest and revolution.

"Will the ferment subside presently, will the conflagration cool? If so, it will certainly leave ashes and a new crust behind. No rational mind can expect all things to remain as heretofore; there will surely be change, perhaps there will be a new front to the universe and to the march of events. The first fact to face is that many if not all of these conflicts are irrepressible, as Seward said that between slavery and abolitionism was. Justice and injustice can not harmonize; truth and error, right and wrong, greed and unselfishness, purity and uncleanness must collide, must fight it out.

What we must pray for and earnestly seek is not a false peace of compromise and exhaustion, but a final harmony of justice, truth, and love."

Pasadena Furniture Company

September Values

The remarkable growth of the Pasadena Furniture Company is a direct result of the better values offered because of our inexpensive location and factory buying facilities.

All Southern California is our field. Because so many find it pays to trade here we are able to buy in large quantities, thus obtaining the newest and best in the market at lowest possible prices.

Carload shipments direct from the factories mean lower freight rates, another saving that we pass along to you in lower prices. Proof of this is found in the September values we now offer, only a small portion of which are featured here.

See the new Fall styles we are showing and make a comparison of our values—you will be delighted with what you find here.

Entire Stock of Karpen Upholstered Furniture Guaranteed Quality at Important Reductions

The Styles

This offering of Karpen furniture at reduced prices includes all those fine pieces in mohair, tapestry and velour, with genuine hand-carved mahogany underframing as illustrated above. It also includes our fine line of Karpen Super-Down pieces in temporary coverings for special order work.

The Construction

This Karpen furniture is made throughout of honest material. Frames are of seasoned hard woods, bent by a special process that prevents splitting, instead of being merely sawed out.

Most of the joining is done with mortise and tenon set in glue of the best quality. The best coil springs are used. All pieces have web bottoms.

The Values

Karpen produces furniture of guaranteed quality on a large production basis. Skilled labor and marvelous special mechanical processes are used to attain that end. We buy this fine furniture in car lots, securing lower freight rates and other advantages that enable us to sell at very reasonable prices. Any reduction is therefore of importance and should gain your immediate attention.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

One county in the State of California has no school tax. Its share of the Federal and State collections and appropriations this year will obviate the necessity of any local educational tax this year. No, it isn't Los Angeles county.

OVERSEAS MARKET

Japan has to import a lot of timber and it now appears that fully three-fifths of it comes from America. It is said that the Japanese government is quietly encouraging the importation of American pine because it is so immensely inferior to the Japanese lumber that the contrast accentuates the advantage of the home brew and enables them to keep up the price. If the Japanese like it that way we should worry!

DOMESTIC NOTE

The Episcopalian bishops are going to take the word "obey" out of the marriage ritual, but it cannot be fully accomplished until the next general convention—three years hence. Wives will have to be tractable for a little while longer and husbands should make the most of their waning authority. If the wife doesn't mind, take the ax to her.

FREE AND EASY

It is only a short time ago that a man could not consider himself properly dolled up unless he showed about two inches of a stiff and shining cuff that clung like a length of stovepipe to his arm. The condition of man has improved in some respects. Now if a girl felt a wrought-iron cuff around her waist she would think she had been drinking.

BRAIN STORMS

An eminent Englishman smilingly brushes the frowning criticism of America by Kipling aside. Rudyard is not accepted as the arbiter of English thought. He is a voice, but not a conscience. The visitor comments on the circumstance that Kipling was answered in Congress by Borah. It is thunder against thunder—such is the verdict of the observer. It seems some of the English have made a fairly accurate appraisement of the Idaho statesman.

THE STATUS QUO

Under the new tariff bill a 5-per-cent duty is levied on dice and chips. This is light enough to bring our poker and crap games within the province of the poor. There is no desire to confine our national pastimes to the very rich. The tariff is high enough to furnish a form of protection to home industry and is low enough to permit the average citizen to acquire a stack of chips without completely shattering his roll. All we need is protection from the pauper poker players of the Old World. The crap shooting at Washington is not to be halted.

AN EXCITING CONTEST

The world stands at gaze! Who will win, Michelson or Einstein? The contest is on and eternal truth may stagger at the verdict. For Michelson has challenged Einstein's theory of relativity—has turned loose the big guns on Mt. Wilson against the famous scientist. Titanic forces are grappling.

Is the world breathlessly awaiting the result of the contest that may reconstruct a universe? Well, not exactly breathlessly. In fact, where two or three are gathered together on Broadway or Spring they are more likely to be discussing the latest developments in the hammer murder case.

PERILS OF HUSBANDRY

The lady whom Kid McCoy had honored with an invitation to become his ninth wife is reported to have balked at the altar. The Kid spread considerable notoriety through his efforts to obtain a marriage license without the presence of a bride. On top of that the candidate is said to have found a missive in his coat from another charmer, who seemed to think that she was the battler's choice. Because of all this the announced bride is expected to return to her eastern home, while the seasoned groom will cast about him for another mate. It must seem lonesome for the Kid to go six full weeks without a new wife.

THE DRUG MENACE

In the general convention of the Episcopal church the house of deputies has adopted resolutions asking that The Hague protocol of 1914 be made effective and that the nations of the earth unite in the fight against narcotics. It is represented that there are now nearly 2,000,000 drug addicts in this country and that they are in every walk of life. The startling declaration is made that the drug evil has become a greater menace to the nation than the saloon ever was. Comment is made by a layman that in the days when any child could go to a drug store and buy an ounce of morphine for a quarter, with no questions asked, there were few drug addicts in the country. Now that the dope is a mere priceless and the prisons yawn for those who deal in it the use of narcotics has become a national menace. The League of Nations is called upon to take command of a world crusade. Our country cannot cope with the situation single-handed.

THE WORLD IN DANGER

If a general conflict involving all Europe in another war is avoided it will be due only to the promptness of Great Britain in exerting her strength against the storm.

Even though the armed forces now being mobilized against the Turks be successful in stopping the advance against Constantinople, nevertheless the situation is fraught with the most frightful possibilities.

It is apparent that, in her general stats of desperation, soviet Russia is prepared to turn traitor to the Christian white races of the world; to shed her thin veneer of civilization and take up her ancient heritage as an oriental people.

The Turks, with the open and avowed support of the soviets, who have been shipping them arms and gold, have started on a desperate adventure.

No one knows, in fact, how strong either the Turks or the soviets are in a military way. They have the advantage of a strong strategic position, an almost unlimited man power and the direction of military genius.

The great advantage, of course, of the Turkish army, if considered in relation to the Russian soviet as an ally, is the enormous strength of their combined military position. Once plunged headlong into a great European war, the theater of operations would of a certainty be in physical conditions very difficult for the Allies to contend with.

And always behind the Turks stands the terrible, silent menace of a holy war with the possibility of involving the enormous and crushing hordes of anti-Christian races.

The hope of the Allied forces rests upon the distinct probability that neither the Turks nor the soviets have the resources in the way of arms, money or supplies necessary for an extended war.

No doubt this war will be choked in its cradle; but it will not end here. Some day the white races of the world will have a battle to fight for existence.

Incidentally, Greece, proudly strutting along in the light of Woodrow Wilson's amazing policy of the "Self-determination for small nations" has made the appalling mess of things that might have been expected.

THE "TERRIBLE TURK"

News of the most disquieting nature comes from Europe with the reports that a Mussulman uprising is impending and that Russia is preparing to throw her resources to the assistance of the Turks. The grave danger of such an event and the wisdom of the British government in taking stern measures against the danger can be realized by a swift glance into the origin and career of the Turkish Empire.

The name Turk first occurs in history during the sixth century, as given to the mighty hordes who dwelt on the steppes of Northern Asia. They were a savage, aggressive people, eager for further possessions, especially in lands already cultivated. In the year 800 they secured the territory now called Armenia, which they named Turcomania. Not content with this fertile land, they continued their wars of extension and increased their holdings to include parts of Europe, Asia and Africa. Turkish officers secured high posts in the armies and governments of the Saracens and other powers.

In the ninth century Turkish influence grew into extensive control and vast power in the governments of Egypt, Palestine and Syria and later in Persia and India.

The history of Turkey proper begins in the twelfth century, when the Turks, aided by the Tartars and kindred races, conquered Western Asia and established an empire. They succeeded in turning back ferocious Mongol attacks and took possession of Asia Minor. The first Emperor Othman (bone-breaker) was a bold and cruel leader and established them firmly in Europe. The Sultans who followed him led armies further into Europe. For many years the history of Europe is simply a record of Moslem invasions. For a time it seemed that the powerful Turkish armies were destined to conquer the whole world, but the Christians were finally victorious.

Succeeding rulers continued to advance the Turkish interests by every method, fair or foul, and intrigues of every sort. A Turkish navy was organized. In 1451 the Turks captured Constantinople, which has ever since been the capital of Turkey and the official residence of the Sultan. In quick succession Egypt, Palestine and Syria were added to the Ottoman Empire. The Turkish armies became the terror of the world. The "Conquering Turk" was for two centuries the first military power of Europe and one of the great powers of the world. Europe trembled. Nearly every nation had been conquered, whole or in part, by the Turks, who seemed invincible.

And then, in the sixteenth century, Turkey began to decay from within. Her rulers degenerated, losing their military courage and daring. The rival powers swept past her in all departments of industry, arts and sciences. The Turkish people became sullen and hateful.

A war with Russia went against the Turks until, in the Crimean War, England and France came to the aid of Turkey and defeated the Russians. However, the Turkish Empire continued to disintegrate; she lost her provinces in rapid order.

The treatment of the Armenians by the Turks under most revolting circumstances in 1895 aroused the indignation of the entire world, but no decisive action was ever taken. Turkey's manner of dealing with her neighbors and her own people has provoked a number of wars, but there has not yet been any solution to the problem. The World War brought about, supposedly, a final dismemberment of the Turkish Empire, but the recent outbreak reveals a gathering strength.

The knowledge that there are over 200,000,000 Mohammedans who may be called upon to wage a holy war for the Turks indicates that the title "The Sick Man of the East" no longer applies to Turkey. In the light of her past history and with an understanding of her present potential strength the world is anxiously watching the turn of her affairs.

SAFETY FIRST

Henry Ford announces that no man can drink and remain in his employ. If a man comes to his factory with a smell of gin on his breath he will be fired instanter. This is the first we knew that a guy had to be sober to button a Ford together.

It's One Thing to Make Plans, But--

DUAL NATIONALITY

Isarau Kawakami of the International Service Bureau has been at some pains to explain to American friends that there are really two Japans in existence at present, the old Japan of the Samurai, wedded to monarchical and militarist traditions, and the new Japan of the Liberal party, endued with the enlightened culture and progressive democracy of the west. And on the internal contest between these two Japans, more than on the external policies of the present government, depend the future relations of all Japan with the other powers of the world.

This, of course, is only an expansion of Burke's famous dictum, "You can't indict a whole nation." Even an indictment of the half that controls a nation's policies today may prove faulty tomorrow. The England of Gladstone was a different nation from the England of Beaconsfield. Bismarck's Germany had little in common with the republic of Ebert.

So in the growth of the new Japan and the dwindling of the old Japan, Mr. Kawakami sees a bright hope of better things for the Far East and of their bearing on the future of Western America. For he notes that the liberal sentiment is expanding and the old Samurai tradition weakening among all ranks and classes in Japan.

This encouraging aspect of affairs in the Far East Mr. Kawakami attributes largely to the results of the Washington conference. It has brought home to her statesmen that the age of reason is better for all parties concerned than the reign of force. With an awakened spirit the people of Japan are beginning to vision the better way.

And this claim he can back with direct evidence—the settlement of the Shantung dispute, the better relations with China, the voluntary reduction in the size of her army and the almost unanimous sentiment in the Nipponese press for settlement instead of antagonism as a rooted foreign policy.

With the Near East all ablaze with war and rumors of war, it is gratifying to hear of this new departure, promising peace at least for the shores of the Pacific.

THE DEADLY SUBMARINE

Mr. Henry Wales, the correspondent, looks with dark suspicion upon the motive that lies behind England's call for another naval limitation conference. In a dispatch from Geneva Mr. Wales states that it is an attempt to maneuver the submarine out of future wars.

It is possible, however, that England's move for another conference is both correct and desirable.

The truth is, the so-called Hughes conference did not go far enough—although it covered as much ground as was at that time possible. It placed a limitation upon the number of capital ships that each power may maintain; but it left the submarines, aircraft and other subsidiary naval vessels running wild. At present there is nothing to prevent any nation from crowding the oceans with undersea boats.

There is no question but that the British Empire would like to abolish the submarine altogether. With the British Isles unable to feed themselves without shipping, England's food supply—and consequently her life—must always be in danger from the submersible naval vessel.

For propaganda purposes it was triumphantly announced during the war that the navies had found the answer to the submarine attack; but, of course, this was only measurably true. During the World War the sub was a new, crude and untried engine of war. A way was found to circumvent submarine attacks to a certain extent; but this method was only effective because of the small number of submarines in action and the inexperience of the German navy in the use thereof.

By the time another war comes along the submarine will be a perfected piece of machinery.

It is a weapon that has come to stay.

It is a weapon that tends to equalize the strength of nations. As the invention of the revolver gave the puny man an equal chance with the giant, just so the sub makes it impossible for any nation, however powerful, to really maintain a sovereignty of the seas.

Except in this—

That the British Empire may be able to prevent their wholesale manufacture.

No one can doubt the conclusion that England can only remain mistress of the seas if she can contrive to strangle the subs in their cradles, so to speak.

Our own interest in the matter is not slight.

Should we be called upon to wage war in protection of the Philippines, the more submarines in possession of any island power in the Pacific the more difficult and dangerous our task.

The great naval problem touching the submarine is this: that every submarine actually at sea requires a defense equal to twenty submarines. In other words, there may be but one rat; but if there are twenty rat holes it becomes necessary to have twenty waiting cats, nineteen of which will never accomplish anything.

With the necessity of maintaining this predominance of strength of surface ships over undersea ships; with a limitation placed upon the building of surface ships, but with the nations free to build all the subs they like, England finds herself in a peculiarly embarrassing position. Our own position, in the circumstances, is none too comforting.

DOUBLE-HEADERS IN MATRIMONY

They used to blame it on the men, but now a lady writer asserts her belief that all women have Mormon minds. Even Diana was a polygamist at heart. She says that deep within her every woman needs at least two husbands. She wants the one of romance, the sighing lover who sits at her feet breathing words of tenderness and love, and she also wants the Napoleon of finance—the guy who brings home the bacon. It is not often that the romantic and the practical are combined in one character. The idealist and the matter-of-fact person are widely variant. Therefore, it is that the woman who loves romance and who adores substance must seek them in two different molds. That is why there is urge for a duality of husbands. Possibly it would call for a trinity of them in some cases. Why should a woman drive her husbands tandem? Why not have them harnessed abreast? Not long ago a sociological expert argued the importance of every man having two wives. Now an equally distinguished feminine thinker is clamoring for two husbands for each dame. Will some mathematician kindly figure out a way in which these rival claimants may be satisfied without getting the wires crossed? If each woman has two husbands and each of these men has two skirts, how many miles is it to Reno? No one would willingly deny a woman her right to a romance, but if it takes two men for each affair, how long will the visible supply of trousers hold out? And if each man is to have both a housewife and a show girl, how is he going to get them without advertising in the Sunday papers? There are a lot of little matters to be settled before this world is running to the satisfaction of some of our favorite polygamists.

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE OLD WAY

My Aunt Samantha's making pickles, each day she puts up more and more; and this will save me many nickels when I go shopping at the store. "It may be I shall miss a party, a tea fight or a bridge-whist game," says aunt, "but while I'm well and hearty I'll put up pickles just the same.
And you might trot around and fetch up tomatoes from the weighed vine, for I will put up jugs of ketchup before I've taken in my sign. And there are plums that need preserving, and onions good for marmalade; the thought is surely most unnerving that they should waste and be de-cayed." My neighbors call up Jones, the grocer, for everything they wish to eat; but Aunt Samantha thunders, "No, sir!"
when I suggest a canned-goods treat. "It would be sin beyond all pardon," she says,
"to buy things at the store when there are turnips in the garden and pumpkins by the kitchen door." And to the cellar she is packing all sorts of bottles, jars and jugs, while through the garden I go tracking for greens that have escaped the bugs. Her friends are frolicking and fooling, they're bathing in the deep blue sea, their dark-green limousine they're tooling, at country clubs they're drinking tea. My aunt looks smiling from the casement on passing roadster and sedan; she does not care for her effacement while there's a cucumber to can.

WALT MASON.

OUR SUNNY FRIEND

Why Change?

Old Hiram Jones says it may be true
As some assert that the bobbed-off hair
And the rolled-down hose and lip-sticked lips
And the arched eyebrows that the flappers wear
Are lures invented by Beelzebub
To toll poor man from the road of right
And get him down where the brimstone glows
In fires forever bright.

But when he delves in musty tomes
Alarmists wrote in the days of old
Of lures that the devil used to use,
Crinoline, hoopskirts, rings of gold,
Gewgaws, stomachers trimmed with lace,
Hair piled high or hair piled low,
Pointed shoes like a razor blade,
Skirts with trains of a yard or so,

He thinks pshaw, the devil could trap
Man with anything, grand or snide,
Thick or slithery, cheap or dear,
Just so he put a girl inside,
And, since the fate of the poor lost man,
Whatever the lure may be, is sure,
It's easy to look at the present modes,
And—long may they endure.

There are books of etiquette and books of etiquette, but my Cousin Anne says there are problems that none of them mention, and she has never seen one that went into the matter of visiting and being visited like it ought to.

And what she wants to know is, What day of a house guest's visit is it proper or permissible to move her from the dining-room to the breakfast nook for her chow and what number of days should elapse before you say, begone, proud convention, and feed her in the kitchen?

What day of a house guest's visit is it permissible for the hostess's husband to come to breakfast in his shirt sleeves?

What day may friend husband bring his newspaper to breakfast with him and read while the rest of the family converse and eat?

What day may mild quarrels of husband and wife be carried on in the house guest's presence?

If one is a house guest, just how should the present one give at parting be computed, viz: how many days may one decently stay for a napkin-ring souvenir of the Pasadena rose tournament?

How many weeks for six Japanese napkins and tablecloth?

How many months for six sance dishes to match hostess' best Haviland set?

Professor Dink Beeson wonders if there is anything in proportion to its size that brutalizes the adult male portion of the human race and drives it into profanity as buttons do.

Fickle and undependable from the largest to the smallest, from the highest to the lowest, from the one that adorns his cap, if he wears a cap, to the ones that decorate his spats, if he wears spats, they are all alike, quitters in a pinch, traitors in a crisis.

The collar button rolls into an inaccessible part of his dressing quarters when he is dressing, the cuff button unlinks itself and drops to the ground or the floor unnoticed, the coat buttons fly from their places at the table or the theater and leave him crushed and humiliated in the presence of his fellow-man or fellow-woman.

The pants buttons, well, perhaps the less said about the vagaries and treacheries of pants buttons in a public page like this the better.

The only thing that really reconciles the prof to buttons is the substitutes, viz, hooks and eyes, snaps and safety pins.

Women use them on themselves and on their offsprings, but the proof defies any mere man to master them.

No, after all, buttons are better than safety pins, hooks and eyes or snaps.

No Classes There

Anthropologists tell us that aboriginal Australians could count only to three. There were evidently no people who "really counted" among aboriginal Australians.

THREL FALL.

STARVE HIM, THE BRUTE!

BY ALMA WHITAKER

"Feed the brute."

"The way to a man's heart is through his stomach."

Oh, you know the sort of maxims nice women have been reared on with a view to keeping themselves in the good graces of the lord of creation.

Through the centuries we have been doing it, spending half our lifetime planning and preparing food for them, tempting them, coaxing them, stoking them. Food, meals, cooking, stomachs—these were the first duty of lovely woman, if she really expected her lord to properly appreciate any loveliness that might be hers.

And faithfully, perseveringly, doggedly we have done what we honestly believed to be this, our duty.

BUT IT WAS ALL WRONG. Like a good many of those maxims that have kept us in bondage, shackled and cramped us, it was a screaming fallacy. It was bad for us and infinitely immeasurably worse for them.

We have ruined them, sisters, we have undermined their constitutions, overtaxed their digestion, overstoked their harassed tummies and this benign indulgence of ours stands responsible for most of the grievous ills their flabby flesh is heir to. It is all our fault.

There is a fellow called Eustace Miles in London, a famous athlete, the publisher of a widely read health magazine and a chap who owns and runs half a dozen vegetarian restaurants on the side.

And read the ghastly indictment he has hurled at us:

"I believe that women are responsible for the overeating of men. The habit of overeating commences in the affectionate solicitude of mothers and wives who imagine that if the son or husband does not eat all that is put before him, so lovingly prepared by their hands, there is something wrong with his health. It is a great joy—BUT A VERY SELFISH ONE—for a woman to see a man eat up all that she has so affectionately cooked for him."

Read it over again, sisters.

That is our reward for all those years of sacrificial stomach toadying, our kitchen and cook-stove slavery, our humble dedication to the inner man.

This authority goes on to say that if women would only deny themselves this furious indulgence in abundant cookery, if they would only leave off tempting the ethereal male to a greed beyond his natural esthetic desires, if they would only wean themselves from this pernicious habit of cooking irresistible dishes for at least a couple of days a week the general effect on male health would be amazingly efficacious. In fact, he lays the whole physical inefficiency of men at our doors, blames it upon our apparent passion for "feeding the brute."

Now what do you know about that?

But, of course, he is right. Poor, misguided females that we are, in all devotion we have done this thing. When we should have been starving them with Spartan wisdom, hardening them with coarse and meager food, developing their spiritual natures and disciplining their materialistic stomachs, we were undermining them with fried chicken and candied sweet potatoes, with hot biscuits and oodles of butter, with juicy steaks and French-fried, strewn with mushrooms, with epicurean pies of irresistible perfection, with chocolate layer cakes heavy with icing, with preserves and pickles and salads, prepared with an artistry that intrigued eye and stomach alike.

It has been the worst possible sort of insidious vamping. And—ah, there is the deadly rub—many of us never succeeded in chaining down his dear, fatty, degenerated heart after we had fattened it, it failed just as the other kind of vamping always fails in the end—it cloyed.

Do you remember "So Long, Letty"? In that play the most attractive wife fed her spouse on sardines and crackers, anything in a can or a bottle. The other pampered hers with such epicurean perfections as can only be attained by an unswerving, persistent devotion. AND NEITHER HUBBY WAS SATISFIED.

But the lady who knew how to manage the embarrassing contretemps, who knew how to bring those husbands to their senses and WHO WAS SUMPTUOUSLY SURE of her own spouse's heart during the temporary exchange the ladies conceded, was the one who fed the sardines and the crackers! Letty knew. She had starved her lord into ethereal, spiritual regard. While that other devoted cookery wife suffered agonies of jealousy and suspicion. Just a comedy—but vibrating with a vital truth for misguided women.

And which of us does not know some rather over-well-nourished prosperous husband, whose wife is famous for her "table"—but who is under treatment by a physician and promptly ordered on a stern and frugal diet? The country is full of them—poor, martyred men, sacrificed on the altar of a wife's too-perfect cooking. Ask the fashionable physicians—this sort of a man is the backbone, the mainstay of their practice.

Or visit the fashionable spas in Europe, the fashionable health resorts in this country—reeking with overnourished, pampered, jaded male stomachs, every one a tragic witness to some devoted female's misguided passion for cooking her way into her lord's affections or seeing that the expensive hired cook does it for her.

And the remedy—a Spartan diet. Always, always, less and plainer food. Nothing could be cheaper and easier than that same Spartan diet at home. But the wife and mother who would foist it on her male appendage at home—minus a lordly physician's fee—would feel incredibly cruel, a little indecent and certainly selfish!

But, oh, sisters, they would be so infinitely more spirituelle.

They also discussed the long-delayed formation of the Central American confederation.

This latter project was about to become a reality when President Herrera was overthrown in Guatemala. By it the several Central American Republics would form one union, on the North American plan. This is made possible since the Central American nations have a common history and common patriots in their liberation from Spain, and because of their small size and relative industrial and military insignificance they would gain jointly by such a measure, in the opinion of the Unionist parties of the several countries.

Many believe that the new pact between Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador is a step in the direction of the union, since it shows a desire for co-operation that has had actual results. Should Costa Rica and Guatemala enter the agreement against revolutionists, actual political union then would not be such a difficult step.

EVANGELIST PLEADS FOR BETTER HOMES

"The hope of our nation is in our boys and girls being brought to Christ," said Dr. French E. Oliver, evangelist, speaking at the first fall rally of the Children's Evangelistic Union yesterday in the Church of the Open Door.

"There is a systematic campaign going on to poison the child's mind through worldly amusements and pictured crime," he said. "And since no Anarchist, I.W.W., Communist nor Bolshevist is a Christian, in order to save America let us help this union by making our children and homes Christian."

The Children's Evangelistic Union, under the leadership of Frank A. Miller, has increased its roll this year by 15,000 names.

SCREEN STARS NAMED IN SUIT

action on an incident supposed to have occurred in Catalina two years ago, is indicated in the course taken by preliminary questioning of Mrs. Young last week in the law office of her counsel, Mr. Cohen.

At this time she was questioned regarding her acquaintance with Jack Pickford and Tom Moore.

"The first and only time I ever met Jack Pickford was at Catalina about two years ago this last June or July," said Mrs. Young in reply to a query by Attv. Roth.

"Was Tom Moore there also?" Mr. Roth asked. Mrs. Young gave an affirmative answer, also admitting that Mrs. Marshall Neilan, former wife of the director, was present, too. At Catalina Island, Mrs. Young continued, she "did Moore a very great favor."

"You refer to the trouble between Tom Moore and the clerk of the hotel?" Mr. Roth asked.

Mrs. Young answered affirmatively, saying she had kept him out of trouble then.

"That was the time when he hit him (the clerk) in the eye and he lost his eyesight?" asked Mr. Roth.

"Yes," was Mrs. Young's answer.

Further questioning elicited a negative repy from Mrs. Young to a query suggesting that the four persons mentioned—Pickford, Moore, Mrs. Neilan and Mrs. Young—went to Catalina together. It was not a prearranged meeting, but rather a casual one, she contended.

Further questions and answers dealt with the rooms occupied by the various members of the group, and as to whether or not Moore or Pickford were visitors to Mrs. Young's room. That Moore did call on her, Mrs. Young conceded, saying that he came to her room in the presence of her mother.

"He came to thank me and beg me to write a letter for him, which he was not capable of writing," she said.

The questions were then directed from a different angle and dealt with a Robert Russell, whom Mrs. Young said she met at the home of Texas Guinan in Beverly Hills, and who, she said, was a guest at her home in Hollywood at various times. Other names mentioned were Charlie Schroder, and "a man by the name of Dugey."

She referred to a New Year's day party this year at the home of Doris Pawn, in which she met her husband and said they laughed over an incident in which Mrs. Young says Young broke into her house, "nearly getting a bullet in him" when the police came in answer to her call.

Young's attorneys admit they intend to deal with the Catalina incident when the case comes up for hearing, although Mr. Cohen contends that the matter is irrelevant and aside from the case, and objected to all the questions asked along that line while the depositions were being taken.

Lou Tobias, the clerk at Catalina Island who is said to figure in the episode, was struck by Tom Moore, he admits, in the course of a controversy on June 30, 1920, affecting his eyesight. Mrs. Young at that time interceded in Moore's behalf, asking Tobias not to have the motion-picture actor arrested and prosecuted. On Mrs. Young's plea, Tobias admitted when questioned, he took no action against the actor.

It is known that Young's attorneys are fortified with a series of affidavits from both private and city detectives with which they intend to support their charges against Mrs. Young. The name of Robert Russell is mentioned in these statements, which deal with occurrences at the house occupied by Mrs. Young at 2000 Holly Drive. In papers already filed in Young's action to set aside the property settlement the name appears as "William Russell," but his attorneys have corrected this and explain that the matter does not refer to the actor of that name.

One of Life's Little Ironies

BY DOROTHY DIX

It is one of life's little ironies that men love women for their faults and not for their virtues. Perhaps that is the reason that the feminine sex does not make any strenuous effort to reach the higher planes, but continues to be silly and frivolous and inconsistent, and more concerned about its complexion than its immortal soul. For there is no woman who would not rather be loved than to be right.

Of course, men are quite unaware of this idiosyncrasy. Every man has his ideal of what a woman should be, and particularly has he fixed ideas of the qualities that a model wife should possess. There isn't a woman who hasn't heard every man of her acquaintance discourse by the hour upon this subject. But the woman listens with an inscrutable Mona Lisa smile on her countenance because she has observed that the women who come up to a man's ideal never seems to fire his fancy.

Also she has taken notice that the girls who are best fitted to make good wives never have a chance to be wives, and that the married women of her acquaintance who have the most adoring husbands are not the patient Griseldas but baby dolls.

Therefore, the wise virgins do not take seriously men's strictures upon their weaknesses, and only the foolish ones attempt to make themselves the kind of a woman that a man thinks he desires. The others make themselves what he really wants.

Take the matter of dress, for instances. There is no topic upon which men expend so much really heart-felt eloquence as they do upon women's love of dress. It is enough to raise the hair on your head with horror to listen to what they have to say about the wicked waste of time and money that women expend in adorning their bodies, and you shudder as you hear them tell how women ruin their health by wearing high heels, and chiffon instead of red flannel, and you could weep tears of regret to see how it grieves men that women will forthwith follow the fashion instead of not caring how they look as long as they are comfortable.

There isn't a man, to hear him tell it, who isn't strong for the rational dress for women, and who doesn't believe that women should discard frills and furbelows, for nice, durable clothes, and flat heeled shoes, and sensible hats.

But if you dress a woman up according to a man's ideal, wild horses couldn't drag him around with her. He would die before he would take her to a ball, or be seen in a restaurant with her. The lady he takes abroad is the one who is dressed up within an inch of her life, and whose rags are so extremely glad that they make everybody rubber.

Women know this, and they dress for men, not for other women. In proof whereof, take note that when women are alone with women, they take down their hair, and discard their straight fronts, and put on their flip-floppiest slippers, and most comfy kimonos. It is for men that they don their warpaint and torture their hair into the latest and most fantastic coiffure.

In theory, men admire sensible women. Educated women. Intelligent women. Women who are competent and self-reliant. Self-controlled women.

Alas, in real life the less sense a woman has, the bigger hit does she make with men. Any little Fluffy Ruffles with big, childish eyes with an adoring look in them, can marry three times to a college graduate's once. It is not the lady who can hand out intellectual companionship, and discuss the theory of relativity that men flock about. It is the silly, little goose who chatters along about nothing like a babbling brook.

It is helplessness, not helpfulness, that appeals to a man in a woman. The woman who is utterly incapable of taking care of herself always finds some man to take care of her, because she appeals to all that is most chivalrous in his nature. Also, it tickles his vanity to feel how superior he is to her, but the woman who can take care of herself generally has to do it.

Men don't even care for their wives to be sensible, and act like reasonable, human beings. That's why a woman who really wants anything cries for it instead of wasting her time trying to prove to her husband that she is logically entitled to have it.

Men sing paeons of praise in honor of the dear, domestic girl who stays at home, and helps mama, and darns the stockings, and makes angel food, and fits herself to be a thrifty, economical help-mate to some lucky man.

But the dear, domestic girl never has a beau, and she is left to the fate of a perpetual understudy to mama at home. The girl that the boys run after is the frivolous, little minx whose only knowledge is the latest dance step, and who is far more at home in cabarets than she is in a kitchen.

Furthermore, although men glorify, in song and story, the woman who is nailed to her own fireside, common observation teaches us that the home-keeping woman is seldom the husband-keeping woman. The woman whose husband takes an interest in holding her hand is the one who keeps it in a nice, squeezable condition, not the one who has made corns on her fingers working for him.

Every man believes that he wants a wife whose devotion he can never question, and whose affection for him is so great that nothing that he can do will ever kill it, yet the woman who keeps her husband a lover to the end is one who always keeps him guessing.

In nothing are men's theory and practice so at odds as in regard to women. That is what makes them so interesting that every woman wants one.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Between Views

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Mr. F. W. Webster, in his last letter, says that his former letter "was neither for nor against the return of light wines and beer." The present controversy between the wets and drys is revolving almost entirely around the question of light wines and beer, and if he did not have that subject in mind he was not discussing the question before the house, but his entire article showed plainly that his sympathies were with the liquor traffic, in spite of his claim that he is bitterly opposed to the saloon. All the recent candidates of the wets have been running on a light-wine-and-beer platform, and incidentally you will note that they almost invariably went down to overwhelming defeat at the polls. As an illustration of this, note the recent result in our Tenth Congressional District, also the election returns from Missouri, Ohio, Texas and other points. Evidently the voters intend to uphold the Constitution, which prohibits the manufacture and sale of "intoxicating" liquors for beverage purposes, and our national Congress has decided that liquor containing more than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol is intoxicating, and our highest courts have sustained that decision, so there you are.

He also says that "the saloon was not a cause of crime, but an effect of ignorance." That is an astounding statement and it is directly contradicted by practically all of the judges of our criminal courts, and the officials of our State prisons and other penal institutions, who are in the best possible position to know the facts. It would be fully as accurate and reasonable to say that drunkenness was not a cause of accidents, street brawls, rioting or family troubles.

That the saloon was partly at least, "the result of ignorance," seems plausible. The liquor men must have been woefully ignorant of the spirit and temper of the American people to think that they would forever put up with the utter disregard of law, and the insolent and domineering political activities of the traffic, and the flood of corruption that flowed from it.

Mr. Webster compares the saloon to an affliction of boils. That is not a fair comparison, and he owes an apology to the boils, for while they are temporarily troublesome they may later prove to be a benefit to the system, while the saloon is always a permanent damage and curse to its patrons, physically, financially, morally, mentally, socially and also eternally, for the Good Book says, "No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God." He professes an intense hatred of the saloon and claims that it has no proper place in this discussion, and in this he is right, for it has been legally abolished forever; but he continues to mention and discuss it, although he does not say how he wants the traffic conducted, and still omits to say what name should be given to the new grogshop, when he gets it—yes, when he gets it.

Chapel in the Home

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 14.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Your article on a chapel in the home may sound novel to some of your readers. You either have no knowledge of scripture—or you are not a student of history.

Putting a chapel in every home in this year of fall 1922—would be like installing the lighting fixtures in our proposed public library—before even the present buildings are razed. In other words no place to put them.

In order to properly put chapels in the homes—the edifices must be in accordance with the teachings of the Founder of the first Christian home at Nazareth—Jesus Christ—and His teachings must be taken in their entirety, not piecemeal. There was an altar in every Christian home prior to the reformation. There is a sanctified chapel in every home today that accepts Catholic doctrine as given by Christ to His Apostles to be held inviolate by them and transmitted to their lawful successors of whom our present Pius XI is the vicar.

Judging from the discussions at the Episcopal convention now in session in Portland, some of the right-thinking members do not approve of their founder, Henry VIII of England's idea of divorce—which is purely legalized prostitution. They are changing the rubrics, which is a step in the right direction—yes, you will find in every Catholic home today a little nook dedicated to God—from Gen. Foch's marble altar to the little wooden crucifix in the humblest Mexican hut in Los Angeles.

QUESTION: Is there any kind of a stadium for athletic games in Washington? D. F. G.

Answer: The United States is the only country among the so-called first-class power that so-called boast a national stadium. Movements have been started to establish such an institution in Washington, but up to the present time they have progressed no farther than the making of papier mache models, surveys and investigations as to the success of the "fields" or "bowls" maintained by the various colleges of the United States. The site contemplated for the proposed stadiumis that section of East Potomac Park just north of the ground that has been dedicated to tin-can tourists. It is now covered by unsightly frame warehouses that were constructed hastily during the war emergency. It is estimated that crowds of from 150,000 to 200,000 could be handled there, so far as the transportation problem is concerned, and that it would not be necessary to spend more than $1,500,000 on the stadium.

Parts of Potomac Park are now given over to golf, polo, tennis, hockey, lacrosse, baseball, archery, quoits, croquet, a sylvan theater and a bathing beach.

Q.: What was the origin of eugenics? K. F. H.

A.: Eugenics is from a Greek word meaning well born, and was first used by Francis Galton, the noted English scientist, in 1883, who defined it as "the science which deals with all influences that improve the inborn qualities of a race."

Q.: How long have there been night school in this country? R. T.

A.: The first successful evening schools in this country were established about the middle of the nineteenth century, although an attempt without permanent results was made in New York in 1834.

Q.: Who wrote "You'd scarce expect one of my age to speak in public on the stage"? A.: The lines quoted were written by David Everett, the American writer, who was born in Princeton, Mass., in 1770, and died in Marietta, O., 1813.

Q.: Has it ever been contended that Darwin did not originate the theory of evolution that bears his name? J. D. S.

A.: Darwin originated the natural-selection theory of evolution, so far as he himself was concerned, but it is a curious fact that by an extraordinary coincidence Alfred Russel Wallace formulated the same theory at the very same time of its utterance by Darwin. Both men published articles presenting this theory in the same number of the Journal of the Linnaean Society in 1858.

Q.: What is the widest bridge in the world? H. T. B.

A.: The Scientific American says that probably the Manhanttan Bridge across the East River at New York City is the widest bridge. Its width is 120 feet.

Q.: What is graham flour made of? B. E. S.

A.: Graham flour is defined as unbolted wheat flour.

Q.: What is the official flag of New York City? H. S. A.

A.: The flag has three perpendicular stripes, blue at the left, then white, then orange. These were the colors of the United Netherlands, under which New York was first settled. In the center of the white stripe is the English municipal seal commemorating the English authority, which replaced the Dutch. This official flag of the City of New York was adopted June 24, 1915.

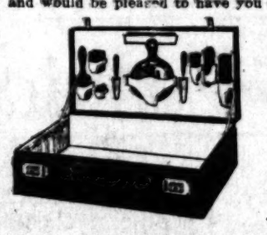
Q.: What kind of a vehicle is a "dandy"? J. D. C.

A.: It consists of a wooden framework which is covered with canvas or American cloth. The cross-poles at each end are carried by four coolies, usually on their shoulders, but sometimes on their heads. It is used by travelers on the corkscrew roads in the hill country of India.

Presentable Luggage

LUGGAGE like hats should be abandoned when it becomes shabby and dilapidated. An old worn-out suitcase, traveling or ladies' handbag when it ceases to be presentable does not become one who dresses well or tastefully. It spoils the otherwise nice appearance a person makes to carry a shabby piece of luggage, there being a lack of harmony. It is mostly carelessness on the part of most people who dress well and at the same time travel with dilapidated luggage. There is no excuse now for doing this, because good luggage was never so low in price as it is at present. We have a few good values to offer and would be pleased to have you come in any time and inspect our wonderful array of new, attractive goods.

We have a new Indestructo guaranteed wardrobe trunk like cut we show here for $42.50. The cut does not begin to show its real worth nor its attractive appearance nor its convenient arrangement. Our sales of this trunk have been enormous and we have been complimented by lots of people on having so wonderful a wardrobe trunk for this price.



The large cut we show here of the fitted case we are selling for $40.00. It is impossible in the cut to show the beauty of this case. It contains 15 toilet articles set in a folding tray that locks with a key, and this tray is detachable and may be used separately. The case is of superior quality and is lined with brocaded lining of pleasing pattern. The toilet articles are French shell. We suggest that you secure one of these cases for a holiday gift. It would be a very acceptable present.

The smaller fitted case we are offering for $22.50 and it is an unusual case for this price. It contains ten French shell fittings set in lid of case.

The cut showing Beaded Bag is a special we are offering for $5.75 and is made with a shell frame.

The cut showing the Cordova hand-tooled bag we are offering for $10.00, and is the finest bag we have ever had for that price.

We are offering a high-grade, heavy cowhide leather 17 and 18-inch traveling bag, lined with leather, for $9.50. We have had no time to produce cut of same, but we assure you that it is a wonder for $9.50. Another with lighter leather for $7.50.

Our Cowhide Suitcases, ranging from $10.00 to $25.00, are in a class all by themselves for the price named and in large quantity of them we have sold good evidence of their popularity.

When we endeavor to describe our wonderful assortment of Vanity Bags and Ladies' Handbags we must confess that any and all adjectives we have at our access to fail to describe their beauty and real worth. We take pride in our Vanity Bag and Vanity Box display and want you to see them. We have hundreds of different sizes, styles and colors, and have priced each and every one so low that there can be no question regarding value. Value is our constant theme, and we are ever watchful to see that in our splendid shop is ever present. We have found in our years of experience that good values, coupled with intelligent, straightforward salesmanship, builds up a constant, increasing business that is extremely gratifying.

Let this shop be your shop and you will have no regret, because we promise to satisfy you at all times.

TEAMS MAY COME SOUTH

Multnomah and Olympic Club Elevens Plan Game for Pasadena on Armistice Day

BY H. E. THOMAS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 17.—In all probability the Multnomah Club-Olympic Club football game on Armistice Day will be played at Pasadena after all. Ted Faulk, manager of the Portland clubmen, has about completed arrangements for the southern trip.

When the offer was first made there seemed little likelihood that the game would be in the south, as there was a desire to see the two clubs in action in Portland. That will be solved by bringing the Olympics to this city for a return game, a plan that has met with approval in San Francisco.

Pasadena undoubtedly will witness one of the best club contests in years. Last season Multnomah played the Californians off their feet, but there is not likely to be a repetition of this one-sided showing. The Olympic Club is expected here to make good use of the great amount of material available in San Francisco to build up an eleven that will go out to avenge last season's defeat.

BOAST STRONG TEAM

The Portland Club, however, will again be very strong. Faulk has rallied a bunch of veterans, including most of those on last year's team. The renowned Bill Steers, who at first said he wouldn't play, is turning out, just as it was expected he would do when the time came. It is hard for a player of Steers's experience and ability to give up the game. He will not only play, but will also rank as assistant coach, although he will serve without pay, retaining his amateur standing.

Including in the new material from which Multnomah will draw is Mike Moran, last year's fullback at Washington State College. Former University of Oregon men available include Everett H. Brandenberg, captain of the eleven that met Harvard; Bill Reinhart, quarterback; Spike Leslie, center, and Thomas A Strachan, tackle. Two Oregon Aggie stars are in the squad, Robert Stewart, center, and Charles S. Rose, end, while Stanford contributes R. A. Brown, end, and C. W. Pallett, center. There are many others, but this gives an idea of some of the strong material with which Multnomah will work.

First practice at all Northwestern colleges started last week and from now on the various squads will make the most of it. There is a feeling here that California and Southern California gain a certain advantage because of their early opening. Although they start formal practice on the same date as the other schools they profit from almost a month's informal practice and association of the men before the other schools get started. Oregon, for instance, does not open until October 2, although there has been an effort to have just as many as possible of the gridiron candidates on hand for the first practice.

The University of Oregon's outlook is not so bright as it was when school closed last year, according to the latest reports from Eugene. Indications were the eleven would lose only one of last season's men, Spike Leslie. Now it is reported that several others will not return to school. These include Floyd and Tiny Shields, star guards, and Ward Johnson and Chuck Parsons, halfbacks. If they actually fail to show up it will leave a big hole in the Oregon eleven. There is an intense college spirit at Oregon and it may be depended on that every effort will be made to get these faltering players back on the campus. Callison, Oregon center for the last two years, will be back in school, but will be out of the game at least for the present. He has been working in a Coos Bay logging camp and was recently injured by a rolling log. It is hoped that he will be able to play by the time of Oregon's more important games.

Oregon's worries are chiefly with the line. Even if Johnson and Parsons fail to show up there is still strong backfield material available, including Latham, King, Chapman, DeArmand, Jordan and Gram, as well as some good freshman graduates. But if the Shields and Callison are out the line would have to be rebuilt around a nucleus consisting of Rud Brown and Hugh Clerin, ends, and Karl Von der Ahe, tackle.

Whoever framed the University of Idaho schedule for this season certainly deserves to win the cut-glass mustard plaster. Idaho will not have a single game on the home campus. It will play Whitman at Walla Walla, Washington at Seattle, Washington State at Pullman, Oregon at Portland, Utah at Boise, Gonzaga at Spokane and Montana at Missoula. Originally the Washington State game was staged for Moscow, but even that has been changed.

THREE NEW MARKS SET IN REGATTA

Speed Boats Shatter Old Records on Niagara River Course

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BUFFALO (N. Y.) Sept. 17.—Three new records were made today in the closing heats of the international power-boat regatta on the Niagara River.

Baby Holo, owned by Horace E. Dodge of Detroit, credited with one of the new marks, at the same time settled her three days' duel with Baby Sure Cure, by defeating the Strasburg boat in the rubber. Baby Holo, which classes as a 2200-cubic-inch displacement hydroplane, covered the twenty-mile course in 19m. 14s., an average speed of 62.4 miles an hour Her fastest five-mile lap was at a speed of 64.06 miles an hour.

Woodfish, Edsel Ford's boat which yesterday was erroneously credited by the judges with a new mark, made one today by covering the thirty-mile course at an average speed of 53.2 miles an hour.

SIKI WANTS CRACK AT CHAMP

BY FLOYD GIBBONS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—"Tell Jack Dempsey he's my next meat." was the message the Chicago Tribune today was asked to convey to the champion by Battling Siki, a young Senegalese, who fights Georges Carpentier in Paris next Sunday.

"I'm going to knock out Georges in the first round and then go straight to America and camp on Dempsey's trail," continued Siki, who has knocked out many of the best men in Europe, but has never been knocked down himself. Nobody in Paris except Siki himself thinks he has a chance against Carpentier.

Siki is absolutely stylaless. His saving grace is high resistance. He has been hit on the head with a hammer and scarcely felt it. He crouches against the ropes and bounds toward his opponent, striking with both hands. Often in swinging he turns entirely around. He makes not the slightest attempt to guard. He is 28 years old, drinks hard liquor heavily and is always lit up when he enters the ring. He is a regular bear-cat when drinking, more than a dozen policemen being necessary to throw him out of a saloon sometimes.

PASADENA GRID GAME ASSURED

Pacific Conference Action to be Disregarded

Tournament of Roses Heads Issue Statement

Say Penn State Practically Certain to Play

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PASADENA, Sept. 17. — Pasadena will have a big football game January 1, regardless of any action of the Pacific Coast Conference, Tournament of Rose officials declared today. If the conference decides against an East-West struggle here, two big eastern teams will supply the spectacle.

J. J. Mitchell, president of the tournament association, denied a published report that negotiations had been broken off because Pasadena had failed to meet the association's terms. The negotiations are still pending, Mr. Mitchell insisted.

"We are practically certain of Penn State as one of the contending teams," said Mr. Mitchell. "What the other will be is still uncertain, but you may be sure a game will be held. There is no secret about what Pasadena is willing to do, and it is fully understood that it is in no sense a commercial proposition."

The estimated receipts of the New Year's Day game in the new stadium are about $185,000. The teams will receive $35,000 each for their expenses; incidental expenses are figured at $5000, and the balance will go toward the completion of the stadium, or rather to repay loans floated for the completion. A complete statement of receipts and expenses, showing just what becomes of every dollar, is available to the conference and to every interested person, Mr. Mitchell said.

"We have always co-operated with the Pacific Coast Conference in the past, and we expect to do so in the future," said Mr. Mitchell. "There is no breach in the relations and we have no reason to expect there will be."

LONG BEACH CRAVES CHANCE TO MEET MANUAL ARTS FOR INTERSCHOLASTIC GRID TITLE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, Sept. 17.—Back in the graces of the California Interscholastic Federation, blessed with the return of twelve letter men, eight of them first string veterans, the Long Beach Polytechnic high school is this week merrily engrossed in the noble art of pigskinning.

For the past two years the Long Beach eleven has craved inwardly and outwardly, secretly and publicly, just two things. One was reinstallment in the C. I. F. That has been accomplished. The other was, and still is, a crack at Manual Arts. Long Beach and Manual Arts, while both in the City League, are placed in different divisions and will not have the opportunity of meeting unless each school should be fortunate in winning the championship in its respective section.

BEST WISHES

Therefore Long Beach has nothing but the best wishes for Manual in its march for the division championship. In the meantime the local knights of the tanbark will devote their attention to annexing, if possible, the scalps of such schools as Lincoln, Jefferson, Poly, L. A. and Pasadena, all the while praying for Manual victories on the other side of the fence. So keen is the rivalry between the two knowledge factories, especially in the gridiron activity, local fans are of the opinion that the scrap, should it develop, would constitute the prep classic of the south this season.

Many of the city schools of Los Angeles, local fans charge, made no secret of their elation when Long Beach was barred from participation in C. I. F. football as a result of staging the Everett (Wash.) intersectional tanbark tussle here two years ago against the wishes of the league officials. Therefore Long Beach is out for gore with added impetus this fall, with the Los Angeles municipal institutions its chief "meat."

PRIMED FOR BATTLE

Many of the Long Beach athletes found employment in the oil fields and ice plants during the summer months and have returned to school in prime physical condition. Morley Drury, captain, left end and outstanding star of the Jackrabbit eleven, is back from Wyoming, where he worked in the oil fields. Drury accumulated a set of Sandow muscles and twelve additional pounds during vacation and is starting the season like a whirlwind.

Other first string veterans back in the moleskins for Long Beach this year are Tandy, Price, Anderson, the Hill brothers, Bering and Lev. In addition to this nucleus for the 1922-1923 squad Coach Kienholz has four men who made their letters, although not in the first string division. They are Wallace, Ellis, Wilson and Mattson.

LINE ALMOST INTACT

SEALS FINISH STRONG AND GRAB BOTH TILTS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 17.—San Francisco wound up strong before 14,000 persons today by taking both games of the double-header, 5 to 4, in ten innings, and 6 to 3. The Beavers, however, won the series, four games to three.

A home run in the tenth inning by Kamm broke up a pitchers' battle between Leverenz and Oliver-Mitchell. In the second game, the Beaver infield went to pieces in two innings, not one of the six San Francisco runs being earned. Scores:

COLORED LEAGUE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Harlem, New York City boasts a colored basketball league.

TWO RACES IN ONE AT HARBOR

Sixty-six-Mile Event Planned for Power Boats

Marine Event Will Attract National Interest

Young Lady to Pilot Craft in Ocean Classic

With possibilities, or rather probabilities, of sensational rough-water thrills, a speedboat event of extraordinary interest will be staged at the harbor next Sunday by the California Yacht Club and the Los Angeles Athletic Club Motorboat Racing Association. It will mark the opening of an annual class contest that will attract national attention because of its special aptness to demonstrate the good qualities and bring out the weak points of various craft. This race will be a classic and a hard grind of sixty-six miles over the famous Joe Fellows course, consisting of four continuous laps of sixteen and a half miles each, starting at the L. A. A. C. outer harbor anchorage, thence outside the breakwater and around the Point Fermin buoy, thence to Long Beach, and back to start. They will be off at 1 sharp.

TWO IN ONE

The fans, and their number is becoming legion, will have the unique sport of witnessing two races in one. While devised for speedsters powered with the Hall-Scott A7A motor it was thrown open by special dispensation to boats with other motors of 810 cubic inches or less displacement. No restrictions of any kind regarding construction have been imposed, eligibility depending solely upon the power used. While there will be two distinct classes in nowise competing against each other all the races will start simultaneously. Step boats and boats without steps will go whizzing over the course together, and there will be a fine opportunity to study and compare them all under varying conditions. The result will go a long way toward promoting the building of practical, seaworthy boats, in which we already lead the world.

Prizes worth while are hung up for this ocean speed and endurance battle, the winner of first place in each division having the choice of a valuable silver cup, design to be submitted, or a Hall-Scott motor and gold shield; an silver shield to second, and a bronze shield to third in each class. Interest in the outcome is keen and there are eight entries, the largest number of fast ones that ever started together on the Pacific.

A NEW FEATURE

There will be a stunning new factor to reckon with—a young lady driving her own speedster. She is Miss Arselle 1759 Kenmore avenue, Hollywood, and the boat she has had built and handles most capably is the Magna. Two others not heretofore participants in such events will be there—E. B. Giffen, driving his new Radio, and Leo D. Berner of Glendora his Scoot. Here is the full list:

Magna, by Miss Arselle, Hollywood. Boat 19 feet 6 inches long, 6-foot beam. Hall-Scott A7A ignition motor, 800 cubic inches cylinder displacement.

Speedster, not yet named, entered by Dustin Parsons; 20 feet in length, has 6-foot beam, A7A motor, 800 inches displacement.

Radio, by E. B. Giffen, length 24 feet, 6-foot beam, A7A motor, 800 inches displacement.

Lucky Strike, by Alvin E. Frank; 26 feet in length, 5.8 beam, Hall-Scott L6454 motor, 540.62 inches displacement.

Scoot, by Leo D. Berner, Glendora, length 22 feet, 6-foot beam, 800 inches displacement.

Radio, by E. B. Giffen, length 24 feet, 6-foot beam, A7A motor, 800 inches displacement.

Lucky Strike, by Alvin E. Frank, step plane, 26 feet long, A7A motor, 806 inches displacement.

Mystery IV, by Frank E. Garbutt; length 21 feet; Hudson super-six auto motor, 288 inches displacement.

Joker II, by Ralph Hamlin, step plane, 19 feet long, A7A motor, 806 inches displacement.

Valve-in-Head I, by Harold W. Tuttle; length 24 feet, 806 inches displacement.

Joker II, by Ralph Hamlin, step plane, 19 feet long, A7A motor, 806 inches displacement.

Browns Climb to Within Half Game of League-Leading Yanks in Mad Dash for Fl

SHUCKS PRUETT TURNS BACK NEW YORK HORDE

Sisler Sets New Mark for Hitting; Ruth and Williams Hit Out Homers

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 17.—Hubert (Shucks) Pruett, phenomenal young pitcher for the St. Louis Browns, held the New York Yankees to five scattered hits, struck out eight men, and the Browns today climbed back to within a half game of the leading Yankees by defeating the visitors, 5 to 1, in the second game of a series of three, which it is believed will determine the champion team of the American League.

By winning today, the Browns evened up the series, New York having won the first game yesterday.

WILLIAMS TAKES LEAD

Babe Ruth knocked out his thirty-third home run of the season in the sixth inning of today's game. Pruett was pitching and no one was on base.

Kenneth Williams also smashed a home run, his thirty-eighth, with Sisler on base in the eighth inning.

George Sisler, first baseman for the St. Louis Browns, today broke the record established by Ty Cobb of the Detroit Tigers in 1911, when Cobb hit in forty consecutive games. Sisler singled in the sixth inning, making it forty-one straight contests in which he has hit safely. By hitting in his forty-first consecutive game, Sisler established a new modern major-league consecutive hitting record. He needs to obtain at least one hit in each of three more straight games to equal the record made by Keeler in 1897, when Keeler hit in forty-four consecutive games.

Lawton (Whitey) Witt, centerfielder for New York, who was knocked unconscious when struck by a pop bottle presumably thrown by a fan in yesterday's game, was back in the line-up today.

The game was a pitchers' battle between Pruett and Waite Hoyt for five innings. The Browns managed to gather several hits, but not opportunely, while Pruett held the Yankees helpless.

HOYT HIT HARD

Hoyt was touched for three runs in seven innings and Jones, who took up the hurling duty after McMillan batted for Hoyt in the eighth, allowed two more markers.

In the sixth inning Ruth, who, in his first two times at bat, had walked and fanned, connected for his thirty-third homer.

But the locals came right back and took the lead by scoring three runs. Foster walked, Sisler singled and Foster scored on Williams' single. Jacobson popped to Scott and McManus fanned. Williams stole second and he and Sisler crossed the plate on Severeid's burning liner over second base.

THREATEN TO SCORE

The Browns added two more counters in the eighth on Sisler's base on balls and Williams's four-base hit.

New York threatened to score in the ninth when Dugan and Ruth singled in succession with none out, but Pipp forced Ruth, Schang fanned and Pipp was thrown out by Severeid as he was trying to steal second.

Another capacity attendance was on hand.

Wildly enthusiastic, the crowd seemed to forget yesterday's incident in regard to Witt being struck by a pop bottle. The umpires walked to the centerfield crowd and had policemen stop a group of fans from waving handkerchiefs which, it was said, bothered the batters. Score:

Wilde to Mix With Villa in Brooklyn Ring

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Jimmy Wilde of England, world's flyweight boxing champion, has accepted terms for a title contest in this country with Poncho Villa, Filipino sensation, who captured the American flyweight title last Thursday night by scoring a technical knockout over Johnny Buff. This announcement was made tonight by Dave Driscoll, matchmaker for the Ebbetts-McKeever company which operates Ebbett's field.

The date for the contest has not been set, Driscoll declared, but he considered doubtful whether Wilde could reach this country and get into condition before the outdoor season closes.

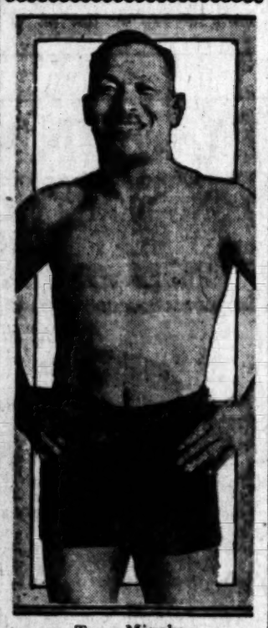
NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—England will send a cricket team to South Africa this season.

TARO MIYAKE TO SHOW TWO STYLES ON MAT



Taro Miyake

Renato Gardini, the Italian wrestler who meets Wladek Zbyszko in a two-hour match at the Hollywood American Legion stadium Wednesday night, combines business with his grappling. That's why he is so anxious to toss "Zibby." The latter, who, by the way, arrived in Los Angeles from San Francisco yesterday, is considerable of a matman himself.

Gardini has the match with Joe Stecher here or in San Francisco in mind and he must get over Zbyszko in order to obtain it.

"I don't like these fellows who all the first-rate men respect," says Gardini. "You know there must be some reason for it. Zbyszko is a Pole and all Poles are good wrestlers. His brother, Stanislaus, Johnny Meyers and Walter Miller, great middleweights, are Poles. I'll do my best anyway and no matter how tough Zbyszko is, he'll know he's been in a match."

Promoter Umberto Rovere is also showing Taro Miyake, the famous Japanese jiu jitsu expert, in a one-hour match with "Toots" Mondt of this city. Mondt is now on route here from Denver. Mondt and Miyake wrestle jiu jitsu style for thirty minutes and then grapple catch-as-catch-can for another half hour. The former, if he does not get hurt while wearing the treacherous Japanese jacket, ought to make up for lost time when he gets Miyake on the mat at his own game. Miyake will be remembered for his great battles against Ed. ("Strangler") Lewis and Walter Miller at the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

"This mixed match," says Promoter Rovere, "will furnish the thrills of the night. I'm still worried about Mondt for Miyake can twist and injure his arms or legs." Bull Montana will referee.

ANGELS AND SUDS SPLIT TWIN BILL

Seraphs Take Long End of Series from the Seattle Indians

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Sept. 17.—Los Angeles won the series by dividing today's double-header with Seattle, the Angels taking the first contest, 5 to 0, and the Indians the second, 4 to 1.

Crandall, pitching shutout ball had the Indians helpless all through the first game, while his mates hit Gregg hard in spots. The Indians got only three safe hits.

In the second game, Williams, a recruit pitcher, twirled unbeatable ball, holding the Angels safe at all times. It was the second brilliant start for the Virginia right-hander.

The fielding of Billy Orr featured the second contest. Scores:

BENGALS BUMP SOLONS TWICE

Tigers Win Five of Seven Games in Series

Essick Boys Send Specs Shea to Showers Early

Jakie May is Whole Show on Mound for Locals

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS

Among important local developments was Jakie May winning his thirty-first game without even working up a sweat. Making it thirty-one was some achievement, but palls into insignificance alongside the absence of perspiration.

With spectators in lather and running on the bit, Jakie seemed cool, collected and comfortable, and defeated the foam-flecked Specs Shea, 9 to 1. Bengals went out and made a batch of runs for Jakie which he didn't need, thereby relieving him of all worry. Jakie's curves were the only sultry things about him. Five hits netted the Soapy Solons one unearned run.

SPECS STARTS GAME

Specs Shea started the game as a pitcher and his brother Mervyn finished it as a pinch hitter. Neither succeeded. The Shea boys will go into spring training at home this fall, when Specs will throw codfish balls at the breakfast table, with Mervyn receiving.

The affair was to have been a pitching duel between May and Shea, but terminated otherwise, the Tigers dusting Specs off with three runs in the third and finishing up on Peters. Solons played the best they knew at all times all week, taking two out of seven. Dell took the abbreviated measure of Fittery, 8 to 2, in opener.

Dad Meek, one of baseball's oracles and oozing wisdom at every pore, confided in Secretary Lorens that Vernon will cop the pennant by a margin of from three and a half to four games. Dad says he is willing to rise or fall on that platform.

Game was attended mainly by shade huddlers. This meant a big grand-stand squad. Citizens preferred to sit under roof and sweltering elbow to elbow, rather than fry separately out in open. Still, there were some wilted sunflowers in bleachers, with here and there a drooping lily, giving a melancholy beauty to our baseball garden. Bleacher bugs leaned their backs against billboards advertising ice cream and juice of orange, which, while not cooling them, seemed to ease their minds. Karl Sawyer caused a wave of envy to sweep bleachers by camping just off first base under umbrella. Next thing outfielders will be reclining under awning and umpires using palm-leaf fans.

Bill Essick's men leaped with glee into the hot combat. Paul Fittery was under impression that ton of bricks had been inadvertently spilled on him by careless aviator distributing building samples. But it was merely Tigers hopping his frame for six runs in the afternoon's first inning. True, Paul had a couple of bad breaks, but an abundance of legitimate warfare also happened to him. He says Turks are gentlemen and ladies alongside Tigers.

STARTS ON WRONG FOOT

Fittery started off on wrong foot by passing Chadbourne. P. Samson Schneider slammed a grounder down to Bunny Pearce. Ball took unexpected and vicious hop over Pearce for single. Smith doubled Chad across and sent Schneider to third. Bodie grounded to the box, no advance being made. Pearce pulled down tall bounder by Locker and threw to plate, but Schneider was too fast for him. Hannah singled, scoring Smith and putting Locker on third. Fittery fanned French and walked Zeider, filling lanes of traffic. Wheezer Dell scored wheezer with large double to right center. Thus Wheezer made the world safe for Wheezer, Chadbourne, up again for what many thought should be the start of a fresh inning, finished the old one with fly to Ryan. Vernon copped another in fourth lest pastime pall on fans. Merlin Kopp played the top of the fence for Schneider in this round, but was forced to come down, run in and catch a short fly. Before Kopp could get back and guard fence, Smith knocked homer over top of same. Outfielder, to be successful, should be able to run up and down fence like mouse scampers up and down inside of plastered wall. Scapy Solons rose to surface in second and eighth, after which they went down for third and last time. Score:

Young Brown in Trim for Bout With Goozeman

Young Brown has practically completed training for his battle with Ernie Goozeman in the main event at Doyle's Vernon arena tomorrow night. Both men have met Danny Kramer and tomorrow night's melee will go far to determine which is best featherweight on the Coast.

Larry Murphy is certain that although he was knocked out last week at the hands of George Sirey that he can reverse the tables. Murphy is a comer and for that reason Matchmaker Wad Wadhams has given the Hollywood 135-pounder another try.

Louie Garcia hasn't put in an appearance for some time since his triumphant return from the East, but he has drawn a tough 135-pounder in Johnny Tyman, whom he meets in the future preliminary.

Frankie Nevey won over Georgie Rivers at Hollywood some time ago, and tomorrow the 116-pounder will tangle in a return go at Vernon. Other bouts follow:

Jack Moore vs. Ernest Owens, 130.
Joe Mendez vs. Johnny La Rose, 118.
Lucky Lago vs. Eddie Watson, 145.

SAYS BODY IS WORTH LITTLE

Pastor Puts Chemical Value at Ninety-eight Cents

Mrs. Charles Oden Heard in Sacred Service

Vermilyea's Tenor Has Strong Appeal

That the chemical ingredients which go to make up the human body can be bought in the corner drug store for not to exceed the declaration made in most bankers-in yesterday by Dr. J. Howard Fagan, pastor of the Wilshire Boulevard Christian Church, the sermon given from which after this declaration Dr. Fagan proceeded to delineate why man, though chemically, or by the standard of measure used in placing value on the lower animals, is, because of his reasoning power and intellect, of more worth, bearing out the saying of Jesus: "How much more value is man than a sheep!" The salient points of Dr. Fagan's sermon is given in another column.

The musical part of the sacred song service was given by Mrs. Charles Oden, soprano, and Stanley Vermilyea, tenor. Due to lack of time, Mr. Vermilyea sang but one number.—"The Savior's Command," by Chipman. Accompanied by Frederick North, who has earned an enviable reputation as an accompanist of voice in a relatively short time in Los Angeles, Mr. Vermilyea, clothed this sacred number in raiment fitting the occasion and the clear and appealing quality of his voice showed to good advantage.

Mrs. Charles Oden, whose solos have been heard from church on several occasions, accompanied by Mrs. Merle Smith, sang "Light," by Frederick North, and "The Silent Voice," by Oen Rhoma. These numbers, Mrs. Oden's interpretation, formed an appropriate musical setting for the theme of the morning. Her voice has a charm which she has learned to like and which has earned her a firm place among their favorites.

FALL WORK IN GUNNERY COMMENCES

Six Destroyers Arrive from San Diego to Join Fleet in Practice

Starting the opening this morning of the annual fall gunnery exercises and maneuvers of the Pacific fleet, six destroyers arrived in the bay at daylight yesterday from San Diego. Coming up to participate in the spectacular exercises are the cruiser Raleigh, they being in command of Capt. E. H. Campbell, commanding destroyer squadron, in the flotilla are the Stewart, (flagship,) J. F. Burnett, Percival, Dallin and Parrott.

During the week lean craft will engage with the superdreadnaughts Tennessee and California in battles ashore. The Raleigh, also a unit of Division 2, was to have operated with the Tennessee and California but will not call for Mare Island this morning at 4 o'clock this morning for repairs. She will return Thursday.

The torpedo nurseries today will mark the closing of the fall gunnery and maneuvers program of the fleet, and until the fleet sails, several units will be at Mare Island daily with the destroyers, aircraft, submarines and battleships, with the exception of Saturdays and Sundays. The fleet maneuvers this year provides for a change of base of more importance on Saturdays.

The main force of the Pacific fleet is now at anchor in San Pedro bay. Now, the fleet returned and the mine-sweeping arrived early this morning from Mare Island.

These two stations send out weather reports, music, lectures, a few market reports, and talks on various subjects.

Radio frequency currents when conducted by wires travel through a thin layer of metal along the exterior of the wires. This phenomena is known as "skin effect." The loss of radio energy in the wires depends on the electrical conducting properties of the exterior layer of metal. Insofar as electrical conducting properties are concerned, pure copper is the most commercial metal, but it lacks sufficient strength for some purposes.

The core of a wire carries no radio-frequency current. The core may therefore be made to perform a greater mechanical duty. The ideal wire for radio antennae, therefore, should have a core of high strength metal such as steel, and an outer covering of high conductivity metal such as copper.

The Bureau of Standards plans to conduct some real comprehensive tests this winter to find out the effecting working ranges of radiophone stations.

The National Fire Protection Association specifies in its rules for radio receiving stations that wires inside of buildings shall not come nearer than two inches to any electric light or power wire unless separated from it by some continuous and firmly fixed nonconductor. This nonconductor shall be in addition to any regular insulation on the wire, says the N.F.P.A.

PASTOR SAYS LIFE MADE FOR GROWTH

In his sermon at Park Congregational Church yesterday morning, Rev. Henry Stauffer said, in part:

"God has made us for growth in character and usefulness, and he who fails to choose the way of growth refuses to enter life. The law of change is written on every cell of the body and on every faculty of the human soul. Regardless of what you think about it, you are not at the present time, what you were last year. You are destined either to grow in grace or become a case of arrested development.

"Growth means a continuous change for the better with its endless series of happy surprises at every stage of the interesting process. It means finer insights, broader outlook and an everincreasing sense of the value of life. He who fails to obey the divine law of growth faces stagnation—a blind alley leading nowhere.

"One of the essentials of growth is nourishing food. As the human body is continually burning out and wearing out and must be daily renewed by food, so the soul must be continually sustained by food on which it depends for its sustenance. What is the food of the soul? The truth apprehended by faith and reason. One of the vital truths is that love in its varied forms of compassion, forgiveness, kindness and service, is life."

Jack Protas, baritone.

WHAT IS A MAN WORTH?

BY REV. M. HOWARD FAGAN,
Pastor Wilshire Boulevard Christian Church

Matthew XX, 12: "How much then is a man of more value than a sheep!"

How much is a man worth? Is he worth more than the lower animals? A sheep ready for the market is worth about $8. A hog would bring about $18. A fat steer is worth about $75.

"Viewing man from a material or physical standpoint what is he worth? The human body contains several ingredients, such as fat, iron, sugar, lime, phosphorus. It has been estimated that all the useful ingredients in the human body can be purchased at the drug store for about 98 cents. This isn't even the price of a chicken. From the material standpoint then a man is not worth as much as one of the lower animals.

"And yet Jesus places upon man the supreme value. The words of my text are not a question. They are an exclamation—'How much then is a man of more value than a sheep!' The fifth chapter of Mark tells how Jesus cast the demons out of a man and permitted them to enter into the herd of swine, 2000 in number, which rushed into the sea and were drowned. He considered one man worth more than 2000 hogs. In Matthew x:31, speaking of our Heavenly Father's care even of the sparrows Jesus says, 'Ye are of much more value than many sparrows.' Wherein then is a man of more value than a sheep.

IN MENTAL POSSIBILITY

"There is no evidence to show that the lower animal can think or reason. Man alone has this possibility.

"Our schools exist to teach us how to think. One philosopher has said, 'If heads that think must ache, perforce, for my part, I choose headaches.' The trouble with most of us is we are not willing to think.

"The mind of man has accomplished wonderful things. Automobiles, electric cars, railroads and airplanes have been perfected because man has learned to think. The telegraph, telephone and the marvelous radio stand as a testimony to the power of man's mind. In the world of medical science and surgery it is almost unbelievable the things that the mind of man has achieved. This is also true in the realm of music and art. It is said that Millet, the French artist, purchased for 60 cents the canvas, brushes and paints with which he painted the famous picture, 'The Angelus.' This picture recently sold for $105,000. And this because to that canvas was brought the power of the artist's mind.

"Though man has made wonderful achievements in every realm of life, yet there are still unconquered fields ahead. I am one who believes that the best is not in the past, but rather in the future. The best sermon is yet to be preached, the best song is yet to be sung; the best picture is yet to be painted. The golden age is in the future. Like the horizon, opportunity is ever calling us onward and onward.

THE MEN NEEDED

"God give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands;
Men whom the lust of lucre does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking.
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking;
For while the rabble with their thumb-worn creeds,
Mingle in selfish strife, lo! freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land, and waiting Justice sleeps.
—J. G. HOLLAND.

"To any student who may be listening-in I would say take time to get your education. The world can wait for what you have to give. Don't be turned aside from your studies by some flattering offer. It is sometimes better to learn than to earn. You cannot build a ten-story building on a two-story foundation.

"Man is worth more than a sheep because of his moral and spiritual possibilities.

"It is not enough that you and I have a strong physique and keen intellect. We must develop the moral and spiritual faculties. Education without moral restraint is dangerous. A few years ago while visiting in the Oregon penitentiary I observed a man who seemed to be of superior type. I remarked to the warden who was showing me through, 'That man we just passed does not look like a common criminal.' 'No,' said the warden, 'that man is from a superior family, and is a graduate of one of our eastern universities. In fact, it is his ability as a penman that has put him in this institution to remain for many years. He is one of the most clever forgers that ever entered prison walls.' He had keen intellect, but he lost the right perception of moral and spiritual value. And it is a most pathetic thing to hear our own Sheriff Traeger of Los Angeles report that in this county in the last fifteen years, the average age of the criminal has dropped from 41 to 25. Well does he ask, 'What will it be in another fifteen years?'

"The greatest thing that you and I can do is to live a big, clean Christian life. For life is the most powerful argument in favor of Christianity. What we need is not to argue religion, but to live it. By your life you can stop the mouth of every carping critic, and silence every scoffer of Christianity. The question is are you big enough?"

29 convenient locations

Bank where there is personal contact

THROUGH the twenty-nine offices of California Bank we offer you the convenience and advantage of banking where you live.

The convenience is apparent—the advantage will make itself best known to you by personal contact.

For instance, serving the Wilshire and Sunset Boulevard Districts there are three "branches"—

At Seventh and Alvarado the Westlake Branch accomodates the business and homes centering about beautiful Westlake Park. The Branch Manager, Edward B. Murray whose photograph we show has served this district for years and is well acquainted with its needs and growth.

At First and Vermont Avenue the branch by that name serves a rapidly growing business center in a prosperous neighborhood. Robert T. Cheatham who has managed this office from its inception is building in a big way for the strength of his community.

At Sunset and Alvarado in the heart of the Sunset Boulevard district rises the impressive office of Sunset and Alvarado Branch. Robert S. Stearns who has managed the temporary location from the day it opened is here to help further the plans for a greater Sunset Boulevard District.

COACH JONES GETTING BUSY

Iowan Assembles His Lads for Coming Season

Sixty-one Hawkeyes on the Eligible List

Expect Trouble in the First Tilt With Knox

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

IOWA CITY (Iowa) Sept. 17.—Sixty-one candidates for the 1922 University of Iowa football team assembled before Coach Howard H. Jones on Iowa field last week, to get ready for that highly formidable task of retaining the Big Ten gridiron championship within the grasp of the Hawkeyes. Twenty-six of the candidates are varsity men of last year and thirty-five of then are the remnants of that vast host that fought for places on the freshman football team last season.

Somewhere in the ranks of those three-score pigskin experts Coach Jones hopes to uncover the equal of that incomparable quartet, A. Devine, "Duke" Slater, Glen Devine and Lester Belding, lost to the Hawkeyes at the hands of that arch conspirator against championship teams—graduation. George Thompson, Wester City, Iowa, lineman of last year, will not be lost as previously announced and that may be said to be the one really bright spot in the future—for the Hawkeyes.

EXPECT TROUBLE

Iowa's troubles are expected to pile up in the very first game of the season—a practice game for most teams. Knox College, the Illinois David, is expected to bring an even stronger team against the Iowa Goliath October 7 at Iowa City than it did last year. And, history\records, Knox was the only team to score two touchdowns on the Hawkeyes last year. More than that, the Congregationalists are coached by Dr. Edward B. Grogan, famous end on the Knox team ten years ago.

Then comes Yale at New Haven, Ct., October 14. "Small hopes there," many Iowa fans have wailed and with good reason, perhaps. The Hawkeyes will be meeting a team that has been in training for more than a month and that will have played three games already. The Hawkeyes will have completed a thousand-mile flight, something not conducive to the best tactics on the gridiron.

IS DANGEROUS

Illinois, that team that boosted Iowa into the championship of the western conference last year by beating Ohio, is regarded as one of the most dangerous foes on the Hawkeye card this fall. The two teams meet October 21, at Urbana. Iowa, will play Purdue October 28, at Iowa City and then rest November 4, with the homecoming game with Minnesota just in the offing—November 11. The four defeats that Iowa has heaped upon the Gophers in succession are expected to make them anything but easy opposition this fall. The game will be played in the new Iowa stadium with its capacity for 23,000 spectators.

On November 12 the Hawkeyes will enter Ohio's new stadium to clash with the Buckeyes, new opponents for the Iowans. If a census of opinion was to be taken on the matter Ohio would probably rank with Yale as being Iowa's stiffest opponents on the 1922 schedule. Certain it is that there would be few to dispute it. Iowa will finish with Northwestern at Iowa City November 25.

Assisting Coach Jones, chief mentor, in rounding the Hawkeyes into shape will be Maj. Ray C. Hill, Albert P. Jenkins, Bill Kelly. Aubrey Devine will coach the freshman team and Walter R. Fiesler will be medical supervisor for the Hawkeyes.

TEACHERS NAMED FOR PASADENA

Military Academy Lists Seven New Men for Faculty of School

Col. C. M. Wood, superintendent of the Pasadena Military Academy, announced that seven new members of the faculty will take up their duties at that institution on the opening date of the fall session, September 26. The added members of the faculty are: Walter Q. Moore, formerly of Clinton, Tenn., for the sciences; Otto Haelsig, from Miles City, Mont., associate teacher in modern languages; D. L. Reddick, Walkersville, Md., Department of History; W. L. Crandall, Hudson, Wis., art and penmanship; H. A. Stromberg, Tabor, Iowa, mathematics; Frank L. Smith, Lincoln, Nebr., Commercial Department; Lieut. Dan B. Hall of Chicago, assistant commander.

Other members of the faculty retained from last year, are: Capt. Charles E. Hicks, headmaster; Maj. H. A. Blackwell, commandant of cadets; Capt. Earl S. Wallace, physical training; Capt. E. S. Stower, music; Capt. L. W. Tozier, director of band and orchestra; Capt. J. J. Frisch, English; Capt. A. C. Woolnough, Commercial Department.

Extensive repairs are being made on the building and new classrooms added, according to Col. Wood, who said that enrollments to date for this year are already far in excess of the number for any previous year at this time.

"The military training of our academy, while not carried to the extreme extent of an army cantonment, is sufficient to secure the desirable amount of physical benefits and the moral stimulus that a well regulated system of that kind is expected to give," said Col. Wood.

BERGER IN DEMURRER TO DIVORCE COMPLAINT

The demurrer of John Berger, promoter of the Pageant of Progress, to the divorce complaint of Elizabeth Berger, will come before Judge Crail today. In her action Mrs. Berger charges that her husband abused her, swore at her, was niggardly with money, and asked that he be enjoined from disposing of $75,000, purported profits of the Pageant of Progress.

FILM STOCK SALE HALTED

State Corporation Commissioner Declares Shortage Exists in Funds of Syndicate

Stock selling in the Rellimeo Film Syndicate, a million-dollar motion-picture promotion headed by Dr. Orlando Edgar Miller, was halted Saturday by Corporation Commissioner Daugherty and an application for an amended permit to continue to sell stock in the corporation was denied until the tangled affairs of the corporation are explained to the satisfaction of the State authorities.

Official notification that the Rellimeo Film Syndicate license to sell stock in this State had been suspended was received in Oakland by Dr. Miller Saturday. The letter was signed by Corporation Commissioner Daugherty, and stated that the film corporation officers will have to explain an asserted $15,000 shortage in their funds, as well as supply the Corporation Commission with a full list of their stockholders.

Corporation Commissioner Daugherty admitted that Dr. Miller had been notified that no more stock could be sold by him or members of his corporation.

"From what we have been able to learn," declared Mr. Daugherty, "the Rellimeo Film Syndicate has only sold $75,000 worth of stock. They were to have raised $1,000,000 from these stock sales before August 11 of this year. Of the total sum collected 20 per cent was to go to promotion, in accordance with the law. The corporation therefore should have about $60,000 in cash in the bank. We have been informed that only about $45,600 is to the credit of this corporation with the banks in San Francisco and we want to know where the other $15,000 went."

"The Corporation Commission also wants to be informed by the Rellimeo Film Syndicate of the complete plans of the corporation before an amended license to sell stock can be issued," declared Mr. Daugherty. "We must have these facts, and unless they are forthcoming, no amended license will be issued by the office."

While no member of the film corporation or attorneys acting for the corporation could be reached it was learned that Dr. Miller began promotion of the film syndicate which was to give his idea of applied psychology to the world, during last January. Most of the stock sold was disposed of in California.

Dr. Miller, before he began the promotion of the new syndicate, was often before the public as a lecturer, president of the International School of Applied Psychology and a patent medicine seller.

Archbishop Consecrates Institution

With hundreds of young men and women attending, including many students and teachers from Loyola College, the new St. Paul's School at Washington and Bronson avenues, was formally dedicated yesterday afternoon. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Edward J. Hanna archbishop of San Francisco. A brief patriotic program was given which included the raising of a large flag. St. Paul's School, which was opened recently with an enrollment of 100 pupils, is in charge of the Sisters of the Holy Cross of Notre Dame, Indiana.

NARCOTIC SEIZURES ARE MANY

California Activity Leads Every Other State in Nation, Statistics Show

According to the figures compiled by Collector Goodcell, California has a better record for the seizure of drugs and convictions than any other State in the Union. The same holds regarding the confiscation of whisky and wine. California heads the list in the revenue department's seizure of narcotics. One year's record shows that 8203 ounces confiscated, as against 8764 ounces in New York and 4940 ounces in Virginia.

In California the narcotics included 1806 ounces of opium, 1457 ounces of morphine and 1900 ounces of cocaine. There were 169 convictions obtained here, as against eighty-eight in New York and fifty-six in Pennsylvania.

In California there were 1255 registered and unregistered violations reported, of which 878 were delinquent on special taxes. Not only did the revenue office convict 169 of these violators, but collected special taxes and penalties from the entire list of delinquents.

In unregistered violations reported California leads with 297 cases, Illinois was next with 271, and New York third with 207. California has 11,000 registrations of persons authorized to handle narcotics.

In one year 62,813 gallons of whisky and 99,305 gallons of wine were seized in California. This leads any State in the Union.

CITY JOBS OPEN

Examinations to be Held for Fifty Harbor Positions

The city Civil Service Commission has just announced examinations for fifty different positions in the artisan and mechanical trades. These examinations are for the purpose of securing eligibles for appointment in the harbor department at the harbor. All applicants must be American citizens. Further information and application blanks may be secured upon application at the branch office of the commission at First-street wharf Lon Angeles Harbor, or at the main office at Normal Hill Center, Los Angeles.

BUSINESS IMPROVES

Demand for Employees Greater Than Supply

Business and industrial conditions in Los Angeles are shown to be on an upward trend by the report from the Y.M.C.A. employment service stating that during the first half of the present month sixteen more men were placed in jobs than during the whole of September, 1921. This service during August of this year located 271 men and could have placed more, if they had had them, for 378 positions were listed during that time.

Diet and Health

THE ATONIC ABDOMINAL WALL—NO. 1

It would seem absurd to say that coal miners needed any special exercise, wouldn't it? Yet Dr. Chesney Ramage, who evidently is an examining physician of coal miners at Fairmount, W. Va., says they do!

Don't put this article down now because you are not a mine worker. This is going to be very valuable to you no matter what your work is.

The word atonic means without tone. So an atonic abdominal wall would mean relaxed abdominal muscles. This is a condition which is exceedingly common.

Dr. Ramage found that it was quite common even among healthy coal miners. If healthy coal miners, with all of the exercise that they get, can still have relaxed abdominal walls, you can see how easy it would be for those who have no physical work at all to have this condition.

Now, relaxed abdominal muscles also mean relaxed abdominal organs, for without the powerful assistance of the supporting wall of the abdomen, the ligaments holding up the movable organs in the abdomen—the stomach, intestines, liver and spleen in the male, and those organs and the internal generative organs in the female—are also apt to become relaxed and drag down more or less.

If this state goes to a certain degree the condition is known as enteroptosis (entero, entrails; ptosis, fallen.) The disorders and discomfort arising from this condition are much worse than its name.

Dr. Ramage, in an article in the American Medical Journal of June, 1922, says that he had a large number of strong, healthy coal miners who came to him complaining of all of the ills in materia medica, and they all had in common this one thing — the atonic abdominal wall. While they had enormous biceps—arm muscles—and chest muscles and strong muscles of the back and thighs, their abdominal muscles were flabby.

(Dr. Ramage accounted for some of these cases by the fact that at some time these men had been injured and during that period had not used their abdominal muscles, and they had continued this nonuse of them.)

Some of the diseases these men thought they were suffering from were appendicitis, gall stones and gastric ulcer. They all had chronic constipation and nervousness. General abdonimal discomfort after meals and headaches were also complained of.

Great care was taken in the physical examination to see that there was no local disease, and when there was none, the cure was effected almost entirely by exercises which develop the abdominal muscles.

Dr. Ramage found the best exercise was that of lying on the floor and rising to a sitting position without the use of the hands. This exercise, taken morning and night, caused surprising results. The abdominal muscles developed very rapidly; the bowels became more regular at once and other symptoms cleared up gradually.

Many of you have written to me asking if it is necessary for you to exercise if you have heavy physical work. Will you please take a lesson from this? Those of you who are suffering from constipation also please take a lesson from this, and those who have an accumulation of fat so that your tummy is your pet aversion, also take a lesson from this.

The development of the abdominal muscles is not consistent with the development of fat on the abdomen.

In beginning this exercise, which is one of the best of our exercises and one which I have recommended frequently for everyone, begin very gradually and stop when you are tired, rest a short time and begin again.

If this were practiced up to fifty times, night and morning, it should keep the abdominal wall firm, and the resultant benefits to the abdonimal organs would soon be manifested.

Begin today with five. Increase one a day to fifty or more. Let me know your results?

LAWN OWNERS OBJECT TO SPRINKLING BAN

Make way for the folks who sprinkle their lawns! Their number is legion. They will have their inning at 9 a.m. today in the office of Acting Mayor Criswell when they arrive to protest against the new lawn-sprinkling ordinance just enacted by the City Council.

Acting Mayor Criswell has the ordinance before him to sign or veto, and before taking action he desires to hear both sides of the question. Hence, tomorrow morning's conference, to which have also been invited those whose clothing has been ruined and their tempers aroused over wayward lawn sprinklers which wet down passers-by.

It was their complaints that caused the Council to enact an ordinance requiring home owners so to set their lawn sprinklers that only the lawns, and not the passers-by, should be sprinkled. Home owners say it is impossible to water all parts of the lawns without a tiny bit of water spraying over on the sidewalks, hence there is opposition to the ordinance.

Money! Money! Money!

POP was easy and the family knew just how to make a little touch. While he worked hard to pay the bills, his wife and children learned to play bridge with a grand manner.

Dear old dad. He remembered earlier days when mother would serve the dinner in a blessed gingham apron. Now there was a butler.

Now there was only disapproval of his lack of social grace and his homely attire. But he remembered the dear, meaningful words of long ago, "John, I love you."

MYTHS AND FANCIES

INGRAM'S ZENDA INTRIGUES WITH BEAUTY

By Edwin Schallert

Kings and dukes and a lot of other things suddenly came to life with the presenting of "The Prisoner of Zenda" in the Rex Ingram version yesterday afternoon at Loew's State Theater. The local showing of the film signalized the beginning of a new policy at the house, by which pictures are given first place on the program, and "Zenda" was selected as the screen production, which, by its elaborateness, was most suited to the occasion.

The Anthony Hope story, on which, via the Edward Rose stage play, the picture is leased, holds fond recollections for many of us. It is one of the romantic thrillers which for many years has captivated by its intense charm the mind seeking adventure via the printed page. Rudolf Rassendyll's impersonation of a king, his hopeless love for a princess, his battle for the peace of a mythical kingdom and his restoring of the rightful monarch to the throne, all provide excitement which has not diminished even to the present.

Mr. Ingram's picture is an earnest effort to visualize the events of the story and something of its stimulating charm. He hasn't caught the delicate aroma—the bouquet of the Hope original, but he has manufactured a palatable substitute. In the main, his "Zenda" is zestful, and in the artistry of sets and imitations of sets, and in types it possesses great pictorial allurement, while the actual drama evinces more climax than Mr. Ingram has heretofore been able to put on the screen. The final duel scene is as tense an affair as any that we have had lately in pictures, and the subsequent parting of Rassendyll and the princess is a episode of much feeling.

What seem particularly lacking in the picture are the finer semblances of reality. I don't know that the original story showed these in any greater degree fundamentally, but we weren't so aware of the fact that the characters were cut out of pasteboard. In the film all their superficiality hits us right in the face. With the execution of Rassendyll himself, we are not swept off our feet by anything that happens, because it all seems so far away and unimportant.

Lewis Stone has perfected a real character in Rassendyll. He isn't the type you might have imagined because of the silvering influence of years, but he is remarkably convincing, despite this handicap, simply and entirely because of his acting. Alice Terry is lovely to look upon as the Princess Flavia, but is in no sense the aristocrat of even a mythical court.

Barbara La Marr captured us, however, with her command of European sentiment as Antoinette, the Mauban. If anybody is due for a sudden and brilliant rise in the costume drama, it is Miss La Marr with her evasive, Latineseque beauty. Even in spite of a not enchanting profile, she manages to make herself a rare Calypso.

There are flashes of ability from Ramon Navarro, the much-heralded find of Mr. Ingram, but for the most part he indulges in clownish mugging. Malcolm McGregor impresses as one of the real people in the picture. Robert Edeson makes Col. Sapt live vividly in your memory, notwithstanding a ferocious mustache of questionable origin. Stuart Holmes heavies his way through the picture in his traditionally dynamic style. Edward Connelly offers an amazing character, while Lois Lee is prettily present.

Ingram's "Prisoner of Zenda" is to be recommended because it is one of the notable pictures of the year in its architecture and beauty. If you find faults with its realness, you will at least be delightfully intrigued by its spirit of romance and adventure.

"MY FRIEND, THE DEVIL," AT MISSION

Most of the time a critic can manage somhhow, somewhen, somewhere to classify a picture, but for once I confess myself utterly baffled by "My Friend, the Devil" which is shewing at the Mission Theater. The only thing to which it bears even to slightest resemblance is one of those horrible sentimental German novels, which are much worse than any atrocity ever perpetrated in Belgium, about a mean husband, who is an atheist and eats goulash and a woman who has a lover.

Of course, in "My Friend the Devil," the husband doesn't eat goulash, but he shouts down, and everything connected with religion. And the wife, while by no means the long-suffering haustrau, being instead a nasty and fractious little hussy, does get into a love entanglement with an artist.

The picture is in three periods. The first shows how our here becomes an atheist when a lightning flash which he thinks should have killed his brutal father, strikes instead his mother. The second period reveals him as a successful physician whose one belief is science, and whose family life is wrecked by his disbelief. The third episode shows his conversion, owing to his love for his daughter. These are the distinctive features of the story. Elsewhere it is dramatic claptrap.

Only in the final reel does the dramatic cadaver take on life. The first breath of fresh air is the appearance of the daughter and her fiances. But their romping about the stage in contrast to the manners of yesteryear, elsewhere disclosed, cannot be said to have aught but a rather transparent humorous purpose.

Myrtle Stewart, Charles Richman, Peggy Shaw, William H. Tooker and Barbara Castleton try to make us believe that the plot could appen by their acting.

FLASHES

BALZAC BURIED

BUT DUCHESS' CELLULOID DOUBLE AMUSES

By Grace Kingsley

You can't send the office boy to the pictures any more if you're a critic. You have to go yourself. Because the picture makers are delving into the classics for their subjects. Not that you will see these clasics reproduced on the screen. You won't. You will find all the delicate nuances of feeling, of character, all fine balance of dramatic situation cut out and the good old hokum substituted. Probably the producers can tell you there are censors, and churches, and about the film's limitations, and other reason's for these changes. But the point is, the screen has failed to reproduce the classic in question.

Then the way they rename things! "Othello" would probably be called "Frozen Love," as a good box-office title, while the "Love of Three Kings" might be renamed "Poisoned Lips, or the Cook's Revenge."

Take Balzac's "Duchess De Longeais," for instance, which Norma Talmadge is starring in at the Kinema, and now called "The Eternal Flame." This picture is a very pleasing and entertaining picture—and beautiful! It's simply perfect. Norma looks just too sweet for anything in her nun's costume, for one thing.

But it is not Balzac.

Where is the delicate balance of Balzac's drama? Where are the vivid but elusive characterisations and situations of the story concerning the noble French woman? Where the sense of resistless tragedy? All gone!

The duchess, as Balzac was careful to point out, was proud but pious; she was a coquette partly out of ennui, partly because of the fashion, partly because she was French and beautiful and couldn't help flirting; in short, a product of the times. But she never knew the pain she was giving. She was the queen salamander of her period. She was really artless in her art. She was not bitter. Also she never knew love until Montriveau had left her, nor did she deceive him by telling him she loved him. She fenced wittily with him.

But the Talmadge version starts off with a vulgar device and one foreign to the story when the Duc de Longeais bets a companion that his (the duke's) wife will permit the friend to become her lover, which, coming to the duchess' ears, embitters her soul. She had many followers in the Balzac story, but in the screen story you would think she was a Puritan.

There is no background, no national philosophy or character—and nothing left of the period but the costumes.

And then the ending—what a disappointment! A saccharine finish, instead of the majestic irony and tragedy of events when the lover finds his nun-mistress dead in her cell as he invades that holy spot to carry her off!

All the sympathy is thrown to the duchess on the screen. Whereas, in the original story, one feels the resistlessness of involuntary reaction of character on character—the lover demanding all, the duchess holding out from a mixture of motives, including an unawakened heart, yet acting in such a manner as to make her appear a heartless coquette. So sympathy is divided between the lovers.

Miss Talmadge, beautiful as she is, and commanding as she does a wide range of emotional expression, is hamperd by her very opportunities! Why did she not insist on playing the character as she really was! And why does she pose so much?

Conway Tearle seems miscast. He does not suggest the doughty soldier of conquest, but the chocolate soldier, the he-vamp.

As for the rest of the characters, except Rosemary Theby, who was a delightful little devil, their style seemed cramped by their period clothes!

CLOSE DEAL FOR SAN DIEGO THEATERS

Announcement has been issued from headquarters of the West Coast Theaters, Inc., that a deal for the addition to their chain of silent drama theaters, of the Plaza, California and Kinema theaters of San Diego, have been consummated during the past week. This follows negotiations between W. W. Whitson and the executive board of this theatrical chain, with final arrangements completed for the transaction by Harry C. Arthur, Jr., general manager of the West Coast Theaters, Inc., and Dave Bershon, booking manager, for the entire circuit.

Through this deal the West Coast Theaters, Inc. become interested in one of the leading first-run photoplay houses in San Diego, associated with Mr. Whitson in the operation of these theaters.

"GRANDMA'S BOY" IN FINAL WEEK

The start of the nineteenth and last week of Harold Lloyd's five-reel comedy, "Grandma's Boy" yesterday at the Symphony to capacity business and a line waiting for admission proves beyond doubt the popularity of the Symphony attraction.

Were it not for the fact that "Where Is My Wandering Boy" is booked for a showing starting next Sunday the Lloyd production would probably be held.

Two Late Wells Started in That Section

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BAKERSFIED, Sept. 16.—Use of a new drilling method is being watched closely by Kern county oil operators in the Elk Hills field where for the first time a new attachment to standard drilling tools is being tried out by the Western Oil Fields Corporation, composed principally of Oakdale men.

The new drilling device permits circulating mud in the hole, without withdrawing the drill, as is done in rotary work. This is the first time the device has been tried out with standard equipment and it is said very satisfactory results are being obtained.

J. S. Ellis and G. L. Baker of Oakdale were here this week to inspect the property. The well being drilled by the company in the Elk Hills is now down 2200 feet and a strong showing of gas has been encountered. The gas pressure is so strong that some disposition of it may have to be made before the State oil and gas supervisor will allow the company to break into the oil formation. The company is using an 8 3-4-inch casing.

The Midway Gas Company has successfully brought in a new gas well on section 27, 31-23 in the Buena Vista hills.

TESTS FOR WATER

Only two new oil wells were started in Kern county last week, these being the work of the Pacific Oil Company. One well is located on section 35, 31-23 in the Midway and the other is in the same field, on section 11, 32-24.

Tests for water shutoff numbered seven, three being in the Elk Hills, two in the Midway and one each in the Sunset and Kern River fields.

In the Elk Hills the Pacific Oil Company is deepening its No. 7 well on section 31, 30-24, while the Standard Oil Company is redrilling its No. 5 on section 31, 30-25 in the Elk Hills.

Tulare county is forging ahead in the oil industry in a quiet way, a recent survey shows. The newest oil lease to be reported is the one that has been taken on the Gianinni ranch between Visalia and Tulare, where Hart Brothers, who are drilling the Corcoran well for the Kings-Tulare Oil Syndicate, will start drilling operations as soon as machinery can be taken to the property.

The Kings-Tulare syndicate well, near Corcoran, is now down a little over 3500 feet in black shale.

DRILL IS LOST

At the Baker well, located west of Porterville, a drill was lost in the well and the crew has been "fishing" for several days.

North of Visalia at the Sims lease a boiler is being installed and a water well is being dug preparatory to starting work on the oil well for which a rig is now being erected and machinery being installed.

North of Goshen it is expected that an early start will be made in drilling for oil on the Gold-Urner lease.

Not all the wildcat wells are expected to be producers, however. Promoters who drilled 2000 feet in a hole on section 7, south of Porterville, and spent approximately $30,000, have sealed up the hole and have abandoned their efforts, at least temporarily. No trace of oil was found, according to J. J. Dunn, the driller. A considerable area in the vicinity of the well is under lease to the General Petroleum Company which expects to drill to a depth of 3500 feet before striking oil.

Near Patterson the San Joaquin Petroleum Company has reached a depth of over 1150 feet in a well being drilled there. The drill is now going through a meganeous shale formation.

Stock Pool at Jerome Unites Many Holdings

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

JEROME (Ariz.) Sept. 16.—Green Monster stockholders have been offered one share of stock in the New Verde Consolidated Mines & Tunnel Company for each three shares turned in. The new enterprise is being pushed by James M. Layman, who still lacks co-operation of a majority of Green Monster stockholders, but who is hopeful. He already has pooled control of the Copper Chief, Equator, Copper Extension Layman-Washburn and Larson-Colbath properties.

Plans have been made for a 10,000 foot tunnel to cut the Copper Chief and Equator ore bodies at 3000 feet depth. It is planned to give the original stockholders 1,000,000 shares of preorganization stock at 50 cents and then to offer 500,000 shares at $1. From the proceeds the big tunnel is to be driven. It will cross much ground of attractive sort and there is a speculative idea that through it new ore bodies may be developed.

Jerome Grands has elected Norman F. Wyloff, president, and J. C. Scott, secretary-treasurer. Thers also has been reorganization of the Jerome Superior, with Charles W. Kitts, president, Charles D. Lindsay, secretary-treasurer, and George Mitchell, manager.

HUGE BLAST LOOSENS NEW CORNELIA ORES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AJO, Sept. 17. — August production by the New Cornelia Copper Company will probably fall short of capacity, which is from 2,000,000 and 2,125,000 pounds of copper a month. The last big tunnel shot at the steam shovel pit was fired recently, breaking up about 60,000 tons of material, 18,000 pounds of powder being used.

WEEKLY STOCK RANGE

The Public Service Department of the Merchants' National Bank of Los Angeles issues the following table of the range of prices on the New York Stock Exchange for the week ending September 16, together with the net changes as compared with the close of the preceding week.

MEN GIVEN WAGE RISE AT BISBEE

Companies Say Conditions do Not Justify It, but Are Seeking Good Will

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) Sept. 17.—A rise of 10 per cent in the wages of mine, smelter and mill employes includes the Copper Queen, Calumet & Arizona, Superior, Old Dominion, Miami, Inspiration, New Cornelia, Ray Consolidated, United Verde, U. V. Extension and other mines and reduction works of their localities.

General Manager P. G. Beckett of the Phelps Dodge Corporation has issued a statement on the subject of the rise, which he says has not been exactly justified by the condition of the copper market, but explains that it has come about mainly through a desire to make copper mining attractive and to show good will by the companies toward their employes, which, it is hoped, will be reciprocated and made evident by an increase in efficiency. The new scale gives Bisbee miners, after October 1, $4.95 a shift, and muckers $4.55.

The Mexican Metals Recovery Company of El Paso has filed incorporation articles in Arizona, naming John F. Ross of Tombstone as its resident agent. The directors are: Elgin B. Holt, C. W. Goodeke, D. A. Richardson, George F. Williams, J. E. McIntyre, J. J. O'Brien and W. V. Wright.

The Nighthawk Leasing Company of Warren district has declared a dividend of 10 cents a share.

WORLD BEARISH NOW ON WHEAT

Plenty of Grain Throughout World for Present Need

Foreign Political Views Mean Irregularity

Strikes Have Little Effect on Crop Movements

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The world is bearish on wheat. This remark was made by a large operator at the close yesterday in explanation of the indifference on the part of buyers abroad as well as in all exporting countries, despite the low level of prices. At the same time it is apparent that bearish conditions which have dominated the markets for months are weakening.

Should wheat be not high, considering the purchasing power of a dollar, it is low from a producer's standpoint, as wheat and grain values have not responded to improved business conditions.

Between prices are practically a thing of the past, the fluctuations are mostly going a record business, the grain movement at primary markets last week was 6.7 per cent in excess of the five-year average, despite the car shortage.

All things considered, the trade is disposed to buy wheat on declines below 91 and sell on bulges at 1.00 above that level. December wheat sold at a new season's low, last week, 99 3-8 cents, while September dropped to within 1-4 cents of its previous low and May touched 104 1-2, also a lower level than heretofore. Prices are off about 20 cents from the high point for the present futures. Last year at this time values started on their big decline, while this year they have declined irregularly for months, and December wheat has been down to within 1 1-8 cents of the low point made early last November and May to within 1 1-4 cents of the low point at that time, which was 103 1-4.

Apparently there is plenty of wheat the world over for all requirements, but this does not necessarily mean that values are to continue to decline, indefinitely, as all bearish conditions are discounted at some time during a crop season.

With political complications rapidly increasing abroad, combined with their unfavorable financial conditions, a new set of conditions has been injected into the wheat situation which may result in irregularity in values.

Cooler weather, with good recent rains over a large part of the corn belt, stopped crop deterioration, and will revive pasturers. It also checked bullish enthusiasm on the part of country speculators, who bought corn moderately of late, and brought a realizing movement with a break of 2 5-8 cents on December and 2 3-8 cents on May corn from the high of the previous week. Country holders of cash corn in Illinois and Iowa are selling on every bulge.

Despite heavy losses to the corn crop in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Tennessee and Missouri, and moderate losses in the Mid-West, the trade should not lose sight of the fact that Iowa and Illinois combined have more than an average crop and yields on some of the other States are close to an average.

MONEY MARKET GUESSES AGAIN

Wall Street Indulging in Usual Autumn Puzzle

Returned Vacationists Jump at Useless Leads

Too Many Contradictions to Determine Outlook

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—It is a well-known financial tradition that the Wall-street community comes back from its summer outing convinced that some one phase of the financial or industrial situation will govern the movement of the autumn markets, only to discover after a few weeks that the really dominant influence is something altogether different.

Everyone can recall that autumn markets, which Wall street had thought would be shaped by the state of trade, by the export surplus, or by railway earnings, turned out to be subject almost exclusively to news from the harvests, or a tightening of money or a turn in home or foreign politics.

DIFFICULT OUTLOOK

Probably the autumn of 1922 will be no exception, and by Thanksgiving Day we shall be looking back at a series of financial causes and effects which will then be perfectly obvious, but which now are not in sight. As yet, the most that can be definitely assumed is that the labor troubles, which were almost the sole controlling influence on the summer markets, are now in a fair way to be forgotten. Stock market and bond market moved last week on the general lines which would have been predicted a month or two ago; but with this difference, that in both an atmosphere of hesitation and uncertainty, a disposition to await the actual unfolding of events, were evident as they were not in the first half of the year.

The harvest outlook, except for cotton, remains extremely favorable. Prospective railway earnings, with the huge volume of all kinds of freight now pressing for transportation, are a matter of legitimate encouragements, especially in view of the hard experience which many of the weaker roads have had to face during the past season. The ease in the money market shows no sign of changing; it remains only to be seen whether the existing low rates and their stimulus to the investment market will be in any respect altered through the large financing, which would seem to be necessarily on the government's program in preparing for the Victory maturities. No one is predicting financial unsettlement over the autumn political campaign, although experienced financiers are mostly anticipating widespread reversal of majorities in the November vote. Whether the disturbances of Europe's political situation will be taken any more seriously by our financial markets than was the "currency crisis" of last month, will possibly depend on the market's mood.

REASONS FOR SLUMPS

For last week's fall in the European exchanges, there were so many possible causes that it was at no time easy to say what was the primary influence. So far as advance or decline in those rates indicates, the market's view of Europe's political situation, the present deadlock over Germany's reparations payments, the economic condition of Central Europe, the confused situation created by Turkish victories over Greece and the controversy regarding the mutual debts of the Allies, might suffice to explain the present weakness. So far as the actual trade balance between Europe and this country is a controlling influence, the prospect of larger necessary purchases of American products, taken along with England's prospective of the accrued interest on her government's war debt to our Treasury would go far to explain the week's reaction.

The Turkish affair is one of those awkward incidents which invariably occur at intervals after an effort at readjustment in the disordered conditions following a great war. Probably it will be settled without much further serious commotion, but none of the states concerned wishes to upset its budget of expenditure by large military requisitions, and the great powers are still a unit in insisting on European peace.

TWENTY-TWO WELLS SUNK IN PAST WEEK

STATE SUPERVISOR REPORTS 955 STARTED IN 1922; ABANDONMENTS, 196

Oil field operations reported to State Oil and Gas Supervisor R. E. Collom during the week ending Sept. 9, 1922, show twenty-two new wells started, as compared with twenty-nine during the previous week. The total new wells this year is 955, as compared with 1005 the same date last year.

Tests for water shut-off this week numbered thirty-seven, as compared with thirty-one during the previous week. Yearly total to date 1186; total to same date last year 1103.

Deepening or redrilling jobs this week numbered six, as compared with ten during the preceding week. Total to date this year 565, total to same date last year 523.

Abandonments this week numbered 2, as compared with six during the preceding week. Total to date this year 194; total to same date last year 151.

NEW APPARATUS AT OATMAN INSTALLED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

OATMAN, Sept. 17. — The new sampler of the Tom Reed Gold Mines Company, which has been awaited with much interest by smaller operators in the Oatman district, is now being played in commission and is expected to increase the output of the Tom Reed mill considerably. Oatman United, Oatman Gold and others will ship ores to the enlarged plant.

MARKET ABROAD NOT DISTURBED

Europe Becoming Calloused to War Scares

Turkish Securities Held Largely by France

Paris Unwilling to Use Huge Army

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—The overthrow of the Greeks by the Turks last week and the resulting fear of a new war in the Near East has only momentarily disturbed the market, which is becoming calloused to Allied dissensions.

The French policy favored the Turks, as the latter long ago ceased to be a menace toward the Balkans or the little Entente and the preservation of the Angora government as a second-class nation conciliates the Mussulman populations of Algeria and Morocco.

Moreover the Ottoman bonds are largely held in France and as their currency has not decreased in value through inflation, their interest service has largely been resumed. It is feared, however, that a prolonged campaign might again cause a suspension of payment.

GRECIAN EXCHANGE DOWN

Greece has likewise been built up through European investments, but though coupons are generally secured by the customs tax, the income has been much reduced by the fall of the drachma to less than one-sixth of its par value. The government securities of both of these countries have risen with the capture of Smyrna, for the defeated country is counting on a rapid peace which it is felt will be less disastrous than even a Pyrrhic success waged with borrowed money.

The French government is committed to a minimum expenditure outside of internal needs, and it is realized that assistance to Greece would eventually mean that their own troops would be called upon at great expense, as England has none available.

French taxes for the month of August show a steady increase amounting to 15 per cent above the corresponding period for 1921, and only 2.5 per cent below the customs and business turnover, which latter is 66,000,000 short at 127,000,000. Even here, however, the total is 30 per cent higher than last year, with the probability of improvement in a steady recrudescence of business activity. This is already under way, as normal buying is again in evidence with the expectation of higher prices this fall, due to the exhaustion of stocks and the depreciation of the franc.

COAL WELL SOLD

The coal mines are largely sold out and the fear of an unusually cold winter has stimulated the public to buy early. Metallurgical products are in large demand with sales being made in Scotland and other countries. Electrical issues continue in demand led by the "Union De Electricite," the country's largest company, which supplies Paris and vicinity. The prospects are that these companies should improve with the electrification of railroads and modernization of suburban districts. Even in Paris and Lyons the householders largely rely on oil and kerosene for lighting, which, of course, necessitates an unnecessarily heavy importation from the outside world detrimental to exchange.

The drop in interest rates is continuing, despite the enormous government demands. This drop is reflected in the rise of the 4 per cent war loan to 64.30, and the 5 per cent loan to 78.10. If a new consolidation loan is not launched in November there will be a considerable rise in these issues, but this is uncertain and dependent upon the arrangement with Germany.

POLITICAL ANXIETY DEPRESSES MARKETS

LONDON EXCHANGE HAS DISMAL WEEK, WITH LOSSES AT CLOSE

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Sept. 17. — Political anxieties have depressed the markets generally during the week. The reparations crisis coming tomorrow, and serious developments in the Near East, unsettled business and gave the bears an opportunity to make disastrous raids in all directions.

Added to this were the unusual amount of continental selling and a certain amount of liquidation here. It is little to be wondered, therefore, that the exchanges passed a dismal week with a lot of losses at the close.

The possibility of a rise in the bank rate kept the gilt-edged market still inactive. Although no change was made, it was felt the movement was merely deferred. The fall in New York exchange was a further dampening influence. Consols and war loan fives met with liquidation on all features received.

There was a fair turnover in industrials, which netted a notable advance in the beginning of the week, but profit-taking later on brought prices down again practically to the starting level. Irons and steels were almost stagnant.

Tobaccos suffered from profit-taking. Textiles as a whole were bad, suffering losses of several points. Oils continued to be dealt in fairly large scale, but as the week advanced, operations tended to be confined to outstanding leaders such as Royal Dutch, Eagles and Shells, which consequently moved upward. Apart from these, however, the general tendency was downward.

The high spot in mines was touched by Russo-Asiatics, which advanced the first day nearly two shillings on the signing of the Urquhart-Krassin agreement. South Africans were off color with Kaffirs distinctly weak. Rand Mines and Debeers also came in for declines. A better tone was manifested in rubber, one of the minor features of the week. Cheerfulness in this department still is only moderate, but compared to the gloom which heretofore has prevailed is most encouraging. No marked rise in prices, however, is yet materializing.

HUNTINGTON HOLDING OWN

Nine-Hundred-Barrel Well Brought In

Six Producers Swell Long Beach Output

Gusher Struck by Standard at Springs

Despite the fact that Long Beach is bringing in a well a day and Santa Fe Springs is producing from two to three big ones a week, Huntington Beach is not to be lost sight of. Following the bringing in of a 1200-barrel well by the Union Oil Company on the Copeland property the Selby-Root Hogue Oil Company has proven the value of the deep sands on the Clark lease by bringing in a 900-barrel well at 4268.

The Amalgamated Oil Company's Fowler property is yielding some excellent producers. Fowler No. 4, the latest of a group of good deep-sand wells, at 4050 feet came in a 600-barrel well, producing 28-gravity oil. The Amalgamated has two wells on the Miley-Keck lease, nearing completion that promise to be good ones. Miley-Keck No. 19, at 3715 feet, is ready to make a production test and No. 22 at 4200 feet, is beginning to show the usual signs. The Amalgamated expects to develop the Miley-Keck holdings with six new wells, the rigs are up for four of them, and two locations staked.

Pantages-Huntington No. 1 was deepened to 3725 feet in the hope of increasing the production. The production was increased to 500 barrels, but temporarily, as the well has fallen down again to a little better than 300 barrels.

The Rhoads Oil Company has its famous No. 1 ready to return to production. A few months ago this well thrilled the Main-street section of the field by coming in a big well in the deep sands at 2500 feet. Sand developed and shut off the production. The well has been cleaned out and is ready to go back to the old figure if it will do it. The Rhoads Oil Company pioneered the deep development work in the south side of the field and is entitled to a big well.

The Shell company is now indulging in Huntington Beach deep production. On the Slater property Shell company completed No. 1 at 4263 and brought in a 200-barrel, 21-gravity producer. Shell-McDonald No. 1 was carried to 4477, developed some water and was plugged back to 4300. Preparations are being made by the Shell company to abandon the Newlands-Borchard No. 1. This well was drilled to 3500 feet, got into the heavy top oil and was not a commercial producer. There is little doubt that the Shell company will relocate on the property and attempt to duplicate the Standard Oil's Surf No. 2, a well at 4430, which surprised its owners and adjacent operators by coming in at 500 barrels and producing 28-gravity oil.

The Walker-Western Oil Company had its plans upset for bringing in a big well at No. 2 at 3484 by having some water showing up after bailing down. Going through 225 feet of oil sand and making such a splendid showing, the outlook for a big well was good. The Walker-Western will plug back and locate the water.

SIX NEW WELLS

The daily production at Long Beach is hovering near the 190,000-barrel mark and will probably go over this figure before the end of the week. No less than six new producers were completed during the past week, and these added some 10,000 barrels of high gravity production to the output. A year ago there were a dozen derricks standing at Signal Hill, today there are 300. Every derrick represents an investment of approximately $80,000. The return from the oil the hill is now producing is estimated at $250,000 daily. Is it any wonder that development work is surpassing all former records in the south in a field that will yield 2000 and 3000-barrel wells at 3500 feet, and the wells can be completed and put on production in less than ninety days?

Demonstrating the possibilities of the deep sands on top of the hill, the Big Jumbo was deepened by Wigle-McBride to 3288 and was transformed from a 200-barrel producer to a 1000-barrel gusher. Seventy-five feet of new hole made the difference.

At 3260 the Coast States Oil Company completed its Campbell No. 1 and brought it in a 600-barrel well. This producer is starting off away below the average and there is a possibility that the well has not got under way, on being located in the heart of the congested district it may be doing all there is to do.

Joseph Dabney continues to bring in the big wells without any difficulty. Dabney's latest success No. 13 at 3268 came in at 1225 barrels.

JONAH SUCCESS

That there is nothing in a name has been proven in oil by the General Petroleum Corporation. Completing Jonah No. 1 at 3260 the G. P. placed on production a 1900-barrel well making twenty-five gravity oil.

The Henderson Petroleum Syndicate shared in the new production of the week by bringing in a 1000-barrel well on the Dodge property at 3407 feet. The Henderson Mills No. 1 is drilling out the cement at 3435 and will be ready for a production test in a few days.

The Pacific Petroleum Corporation has resumed work on the Irvine well. Drilling was stopped several months ago at 2400 feet when things began looking doubtful for wels located on the southwest slope of the hill. Conditions have changed by recent Shell Company wells and the Pacific Petroleum will proceed to get this well into production.

Oceanic No. 2 at 3485 failed to make a producer. The well was tried out, made some oil and considerable water. It is believed this well in the top sand is close to edge water. It is the intention of the Oceanic to pull the 6 1-4 oil string and go on down.

Progressive Club Burnett No. 2 finished at 3209 is on production. The well is making 1500 barrels of fluid, the percentage of water running about 20 per cent. Whether this well will clear up or not is a question.

BRINGS IN WELL

W. M. Keck put new hope in the Sandburg Petroleum stockholders by bringing in an 800-barrel well on the Miller lease. The Sandburg holdings, it will be remembered, were taken over by Keck and the Superior Oil Company four months ago. The Miller well at 3498 is the first Keck completion. Crew No. 1, the original Sandburg producer, is to be deepened and carried into the sands that made the Bartholomae Oil Syndicate and the Big Jumbo big wells.

The Tehmescal Oil Company has completed a nice well on the Harlow lease, No. 3, finished at 3355, is a 900-barrel, 24-gravity producer.

The Transport Oil Company has completed its Walker No. 2 at 3253 and is making preparations to bring in what looks like another big well. No. 1, one of the most consistent producers on the hill, is holding steadily at 1600 barrels.

The Standard Oil Company is taking the lead at Santa Fe Springs for bringing in big wells. Finishing Koontz 2 at 3854, a well was brought in that has flowed all the way from three to ten thousand barrels. Koontz 2 is acting like the Unions famous Bell No. 1 and will probably make one of the greatest producers in the field. Efforts are being made to hold the big gusher down to 3000 barrels. The Standard returned Santa Gertrudes No. 1 to production. Recementing and shutting off water at 3854-44, a 700-barrel well was brought in.

The Superior Oil Company's Wardman No. 1, located in the heart of big production did not come up to expectations. Completed at 3755 this well is making 1100 barrels of 31.4 gravity oil. The Superior well is not far from the Pacific Petroleum's Eagle No. 1, a 2400-barrel well, and should have duplicated it.

Twin Bells increased the production with a 1400-barrel well at Grohs No. 3. The Twin Bell's second producer was completed at 3775 and is making 33 gravity oil. With No. 1 making better than 800 this little company has a nice production that has been developed in less than four months. The Keck Drilling Company did the work.

Surrounded on all sides by General Petroleum gushers the Co-operative Oil Syndicate is getting ready to bring in what is scheduled for a 2000-barrel well at No. 1. The California Drilling Company completed the well at 3500. A perfect water shut-off was secured in the 8 1-4 at 3684 and from there on down the well showed sand and shale heavily saturated with high gravity oil. The Co-operative Oil Syndicate was financed by Perdon and Verpillat and promises to be one of the most successful promotions in the field.

Hamilton No. 4, the well that operators have had their eyes on for weeks, has arrived at 4700 feet. Some showings that led to the belief that there was something about to happen resulted in the decision to stop drilling and set casing. A string of 8 1-4 will be set at 4698.

Machris Brothers have succeeded in shutting off water in the Landl and last week put on a 400-barrel well, producing 30 gravity oil.

MEXICANS CELEBRATE INDEPENDENCE DAY

MANY HANGOVERS SEEN AT MEXICALI AS RESULT OF FESTIVITIES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICALI, Sept. 17. — Many hangovers were seen today as a result of the last two days of giddy festivities in celebration of the one hundred and twelfth anniversary of Mexico's freedom from the tyranny of Spain.

Wine and song flowed freely, and in accordance with the romantic customs of the country, thousands attended the fete from all the district and from all over Imperial Valley. Americans across the line joined in the festivities and especially in the brilliant ball given Friday night at the palace of Gov. Luco.

Barrington Says—

Financial corporations when honestly and capably managed are money makers. The amount of money made depends on several things. First: The management. Second: The amount of capital available. Third: Opportunity for its profitable investment.

This corporation claims to have honest and capable management. The President is a very prominent and successful realty operator in Los Angeles. Its directors are well and favorably known. It will have ample capital for its purposes when fully financed. The opportunities existing in Los Angeles now are beyond description, and almost beyond belief to those not living here and seeing what is going on; the development that requires money to complete. It is the fastest growing city in the world. The financial institutions here are growing like weeds. A bank on almost every street corner and all thriving. Eastern life insurance companies are loaning money here by millions and still the demand is for money and more money.

We aim to deal principally in mortgages and trust deeds—a very profitable branch of the financial industry. With opportunities existing and with our management, we should be able to earn as much for our stockholders as similar institutions earn for theirs.

Seasoned Bonds Yielding Higher Returns

It is one of the peculiar features of the present bond market that a number of offerings, although well Seasoned Bonds, are selling at prices to yield a higher return than Newer issues of the same grade.

There is a double reason, therefore, why you should invest in the older securities—greater yield with time-tried safety.

Send for list of Seasoned Bonds yielding attractive incomes.

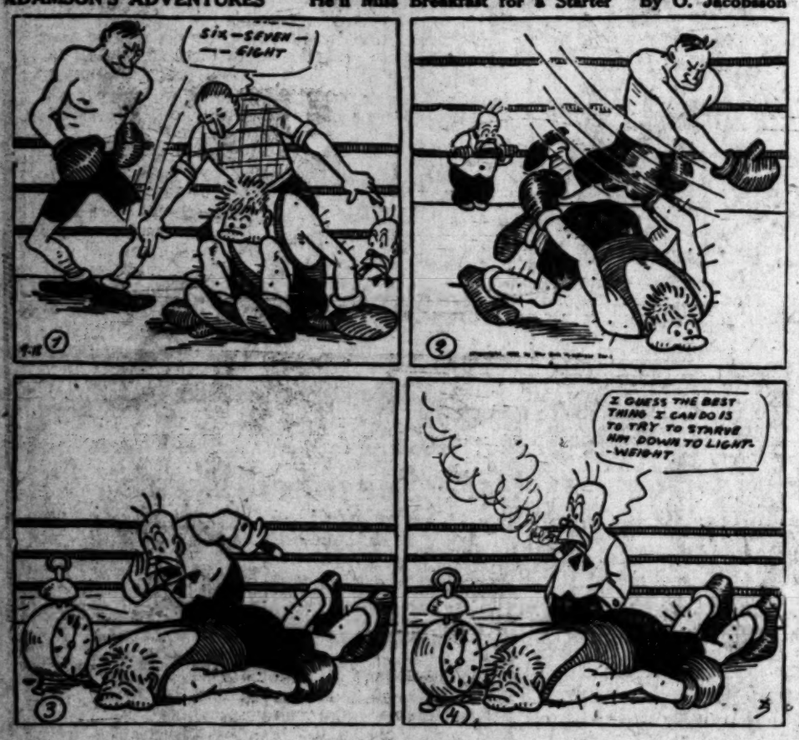
ADAMSON'S ADVENTURES — He'll Miss Breakfast for a Starter — By O. Jacobsson



HOW THE POOR BOY MUST HAVE SUFFERED!

NOTE: "The Times" Daily Wad Comic-Strip Contests Will Be Discontinued on September 21 Until Further Notice

The Wad family, whose daily adventures in Los Angeles have amused Times readers for the past year, during which time more than $1500 has been paid by The Times in prizes for available ideas for the Wad strip, demands a vacation. Its members point to the fact that more things of a strenuous nature have happened to them in a twelvemonth than to any other family in Los Angeles and they insist upon a rest. Watt and Elva are going East to college, and Gunn has to go to school, too, he says. Mr. Wad is taking Mrs. Wad and the baby to Honolulu, and Tight says he will go along if Mr. Wad pays his way, not otherwise. For these reasons the Wad will be discontinued for the present at the conclusion of that of this week, which ends Thursday. The prize-winning ideas and possibly a few others will appear space thereafter.
